Johnson Puts Stamp Of Approval On SGA Orientation Program and Frosh '69

"I've never seen anything like it here at High Point," exclaimed Larry Johnson, SGA vice-president and chairman of freshman orientation.

"As far as spirit building goes, orientation was completely successful," said Johnson.

Johnson credits his hand picked staff with the success of this year's freshman orientation.

"These people were chosen carefully with the assistance of Dean Phillips. They did a fabulous job," Johnson commended.

"I'd like to take this opportunity to publicly thank Dave Holton for his fine job. He got them psyched on Tuesday night when they first got here, and there was just no stopping those freshmen," he continued.

Johnson also lauded the bands who played at the nightly dances for the freshmen and returning students.

He explained that much of the entertainment offered to the freshmen was due to a "social service fee" of three dollars that was paid by the freshmen for the orientation week.

"This fee was entirely voluntary--the freshmen understood this--but not a one of the freshmen turned us down," stated Johnson.

"This fee was to offset the money allocated to us by the SGA for orientation; the SGA just didn't give enough to offer the freshmen what we they should have for a great week," Johnson said.

He went on to explain that, to him, the best first impression possible is assential to students away from home for the first time.

Johnson continued by saying that in order to give them that vital "best first impression" he scheduled dances every night of orientation and collaborated with a cabaret, the Endzone, in Greensboro to allow High Point College students free admission for the evening.

"It was really great of Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Amstutz of the Endzone to work out that arrangement for us. I'd like to thank them for that," Johnson said.

For him, orientation was a success, "but it isn't over yet," promised Johnson.

Freshmen received their beanies Monday at which time an evaluation sheet for orientation was passed out.

"We'd sure like every freshman to fill out this sheet telling us what features of they liked best and which ones we should do away with," requested Johnson.

The field day which replaces the annual freshman-sophomore tug of war in the creek will take place the last Saturday in September.

Scheduled events included relay races, games, volleyball, and "possibly a picnic for the two classes afterward," said Johnson.

"We--and I'm speaking for sophomores and the SGA--hope that this will turn out to have been one of the best orientations ever, and I, for one, think it did," concluded Johnson.

HPC Receives Faculty Chair Grant

After weeks of negotiations, High Point College and the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company have announced the donation of the sum of $100,000 by Jefferson Standard to be used in the establishment of a faculty chair at the college.

Although Jefferson Standard would prefer to have the grant used relating in some way to the objectives of the company, the sum was given without regulation of its ultimate employment.

To be entitled the "Jefferson Standard Chair of Learning," and preferably to be related in some way to the objectives of the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company, the chair's principle monies are to be invested at the college's discretion, and the income from that investment is to be used as salary for the chair.

President Wendell Patton comments that it is highly unusual for a grant of such size to be awarded without subsequent restrictions regarding its final use.

"And we appreciate having this freedom in selecting the area where it can be utilized," says Patton.

Possible Uses

At present, Patton has no definite plans for the application of the funds made available through the chair.

"We will try to apply the money to an area that needs it most," he remarks.

"At present, I believe that the sociology department may be in line for the chair, but circumstances may change by the time the interest is ready to be used".

The business and economics departments were also cited as candidate recipients of the award.

"But if possible," Patton says, "we will invite a recognized expert or nationally prominent figure to the campus, in which case, the chair could be used in that individual's department.

After revealing details of the Jefferson Standard Chair of Learning, Patton announced that the acquisition of a third chair is just on the horizon.

Garland McPherson of Southern Pines, N. C. has expressed his interest in donating to the college $50,000 in the form of an industrial property development.

Income from the investment of this principle is slated to be used in the religion and philosophy department.

FORVM

(Editor's Note: This week, College President Dr. Wendell M. Patton initiates FORVM, a guest column in which any college affiliated individual may, either by request or editorially extended invitation, express his opinion on any issue.)

This issue of our campus paper brings a hearty welcome from the faculty and administration. Greetings, both to returning students and those on the campus for the first time! We hope that this will be a great year for you and for High Point College.

The opening of school is always an exciting time of the year. We begin with enthusiasm, exhilaration, fresh vision, and a host of good resolutions. This year especially should be one of real progress, and joy of successful accomplishment, if we continue our progress in relating all parts of the College community so that we move forward together with confidence of our great future.

There is no doubt but what the working relationships of all of us concerned--faculty, students, Trustees, alumni, will undergo some interesting changes this year. It is our responsibility to move forward carefully, but confidently, and make these changes for the good and not bad.

As we develop new structures, organizational plans, and communication techniques, the key word is "responsibility." If I am hearing correctly, this is what students want.

Authority and responsibility can never be divided--there can be no authority without commensurate responsibility--neither can there be real responsibility unless it is accompanied by the necessary authority. Our policy has been, and will continue to be, granting a greater voice to students with real concern for High Point College, as long as they accept the accompanying responsibility that it entails.

Someone once said that "freedom is self-discipline"--is nothing more--is nothing less. If we remember this concept as we search for new and more meaningful ways of relating to each other and accepting new roles, we will be guided into almost unimaginable opportunities for both individual and college development.

Now for just a quick look and brief report of some of the issues, projects, and problems facing us during the 1969-70 school year:

(1) New assembly regulations--Upon the recommendation of the President's Advisory Council, some rather drastic changes will be tried. Details will be developed by the Assembly and Artists Committee, but, generally only one Assembly per month will be required. The others will be basically enrichment programs--educational--entertainment--religious--scholarly--many of which may be held at night so that the public may be invited. These will be optional with the student, but naturally will have to be supported well enough to justify the money that will be spent for these programs. So this plan will be tested this year--the yardstick by which it will be measured will be simply whether or not our educational program has been strengthened or weakened. It is up to you.

(2) Students serving on faculty committees--The request was made last spring for students to serve on faculty committees and we spent many hours discussing the ways and menas of doing this. I presented this request to the faculty at its last meeting in May and they instructed the standing committees of the faculty to each review this and make a recommendation to the entire faculty, which will be done at our first faculty meeting after school opens, on October 8th.

(3) Proposals for a new college calendar--A joint faculty-student committee, headed by Dr. Matthews, was appointed last year to make a recommendation for a more effective utilization of the month of January, and, if necessary, an entire new college calendar. This recommendation will be made to the faculty at the Faculty Seminar on August 28th. From chats with individual members of the committee it seems that the chances are good they may be recommending a 4-1-4 type program.

(4) Student evaluation of teachers--The Faculty Committee has approved in principle student evaluation of teachers as a professional aid in the development of the individual teacher. This was also viewed with favor by the Executive Committee of the Faculty and now is ready to be presented to the full faculty for discussion, decision, and if approved, the development of the mechanics of such a plan.

This is only a small sample of the variety of interesting and challenging opportunities ahead. It should be a great year! Won't you help make it our greatest?

Wendell M Patton

Program Director David Steves seems almost unaffected by the myriade of troubles facing "WHPC", but he feels that he can move nowhere until aid comes from some as yet unidentified and undetermined source.

Station's Director Enumerates Setbacks

By ALICE SEYMOUR
ASSOCIATE EDITOR

The proposed High Point College radio station, unofficially dubed WHPC, has fallen heir to a host of problems.

Throughout the second semester of last year, talk of the radio station centered around the possibility of turning the worn out radio equipment in the bowels of the maintenance department into something that could be used.

Since that time, according to present radio program director David Steves, it has been discovered that there is no one who knows enough about electronic equipment to help Steves rebuild the defunct equipment.

"There is now a whole roomful of useless radio parts in J-2 of McCulloch Dorm," states Steves.

He explains that he could probably assemble the parts, but he needs "someone to help design and construct the radio."

"To do this, I need people, and that's the hardest part," comments Steves.

"I heard that there was a boy on campus who knows about radios and can build them too, but I don't know how to get in touch with him," Steves says.

"I believe he transferred here from Wesley Junior College," he continues.

Steves goes on to say that even though HPC lacks the necessary equipment, he has been writing to college radio stations elsewhere in the country in an attempt to form a rough draft for a "code of ethics," for broadcasting.

"I have a policy in mind, and some friends are helping me write it," he says.

"Most of it is just common sense: promising to broadcast nothing libelous or obscene, that sort of thing," remarks Steves.

"I'd like to see a radio station with as little talk as possible, mostly music."

Another of Steves' considerations is finding people who have pleasant voices to be broadcasters.

"I have an awful voice for radio," he remarks.

"What we need more than anything else, even before we can do anything significant, is a show of faith in our integrity and responsibility."

"I think there's a positive need for a radio station, and students need to be trusted with something more than books and pencils," concludes Steves.

Locke And Committee Reveal Revised Assembly Schedule

Following last spring's generally unexpected decision to abolish required weekly assemblies, Dr. William R. Locke, chairman of the assembly and fine arts committee has drawn up a new assembly calendar.

Starting this semester, the first Wednesday in each month will be the only required assembly.

"All other 10:00 Wednesday periods will be open for such events as class meetings, pep rallies, and anything else that is needed," Lock announced.

A series of evening programs have been planned to supplement the loss of cultural and entertainment from the required assembly calendar.

The evening bill is designed to attract both the High Point College student and the outside community.

When the Assembly and Fine Arts Committee met during the early summer, the many varied tastes of the student body were taken into consideration as programs were arranged for the future months according to Locke.

P. R. Reigns Over All

Asked if a re-evaluation of the assembly format would occur if the ratio of the evening sessions were as low as 20%, students, Locke stressed the point that "the evening session is for public relations as well as student interest."

Another point emphasized by Locke is that the new assembly schedule is "only in the experimental stage."

College President Wendell M. Patton will address the student body with his annual welcome speech at the first required assembly this Wednesday, for the fall semester.

Plans have been made for the Student Government Association and the Student Christian Association to present programs of campus interest at the required assemblies.

The first evening program will be a slide-lecture by Robert Short, author of "The Gospel According To Peanuts," and "The Theology Of Peanuts," on Sept. 17.

Two other evening programs scheduled for the fall semester are an orchestra and choir group from A & T State University, and the Piedmont Dance Theatre.

The Tower Players Production, as well as the Community Concert series will be incorporated into the evening schedule of pro-

President Predicts Chapel Next

"Last week I would have had to say 'Student Union,' but this week, I would definitely answer 'the chapel,' " says High Point College President Dr. Wendell M. Patton concerning the speculation of which structure of the Golden Decade building program to expect next.

Patton cites the ever-changing financial situation as the factor lending uncertainty to response.

"We are planning on building the new student union building with funds obtained from a low interest rate, long term loan from the federal government's Department of Health, Education, and Welfare," states Patton, "but of course, this agency cannot make loans for the construction of buildings to be used for religious purposes."

Patton adds that there has been some confusion on this point within the student body in that it is not generally realized that the college's hands are tied as far as procuring a loan to erect a chapel is concerned.

According to Patton, a privately donated sum of $130,000 is presently available for the construction of the chapel.

"There is about $100,000 more pledged to come just as soon as we can offer concrete plans about the structure," says Patton.

"Currently, we are reviewing an out-of-town architect who has had considerable experience in designing structures for religious purposes."

Patton says that funds for the student union building will be held up until spring at least.

For its construction, the college will need the financial assistance offered by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, and HEW regulations specify that an application for federal building funds may be made only once every two years.

High Point College's last application was filed in January, 1963, for the solicitation of money to build the coed dormitory.

According to Patton, the college "hopes to be ready" by January to make the request concerning student union funds.

Architect Leo Schute of High Point has been contracted to draw the plans to be submitted to HEW at the time when the request will be allowed.

Mullinix Airs Views On Chapel Structure

With plans pending for High Point College to acquire a chapel in the future, Rev. G. Roland Mullinix, college chaplain, commented on his ideas as to what makes up a serviceable chapel.

"The chapel should be able to function for other than religious services," states Mullinix.

"I would like to see a chapel which would lend itself to religious dramas, dialogue and congregation response," he says.

"The interelor should be free," continues Mullinix.

To achieve this, Mullinix hopes that there would be no "bolted down pews or pulpit or nailed down alter."

He would like to see the chapel as a part of or beside the new Student Union.

"Since it involves all the students, it ought to complement the Student Union," Mullinix states.

According to him, an easily adaptable decor would encourage student expression and participation in religious activities.

"My plans will depend greatly on the interest or apathy of the students," he remarks.

To capture student interest during the coming year, Mullinix hopes to initiate more "casual" worship services for students.

"I'd like to have Sunday evening services on the lawn and bull sessions on regular evenings in the dorms with students."

SU Furbishing Ideas Garnered

After almost seven months of enjoying the limelight as the next structure to receive funds from the Golden Decade building program, the proposed Student Union building is beginning to evoke administrative and student concern about the nature of its furbishings.

"It should be designed by someone who knows about the Student Centers," states Benjamin B. Brockwell, director of admissions.

Brockwell also mentioned the proposed grill that is to be a continuation of the college bookstore facilities.

At this time, the plans for the grill call for it to be located in the maintenance building which is to be redesigned for the necessary snack bar accommodations.

"The grill should be open during dorm hours and on weekends," states Brockwell.

"It should served as a convenience for the students, not as a convenience to the school," he continues.

"Though I do speak from an admissions angle, the new grill and student center will be a definite asset to the college," Brockwell says.

There are many different conveniences and services to be considered in the design of the student Union.

"For this project to get anywhere and to be of any real use, we must have student support and suggestions as to what should go in the building," states Dave Holton, chairman of the Student Union.

Vice-President for Business and Financial Affairs Earle G. Dalbey agrees that the most pressing aspect of the building proposal centers on determining the functions of the building.

"We just don't know yet exactly what we want to have in the building," stated Dalbey.

"Until we can determine that, we're at a stalemate, but we really should have some plans to the architect by January," he continues.

Dalbey, too, emphasizes the need for continuing student interest in the new building.

In answer to this problem, Holton has formed a committee to study the demands of a Student Union building, and Dean of Students Personnel Robert E. Phillips would like to broach students both individually and collectively to discover their ideas.

According to President Wendell M. Patton, the college cannot apply for federal aid to help finance the proposed Student Union until January, 1970.

With that pending grant, Dalbey hopes that the student union will be "well on its way by 1973."

President Predicts Chapel Next

"I will need funds and time in the future," was the reply of Dr. Hamilton Holt, Eckerd College President, Dr. Harold Mullinix, Director of Development, and Mr. Robert Armstrong, Jr., Director of Public Relations, when questioned by a reporter.

Follow them the ever-changing campus plans, a dormitory complex, a dining commons to complete the quadrangle, a building downtown to expand, a new library building, a building for the administrative offices and possibly a chapel. Dr. Holt's ultimate aim, however, is to have a chapel as the center of the campus.

"We can't build a building, a building for the administrative offices and a chapel all at once," Dr. Holt explained. "We have to build the buildings necessary to students first." Dr. Holt's ultimate desire for the administrative offices is to have them downtown for convenience purposes.

Other needs are given by Dr. Holt as more dormitories and more classrooms. "We have to build to keep up with the increasing enrollment. With the students' wishes considered, it is to our advantage to build a dormitory, a classroom, a dining commons, a chapel, and a library," Dr. Holt explained. "We can't build everything at once because we don't have the money for it."

"There is always financial stress. Funds are needed in order to do the most effective program that is possible," Dr. Holt continued.

"Ultimately, a new campus for the entire institution, with the final maintenance expenditures considered, would be the most ideal solution," Dr. Holt explained.

Dr. Holt stated that the ultimate plans for the campus are not definite, and that the final maintenance expenditures would be considered by the administration before any definite plans are made.

Dr. Holt stated that the campus is not for sale, but that it may be exchanged for property.

Dr. Holt stated that the Eckerd College Development Council is the group responsible for the administration's future plans.

Dr. Holt, Dr. Mullinix, Mr. Armstrong, Jr., and Mr. Robert Lee, Director of Alumni Affairs, are members of the Development Council.

Archibald Lee Sutton, of 1310 Parker Dr. from Southfield, is studying for piano to be accredited to MENC by the time-when his college career is complete.

Mullinix Airs Views On Chapel Structure

With plans fulfilling for Eckerd College to build a chapel on campus, it has been learned that Professor Mullinix, college director, recommended that a chapel be a most unusual type of construction.

"The Sutton chapel is to be a part of the Florida Presbyterian Conference," Professor Mullinix explained. "It is to be a most unusual structure."

"The chapel is to be a building, in order to accommodate the campus, a spoke to the center of a mountain."

He explains chapel development: "In the college year Professor Mullinix will be in charge of the chapel development."

"If the time is ready, arrangements for the final chapel construction will be made."

Kerr Appointed Hi-Po Advisor

The Hi-Po announces that Lane Kerr, director of information services, has been appointed its faculty advisor.

Kerr came to the college during first semester of last year, and, in addition to his post, teaches English and journalism.

Johnson Plans Judicial Reform

SGA Vice-president Larry Johnson has made public some of the legislature that is on this year's agenda.

Johnson indicated that the Judiciary Council will be reviewed, but he did not go into detail on the matter.

He also stated that the dormitory judicial system will be investigated.

In pointing out the need for review of the various systems Johnson inferred that in the past the rules have not been interpreted and applied with much consistancy.

Johnson said, "The rules are to be used and applied to everyone."

According to Johnson, in the past, the men's cases that appeared before the men's dormitory council and were then appealed to the judiciary council, received more severe punishments than instances when the women's cases have bypassed the women's dormitory council and have gone to the Dean of Women.

Johnson says that not only the entire judicial system, but also the dormitory and general college rules need investigation.

Johnson feels that only student concern will effect the desired change.

Johnson subscribes to the theory that when discontentment exists, action through the SGA should be taken to alleviate the problem.

Johnson said that "Patton, Cole, and Phillips do listen to the SGA."

According to Johnson, the logical course for students to follow is to come to the legislature meetings and voice their opinions, rather than just grumble among themselves.

Previously proud freshman meekly dedicated their lives to fulfill the destiny set forth by the sophomore class yesterday morning. Many scoffed; some laughed, but according to sophomoric authoritarian whims, the beanies will remain on humble heads for four weeks.

Matthews To Head Merged Departments

Plans for the reorganization of the departments of psychology, sociology, education, and human relations have resulted in the formation of the department of behavioral sciences.

Dr. William P. Matthews, former head of the psychology department, will now serve as the new department's head.

"We've been working on this change for some time now, and I think the reorganization will be of benefit to the departments involved," states Dr. J. Allen Thacker, newly named director of teacher education.

Under Thacker's direction will be the elementary and secondary school teacher education programs.

"Throughout the year, we will be reviewing our effectiveness and teaching methods," states Thacker.

The self-evaluation is in preparation for visits from the National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE) and the North Carolina State Department of Public Instruction.

NCATE will be on the High Point campus in March and the Department of Public Instruction will be on campus in May.

At that time, an intensive study will be made of the philosophies, objectives, and purposed of the education instruction here at High Point College," remarks Thacker.

"Our own findings will be added to the recommendations of the NCATE and the Department of Public Instruction," he continues.

"With those things in mind, we will be able to revamp our educational instruction," Thacker concludes.

Cooke III

Dr. Dennis H. Cooke, former head of the education department, will be returning to campus in October.

Cooke was suddenly taken ill late in the summer and was hospitalized at High Point Memorial Hospital.

He is recovering at his home under a physician's supervision.

In his absence, Dr. James. A. Thacker will take over Cooke's usual seminar, and Dr. William P. Matthews will handle the two sections of education 201.

Bishop Hopes

Zenith editor Dave Bishop has expressed his desire of achieving an All American rating in the 1969-1970 yearbook, and to accomplish his goal, Bishop has decided to utilize color spotting and special effects.

Bishop inferred that the yearbook would be a photographic essay consisting of more pictures and less printed material than last year's publication.

Bishop remarked that he plans to develop a different type of introduction to this year's Zenith but did not enumerate details of the project.

Although Bishop plans to execute many changes in Zenith, there are some features he will retain.

He indicated the he would still maintain the same publisher, Delmar Company, and the same number of pages, 264, as in last year's yearbook.

To meet one of his deadlines of early November, Bishop says he will start photographing different classes in about two weeks time.

Bishop remarked that although he has Assistant Editor Beth Holcum and Business Manager Bruce Shafer to aid in production, he still has not enough people needed in order to produce a good yearbook.

He suggests that any student interested in joining the staff come to the Zenith office or contact him at any time.

Profs Added

Seven new professors and instructors have been appointed to the college faculty for the 1969—70 school year.

Appointed to the psychology department as a replacement for the late Sherrell Wilkes is E. J. Asher, visiting lecturer of psychology.

Asher brings with him a long list of service in the field of teaching and researching psychology. He received his master's degree at the University of Kentucky and has done further study at Ohio State University.

After teaching at various universities, Asher went to Purdue University where he became chairman of the department of psychology in 1945.

After having joined the faculty initially last semester, Asher became enthused early by the fervor of his students here at High Point.

Miss Carolyn Hornsby, instructor of speech, is from Louisiana where she received her undergraduate degree in speech from Louisiana College and her master's degree in speech from Louisiana State University.

Miss Hornsby replaces Miss Elissabeth J. Cole who is attending Louisiana State University to continue her graduate studies.

Miss Hornsby was ranked highest in her class in her undergraduate work and served as a graduate assistant before coming to High Point College.

Serving as the college's first chaplain is the Reverend G. Roland Mullinix, who assumed his position in early June.

Mullinix had been pastor of Bethel United Methodist Church in Hickory after receiving his bachelor of divinity degree from Duke University in 1964.

James W. Stitt, instructor of history, graduated Cum Laude from High Point College in 1966 and went on to receive his masters at the University of South Carolina. Replacing departed Dr. Richard Stalter of the Biology department will be Fred T. Yeats, assistant professor of biology, an Alabama native.

Yeats received his bachelor of science degree from Mississippi College and did his graduate work at the University of Mississippi. He is currently working on his doctorate at the University of South Carolina.

To aid basketball Coach Bob Vaughn in scouting, recruiting, and coaching, Bill Davis, a graduate of Lenoir Rhyne, will assume the post of assistant basketball coach.

Davis, who graduated last year, made the All Carolinas Conference and All District 26 during his basketball competition at college.

Davis plans to attend the University of North Carolina at Greensboro to work on his masters degree while assisting Coach Vaughn.

Charlie Futrell, newly appointed instructor in the department of physical education and health, is a native of Murfreesboro.

Futrell received his Bachelor of Science and Masters of Education degrees from East Carolina University.

He has been attending Peabody College for Teachers where he is a candidate for his doctorate.

Pair Of Profs Promoted

Two physical education professors have been reshuffled into new posts due to the departure of Dr. Charles Morris.

Miss Betty Jl Clary, former assistant professor of physical education has stepped up to the position of department head, and Charles Hartman, also a former assistant professor, has been namedastheletic director.

"At least I was completely surprised to be named the department head for I realized that the college had been looking around to find a qualified person to fill the vacancy created when Dr. Charles Morris left to fill a post in the NAIA," stated Miss Clary.

Along with this move came the motion to appoint Mr. Charles Hartman the director of athletics.

Miss Clary expects no problems with the staff as they have worked together before.

'I feel that if the new director had been a women and was not previousiy associated with the college, she would have found some problems arising," states the new directress.

"With the addition of Mr. Charles Futrell, we will probably have the best staff ever," comments Miss Clary.

Her responsibilities now include making out the schedule for each school year, although Morris completed the schedule for this year before leavinz.

Also, as a department head, Miss Clary will assume the duties of serving as an advisor to the students in the physical education department.

"With all this new work and responsibility something had to be deleted in order that I might be able to complete my classroom work along with the position, says Miss Clary, "so the women's inter-collegiate schedule of action will not be cut but it will be shortened somewhat."

By second semester, Miss Clary expects to have everything under control and possibly the spring sports will not have to participate in the abbreviated schedule.

No additional physical education courses will be added to the schedule this year as all the new courses were planned last year.

However, a new course in the study of the muscles is planned for the Christmas break.

Even though it is aimed at the physical education majors, it will be open to the general student body.

Commenting on the proposed swimming pool Miss Clary said: "The students probably know just as much as I do about the swimming pool.

"All I know is that is to be built behind the present gymnasium and is to be connected to it by a passageway so that some of the facilities can be used both for the pool and they gymnasium."

"Getting used to having a window in my office is the only problem at the present, and I guess Mr. Hartman is going to have twice as many problems as he now has two windows," laughed Miss Clary.

On the other hand, Hartman realizes the possibilities: "'I knew the school was looking for a person to fill Dr. Charles Morris' position, however as the summer progressed and no one was contracted, I began to feel that something like this might happen," states Hartman.

With this new position Hartman will have extra duties that will take up more of his time such as speaking engagements and the important NAIA conventions in the spring.

The post of athletic director is not completely allen to him as he was named assistant director last spring and had been helping Morris throughout the year while he was away.

"This added load should not interfere in any schedule during the first semester; when baseball season starts some of my courses will have to be changed so that I will be able to devote my time to baseball and my new position," remarks Hartman.

In commenting upon his teams chances this year Hartman states, "I feel that we should win the conferernce, and really we are setting our goal for the national finals in Kansas City."

"All in all I wish to stress a continued winning way in all sports at High Point College," he concludes.

Hickey:

Fourth HPC Player Picked All American

By RICK TWICHELL

STAFF WRITER

While most of the college community was away for the summer, catcher Don Hickey was named to the firstteam All-American in the NAIA.

Hickey was notified by W. Lane Kerr, director of information services, early during the summer school session.

An elated and suprised Don Hickey exclaimed, "I never even expected that I would be named to it, in fact I thought it had already been published."

He has since been approached by several big name professional baseball teams; however, he will not be eligible for the draft this year as his birthday is seven days after the cutoff date.

Hickey would rather not mention the names of the teams that have contacted him as he cannot sign with any of them as yet.

"I am happy in a way that I am not eligible because now I will be able to play in my senior year."

Family Tradition

The stellar performer comes from a line of excellent players as has been attested to by his younger brothers as well as his older brother who named to two different all-star teams while playing in the NCAA.

One thing that discouraged Hickey was losing to Pfeiffer last year in the district playoffs 2-1.

This was especially disheartening after beating them during a double-header to win the conference championship.

"I am very hopeful about the prospect of this coming season and really the seasons to come.

"I think that we should be able to go all the way to Kansas City as many of the teams around here have lost so many of their star performers while we only lost one starter."

Hickey joins an elite four of All-American sports players on the High Point College roster.

According to Athletic Director Charles Hartman, Danny Sewell, was the first HPC player to attain such a position when he was named to the second string in All American basketball team in 1938 and 1953.

Dale Neel was the second; he placed on third string of the 1965 basketball team.

In 1965, Ray Blosse placed on the first string baseball team, and former Panther basketball star Gene Littles placed on the first string three years; 1967, '68, and '69.

RUGGED JACKETS

Bold . . brawny . . distinctively styled — that describes men's outer wear for this fall-winter season

Two materials most emphasize this masculinity: giant ribbed corduroy and blanketlike wool melton.

Warmth without weight is achieved with modern acrylic and synthetic pile linings — the pile often extending up onto the collar for a warm, handsome touch.

Ditzler, Carle, Williams Spell Out Three Methods Of Student Selection

"When I made the original presentation of the bill, there was included what I feel is the most fair method of student selection," says Brian Ditzler, speaking about the proposal to allow students membership on faculty committees.

Ditzler explains that his suggestions are patterned after the method of proportioning students on committees at Appalachian State University.

"Their system calls for nomination," explains Ditzler.

"All faculty members are asked to make their recommendations and submit a list of names to be considered.

"The SGA does the same, and the results are tabulated; those students receiving the greatest number of nominations are sent detailed questionaires," said Ditzler.

Ditzler states that the questionaires are used to determine the student's area of interest and in what post he feels he would be most beneficial.

According to Ditzler, assignments are made from that point by assignment in agreement with the dean of the college, the dean of student personnel, and the president of the student government association.

"In case those three can't agree on a nomination, the person in question does not receive a post," says Ditzler.

He further explains that that method prevents known campus activists from gaining key college positions.

"The SGA should be an integral element in the selection process, but the politics should be removed," he says.

Ditzler acknowledges that the process used at Appalachian is not entirely satisfactory: "People are ignoring it, so there must be something wrong."

SGA President Mike Carle feels that the SGA executive council should make nominations with the approval of the legislature.

"We have the opportunity to work closely with the student body," he says.

Carle suggest that student applications to committees be made through the executive council.

"In selecting students, the executive council should carefully consider the suggestions of the dean of the college," he says.

Speaker of Legislature Bob Willians disagrees with Carle and proposes that nominations be made in legislature.

"The general student body should have a voice in the selection of committee members," he says, "and the executive council as well as the student body has a voice in legislature."

"Legislature is diverse enough to know the students in question and discreet enough to know when a certain appointee would not be advantageous in a particular committee."

"The actual formal appointment to the committee should be made by Dr. Patton," he explains.

Both Carle and Williams agree that recognized guidelines are a necessity.

Faculty To Discuss 'Students On Committees' Final Fate At Meet

Of utmost concern oto the student body will be Wednesday afternoon's faculty meeting discussion of the proposal to allow students to serve wtwith the faculty on various committees.

Originally proposed to the faculty last spring, the mameasure rested over the summer with approval granted each committee to decide whether or not admit student members.

The idea originated with Brian Ditzler, then serving as speaker of the legislature.

Ditzler says he presented a rather elaborate plan, greatly modified since, to the President's Advisory Council, a student committee, during the November meeting.

"Dr. Patton expressed his interest in the idea," says Ditzler, "and he told me to continue investigation."

Until late January, Ditzler studied similar structures at other schools, and prepared to make a final proposal to Patton.

"I also presented a bill to the legislature to submstantiate what I was working on alone," Ditzler states.

Supposedly during the summer months, all faculty committees were to have reached some sort of agreement withint their structures as to the desirability and feasibility of permitting students committee membership.

At the August 28 seminar, however, no committee was yet prepared to make a formal statement on the measure.

Reportedly, Dr. William Locke, chairman of the assembly and fine arts committee, announced that his group customarily invited student participation, and had granted full voting privileges to student members.

T. E. Scott, chairman of the publications committee, also stated that meetings of his committee were open to students involved with publications, although no voting privileges were extended.

College President Dr. Wendell Patton then asked that further study be made and formal reports given at the next faculty meeting.

That meeting is to be held at 4 p.m. Wednesday in Hayworth Hall.

Half a dozen cafeteria staffers unloaded half a truckload of watermelons early on Friday's misty morn. One crafty fellow makes off with the last of the lot to be enjoyed at a later time in another place.

Rauch Selects Play, Says 'Production On Halloween'

"Halloween is a perfect evening for us to present our play!" exclaims Mrs. Carolyn Rauch, faculty advisor to the Tower Players.

On Oct. 31 and Nov. 1, the Tower Players are scheduled to present Harold Pinter's play "The Birthday Party."

Nov. 1 is also Parents Day so Mrs. Rauch says she is "doubly delighted.

Tryouts will probably begin next Monday, according to Mrs. Rauch

Plot Described

"Pinter's play is set on the south shore of ENGLAND, but it could just as easily be Myrtle Beach or Cape Hatteras," states Mrs. Rauch.

There are six characters in "Birthday Party": four men and two women.

Of the men, one is an older fellow who runs a boardinghouse and rents deck chairs to vacationers in the area.

With him is his wife who spends her time tending to the upkeep of the rather rundown boardinghousse

For a year, a young man has been rooming with them.

Quiet and withdrawn, he has never been out of the house during that time.

Occassionally, a young woman drops in to visit the three.

"She sort of has her eye on him," says Mrs. Rauch.

To add to this assortment come two strangers to the scene.

No one knows anything about them' where they come from, what they are doing there, or what they hope to accomplish.

When the wife plans a birthday party for her boarder, it becomes obivious that the two men have come to drive the young man mad.

'Black Comedy'

Though Pinter is usually included in the group of writers producing plays of the theater of the absurd, Mrs. Rauch prefers to term Pinter's plays as black comedy.

It really is a funny play until you realize it really isn't funny at all," states Mrs. Rauch.

"It's a very strange play by a very strange playwrite who is immesely talented, she comments.

According to Mrs, Rauch, each play that the Tower Players have presented to date has posed its own special problems.

The 1969 spring production, "The Unknown Soldier and His Wife," offered a challenge to costume and set designers.

Mrs. Rauch says that "Birthday Party" will be an actor's "tour de force."

"The success of this production rests solely in the hands of the cast," she states.

Mrs. Rauch plans to begin rehersals immediately after casting the play.

Chess Feels Board To Blame For Past Procrastination Of Integration

(Ed. note: With the first of a four part series this week, The Hi-Po investigates the issue of integration in the High Point City schools.

During the month of July, a suit filed by High Point lawyer Sam Chess resulted in a court order to integrate the school system. The final decision was handed down in mid-August when the court reordered desegration of the faculty and set a deadline for a plan of student integration.)

By JANE S. MAILLEUE
Editor-in-chief

A manilla folder nearly four inches thick holds information pertinent to the Gilmore case.

"Nobody has ever asked my motivations," says Sammie Chess, attorney - at - law who handled the summer's school segregation case officially titled "Gilmore Versus the Board of Education of the City of High Point."

In a soft voice unmarked by strain or hard feeling, Chess explains that as a negro, he has a personal interest in the racial imbalance of High Point's city schools.

"I am not worried about what is thought of me; I have a high opinion of myself and my ideals, and that is all that matters," he continues.

The desire to aid in understanding is the key to Chess' desire to effect racial segregation.

"People are unfortunately led by fears and misunderstandings," Chess says.

"If there is a segment of the white population that believes that blacks are stupid, then the only way for this misconception to be cleared up is to put clacks in the classroom with whites and prove them wrong.

"There will always be this type of misunderstanding between the races, and no amount of talk will change the situation.

"The best way to bring about significant hange is to bring folks together."

"Start with the youth" is Chess' theory of bringing the races together.

"Adults often indulge in rhetoric about merit Young people don't understand this talk of merit, yet they put it into practice far more easily, more naturally," he says.

Chess says he believes that integration can be accomplished with poise, that the only problems arise when officials stand back from the situation and cry, "Wolf, wolf."

He adds that in such cases, officials are acting irresponsibily.

"It was my fond hope that the board would come to grips with the situation long before this, without the threat of legal action or a court order to desegreate", he says.

"I really have no desire to take the case to court.

"I'd much rather see the board, or any agency for that matter, act out of good faith with the foresight and reason of perpetuating good education."

Chess believes that since there are undoubtedly parents in the High Point area who do not want integration to come about, the board seized this fact as what he calls a "trump card, an excuse for preocrastination in the matter of integration."

Speaking neither in tones of a black man's militant nor a white man's Uncle Tom, Chess related that he had postponed action against the board for "several years."

"But instead of taking the initiative to promote understanding during this time, the board waited, meanwhile sowing the seeds of destruction to the detriment of the school structure," Chess charges.

"I tried to stay my hand at interfering in the matter, Chess explains.

"I've always wanted to accomplish desegregation with the least amount of misunderstanding possible.

"I certainly don't want to create hate of blacks for whites or hate of whites for blacks," Chess says, "because we're all part of the human race. . .Some of us have different shades of skin coloring, but pigmentation is irrelevant to our goals."

Chess' involvement with the High Point school integration question began in March, 1963 when he pleaded the case of a group of negro parents in a suit against the city board of education.

The decision handed down by the court resulted in the freedom of choice option for school children.

Clarification

The Hi-Po wishes to clarify a statement concerning the faculty chair grant which appeared last week.

The $100,000 grant is being made by the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company of Greensboro along with the Pilot Life Insurance Company of Jamestown.

The name of the chair to be established has been designated as the Jefferson-Pilot Chair of Learning rather than the Jefferson Chair of Learning as reported.

Appeals In Sight

Steves, Thomas Plan Radio Strategy

John Thomas:

'Need student backing'

"WHPC could be on the air in 16 to 18 weeks, states John Thomas, a transfer student from Wesley Junior College in Delaware.

But after looking at the radio equipment in J-2 of McCulloch dormitory, Thomas agrees with David Steves, program director for WHPC, that "the equipment is useless."

Thomas says that some of the remains can be salvaged for spare parts, but the cheapest recourse is to purchase new equipment.

According to Thomas, this would involve an initial outlay of approximately $6000.

Thomas states that if students don't want a radio station, then the idea may as well be forgotten now.

"But if they do want one and if I can get the money somewhere, I can have the station operating by next semester," promises Thomas.

"Having a radio station opens up a whole new field of possibilities," comments Thomas.

"With radio broadcasting as one of the college's services, you can begin to offer students courses in broadcasting with the possibility of a major in that field."

"I'm sure that there are many students here who are considering the mass media as a permanent occupation," he continues.

"But if there is no campus outlet for these interests, how can students ever know if broadcasting is for them?" queries Thomas.

Ken Gey, a student who was involved in sports broadcasting before transfering to High Point pointed out another service of a campus radio station.

"It seems to me that the students here at HPC are really big on basketball," comments Gey.

"Wouldn't HPC sports be that much more interesting and more widely followed if they could be brought right to the students via campus radio?" he asks.

"One definite advantage that student broadcasters have over professionals is that students have more insight, more of a personal relationship than a sports caster might have," states Gey.

To further generate student interest and garner general student opinion, Steves and Thomas plan to take a straw poll of students On Thursday, they will appear before legislature to appeal to solons

At this time, plans are to present two bills to the legislature on Thursday.

The first bill is to ask for the support of the radio station by the legislators.

That measure would place the campus radio station under the jurisdiction of the Student Public Affairs Committee; chaired by Steves.

The second bill is to ask the legislature to reimburse the efforts of the as yet unnamed station manager by paying that individual a sum equal to one semester's tuition at High Point College.

Legislators To Tackle Election Question

Speaker of Legislature Bob Williams has made public several of the items which he feels will be pertinant in Thursday night's legislature meeting.

"We'll have to take care of the question of the three sophomore representatives who did not attain their averages," states Williams.

Williams explains that the legislature occassionally allows legislators a probationary period in which to try to improve their grades.

"I've gotten word, directly from Dean Robert Phillips and indirectly from Dean David Cole that a probationary period will be allowed in this instance," says Williams.

"But I think we ought to make some provisions for elections later in case they don't make up their grades, especially since the subject isn't covered in the rules of order," states Williams.

Williams further explained that it is the option of the class president to either call a special election or appoint legislators from the class.

"From last talking to Acting President Larry Breeden, I think he'll call an election if necessary," says Williams.

Williams thinks that the first few weeks of legislature may be tied up in procedural snags.

"We'll probably have to meet once a week rather than biweekly to get all the old business out of the way," he says.

According to Williams, finances and the appointments to various committees will be the first concerns.

Williams says that new business will be comprised of the discussion of the purchase of more refrigerators for student use and his proposal for the formation of a "traditions and customs" committee.

He envisions having a program being worked out for the Golden Anniversary Homecoming in 1974, along with smaller celebrations for homecomings until then.

Registrar Office Computerizing

A revamp in the registrar's office has occurred with the addition of an automatic data processing guidance system (ADP), according to Registrar David Holt.

According to Holt, the system which the college is making plans for consists of a "cord puncher, a reproducer, a sorter, a collator and a "407" accounting machine.'

"The '407' works directly with the 1130 computer, which the college hopes to obtain in the future," states Holt.

Just back from attending a workshop on date processing, Holt demonstrates his bouyancey with the pending experiment. "I'm rather thrilled that I'm the one who has to set it up."

"We don't know where the possibilities end; they are unlimited!"

"We hope to register the summer students on IBM equipment as a practice run for the fall semester," says Holt.

The new system will enable the registrar's office to send out grades in one day, instead of the usual week.

Hopefully, in two to three years, the whole school will be using the ADP," remarks Holt.

Eventually the entire payroll and a majority of the business office functions will be handled by the ADP.

Plans to renovate room 26, Roberts Hall to accommodate the ADP should begin immediately, according to Holt.

Once the equipment is set up, it will be used as a teaching aid for the business department, with room 27, Roberts Hall serving as a seminar room for classes.

The equipment will be rented on a "rent with service" contract, according to Earl G. Dalbey, vice president of financial affairs.

"A computer system was unsuccessfully tried at HPC before, but it failed because the equipment was in Winston-Salem," relates Dalbey.

"Whenever a mistake was found, someone would have to drive the 30 miles back to campus to find and correct the mistake."

"Since the equipment will be right here in Robert's Hall, this will save a lot of time and miles," Dalbey points out.

Connors In Town

Western Idol Found Amusing, Strange

By JANE S MAILLEUE
On Special Assignment

"Remember Chuck Connors? The Rifleman?" asked the telephone's whispering voice last Thursday evening.

"He's in town, but hasn't checked into a hotel yet."

Lookouts were staked all over downtown High Point to keep an eye peeled for the appearance of the big man.

Just before 11 p.m., a call came, and the whispering voice said, "Hey, I don't think he's gonna show...no, wait, there he goes in the door."

The agent followed him and tried to intercept us as we stealthily stalked the lumbering giant, but Connors immediately turned and, like a messiah granting salvation, bid us come with him.

A few minutes later we were watching Rifleman Chuch Connors seemingly all of eight feet tall, walk down the corridor from his press agent's room to his own.

Once in his room, Connors began to circle his confinement restlessly.

First seated on the bed, then slouched in a chair, he chatted about his reasons for being in High Point.

"Going to play in a tournament tomorrow in Roaring Gap," he said.

"Gonna tee off at noon, so we'll have to leave here at nine... boy am I tired."

From an airline travel bag, he took a square plastic jug and helped himself to a generous drink.

"Just water, Baby," he grinned.

Connors explained that he carries distilled water with him for consumption on the plane, but usually buys his supply in the towns he visits.

"I'll go to Leonard's Drug Store in the morning, and they'll have five or six bottles ready."

Then he launched into a tirade of arguments against the consumption of "impure water."

"Listen to the label: 'For use in steam irons ...and babies' diets ...' There are too many ailments that can be had from drinking the regular stuff: kidney stones, gall bladder infections, and acne."

Looking not at all serious in a pixie haircut handsomely bleached by the sun. Connors swore that he is not a health food fanatic.

Snapping photos crazily with a Polaroid, we tried to capture his craggy, leathery face on celuiold, but the photogenic screen star's cowboy features were somehow disspelled in the soft blues and greens of the room.

He revelaed plans to be "of town by Sunday night, on the way to New York."

The Old Rifleman:

Restless, eccentric

From there, Connors is to fly to Rome for "wardrobing."

"After that, it's on to southern Spain to film my next picture," said Conners.

"It's called "The SOB's," sort of a western 'Dirty Dozen, and John Houston is in it," explained Connors.

Connors soon tired of his chit-chat about things and stuff and began to interrogate us about campus phenomenon.

After a few pointed remarks about the morning's long drive and the night's short solace, we took our cue and left the bronzed western idol to contemplate his magnitude.

When former Speaker of Legislature Brian Ditzler first set forth the propsal to allow students to serve on faculty committees, he meticulously and kindly included a method of selection in his outline.

Since introduction of the idea, his theory of innovated student - faculty relations has caught hold, but his mechanics of selection have not fared so well.

By his own admission ("People are ignoring this part of my plan, so there must be something wrong,") Ditzler and the college community at large have dismissed the idea of an almost free-for-all selection procedure of procuring (by majority nomination) the required quota of students for placement on faculty committees.

At this time, Student Government and Legislature officials are making eleventh hour attempts to route student nominations through their respective hands.

Seemingly, all the methods thus far proposed have transcended what ought to be the wishes of individual students and moved into an area of control by outside parties.

We feel that, especially in embryonic stages, student involvement in spheres that were heretofore strictly faculty affairs, should be indicative of the individual student's desire to participate.

We suggest that instead of helter-skelter nominations from the floor, application for committee posts should be made by individuals to the committees where their interests lie.

Final selection, in case of an overabundant number of petitions, should be left to the judgment of the committees.

Thus petty student personality and political clashes are avoided.

Relatively unrecognized students may be judged on their records and demonstrated interest in chosen fields.

Finally, in such an entirely voluntary fashion, the intensity of student participation will necessarily be increased.

'Medium Cool': Burning Drama

Violence and hatred spread like flood waters, raging out of control, innundating everyone present and drowning all hope of reconciliation.

Such is the backdrop of "Medium Cool," a movie focusing on the mass media and its participation at the Democratic Convention in Chicago.

The footage for the movie was actually filmed at the riots there.

But the bitterness and bloodshed are only a backdrop around which the human drama of one TV newsman, a young woman, and her small son is played.

Sparing the viewer no aspect of the squalid life led by both rich and poor, Producer Haskell Wexler for Paramount Pictures probes the insensitivity of human emotions exposing the hypocrisy of our lives and dealings with other human beings entangled in film footage.

The effect is a sheer and shattering illusion: an audience viewing through the "eyes" of a camera, a man recording events through the eyes of a camera who sees other people looking through cameras.

Reduced to the simplest and most meaningful microcosm of events, the true human drama lies not in the angered screams of the crazed mobs or the tinsel twilight world of the politicians, but in the search of a young woman for her small son lost in the melee.

Beyond this, all other facets of the film are merely extraneous details added for emphasis to reinforce the personal drama.

Swift camera changes both subtle and obvious point out the lack of genuine communications between people.

..The actors use their talents to portray people so natural that the viewer is seldom aware that he is watching actors play assigned roles.

The film therefore becomes virtually documentary in form.

Throughout "Medium Cool" the role of the mass media plays a major part in conveying the theme.

TV, radio, and newspaper services are explored in depth.

Wexler films a society in which truth is disregarded and discouraged.

The young newman changes his position from a satisfaction to rebellion when he realizes that all his film has been reviewd by the police and the FBI as a means to maintain political surveillance.

Violence and bloodshed are the focus of lens men; interpersonal relationships are offset by mob frenzy.

Powerful and absorbing, "Medium Cool" produces heat waves that burn the viewers' imagination and draw him into the scene of the film itself.

"Experiencing a movie, "identifing " with its performers- these terms have become euphemisms that clothe a multitude of deformities, but "Medium Cool" is a picture of now, a moving portrait of events we all remember and often wish to forget.

To the young, "Medium Cool" stands as evidence supporting their arguments against a growingly impersonal society whose only reality has become the events shown on the 11 o'clock news.

For those in the older generation-thirty years has been designated as the dividing line (by the mass media, perhaps)-"Medium Cool" serves to emphasize much of the truth inherent in the views of the inexperienced "younger generation."

Few films have portrayed our society with as much technical dexterity as exhibited by Wexler.

The film ends with the most powerful comment possible in keeping with Wexler's function as merely an observer rather than a judge.

The viewers' eyes are led into the opaque depths of the camera thorough which he has viewed the entire sequence of events.

The camera's lens has drawn perspective and imagination into the grinding machinery that produces the thousands of feet of celluloid society.

FORVM

FORVM is an open column where guest columnists, either through request or editorially extended invitation, may express their views on any subject.

Mike Carle, president of the Student Government Association, this week expands on the role and goals of Student Government.

As a small, co-educational private school, High Point College has an opportunity to offer students certain freedoms that large, state colleges and universities cannot. Unrestricted by pressures from state legislators and governors, the private institution can establish its own rules, procedures, and standards.

This freedom of action in small colleges must not be abused by anyone connected with the school. College trustees and administrators must continually seek new methods, ideas, and practices to deep apace with the best schools in our country. Students, as an integral part of the college, must realize their responsibility to foster new ideas, to be creative, to actively support the various programs and to assist in promulgating ways in which their school may be in step with the times. The student's government is the provided means by which to accomplish these aims.

Carle

The Student Government Association of High Point College is the voice of all the students. Whether the student is a greek or independent, whether the student is a business major or an art major, whether the student is a dormitory student or a day student, the Student Government is his voice. The Student Government is not a coterie of students whose intents and designs are secret, but rather, the Student Government is and open elected body of students divived into areas of responsibility to better serve students as a whole. ALL students should feel free to make their opinions, thoughts, and ideas, known to their Student Government.

Many students ask exactly what our Student Goverament is doing this year. The Student Union will hold monthly dances along with a concert this fall. In addition, movies and various tournaments will be held. The Executive Council will carefully scrutinize the finances of the Student Government, will review the judicial process, will seek to open the gym for sports on Saturday and Sunday, will work for better communications within and without the Student Government and will work on legislation in general to promote the welfare of the student body.

The Legislature will work on legislation that comes before it and will continue to be the main legitimate forum for students to air their opinions. The Judiciary council will work to provide justice for all students. Although the least publicized branch of government, the Judiciary Council's role in a student's life cannot be underestimated.

As this new year begins, let us as students back our government. Unhampered by student apathy, the Student Government can better work for the adoption of proposals for your benefit. As these proposals concern you, the student, do not hesitate to suggest improvements, to constructively criticize, and , in the case of opposition to a proposal, to suggest not adopting what is proposed. Freshmen have the opportunity to elect their officers and legislators soon. It is incumbent that those elected will bring new ideas and proposals to the Student Government. It should be remembered that the elected student mirrors the intentions of the people whom he represents. Students' actions can cast aspersions on the credibility of all those associated with the school. However, students can be the main reason why a school is an attractive, wholesome, and fun place of learning and living.

As President of your Student Government, I have pledged to work to improve our school. Many others have pledged to do so too. Will you not become a help yourself? Come out and support your SGA. With a united, happy, responsibly oriented student body, no goal can be beyond our reach. Let us now begin the tasks that are ahead!

Thus, the role of the student in our small, co-educational private school can be explained. We, as students, must work together. Freshmen, sophomores, juniors, and seniors must join to work for a better High Point College. The Student Government is the instrument to use. Let us now begin to accomplish the tasks that lie ahead.

Patton Expects '4-1-4' Academic Calendar Revision

College President Wendell M. Patton says he believes that a 4-1-4 course suggestion may be made at Wednesday afternoon's faculty meeting.

Patton explains that last spring he appointed a special committee chaired by Dr. William P. Matthews to make a study of the present school calendar and suggest changes in light of their evaluation.

Patton hopes that the 4-1-4 plan (a program in which four courses are taught during two main semesters, with one intensive study course between them) is the recommendation so that the present idle month of January can be utilized by the general student body.

"Of course, this would necessitate the change of curriculum hour requirements and so forth," states Patton, "but that's something we'll have to do soon anyway."

SU Flicks

An evening with W.C. Fields will be presented Tuesday night in the student center by the Student Union.

SU Chairman Dave Holton, following a good precedent set at last spring's "Film Frolics," arranged to have the classic W.C. Fields films shown.

Also on the SU's entertainment agenda for this week is a dance to be held at the Moose Lodge from 7:30 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. SA Saturday.

Admission is $5 per couple; included is the price is a limitless quantity of free beverage.

Apogee Invites

Willis Shaw, editor of Apogee, the college literary magazine, has announced the initiation of the creative writing seminar for this year.

This seminar was introduced last year by Dr. Charles E. Mounts, advisor to the Apogee, and was designed to give those creative students a chance to have their works heard and criticized by fellow writers on campus.

In that this seminar was so afavorably received by these writers last year, Shaw has decided to extend again an invitation to all interested students to attend the first meeting of the seminar this Thursday afternoon at 3:30 in the seminar room of Cook Hall.

The sessions will be weekly and all interested students are encouraged to attend and gain not on ly in developing their writing skills but also to address themselves freely to a community of fellow writers.

Council To Meet

The Judiciary Council meets this Tuesday night with Steve Kennedy serving as the new Chief Justice. One item of business to be acted upon is the selection of a new chief proscecutor.

SGA Thursday

The Student Legislature of the Student Government Association will hold it s first legislative session this Thursday night.

The Thursday night time for the meeting marks a change from the practice common in the past when the legislature has met on Wednesday nights.

The change was effected by the Speaker of the Legislature Bob Williams.

The meetings will be held in Haworth Hall in the same assembly room as before.

Xerox In

Earle G. Dalbey, vice president for financial affairs at High Point College, announced today that the college library now has copying machines installed and ready for use by college students.

Dalbey stated that the machines are coin-operated and will cost the student ten cents per copy

These machines will available for use by the individual student and will hopefully aid him in more conveniently obtaining needed copies without going to the mimeograph room.

It was a picnic near panic last Sunday evening when promptly at 5 p.m. huge splats of rain began to bomb the Student Christian Association's annual picnic supper.

The rans fell not for long however; sunlight permeated the mists and the Christians, gathered at City Lake, braved the elements and sat down to feast.

Mobs await the slackening of the rain.

Peak Potential; Harrier Hopes High

Track Coach Bob Davidson feels that his new team has more potential than any team of the past six years.

Davidson is to be aded by Bill Carter, last year's stellar performer.

Of course, Davidson wishes that Carter were back to run, but his presence alone should make a big difference this year as he can help freshmen from his actual experience.

As many coaches have said, the backbone of their team is the manager, and this is no exception as we have a dedicated young man in Russel Jones," says Davidson.

The co-captains for the team this year are the only upperclassmen' Eric Noren and Walter Mnatz.

Among the freshmen prospects are John Werner from Bethesda, Md., where he was sixth in the state cross-country and has run a 4:23 mile.

Another of the standouts is Gene Monger from Severna Park, Md., who ran second in the state in the 880 with a time of 1:54.

Athird, Mike Johnson, is a school mate of Werner, and seems to keep pushing to make Johnson going.

Rich Litchford is from Wilmington, Del., and was the standout on his high school team.

Len Selvaggio from Allison Park, Penna., and Lloyd Davis from Baltimore, who was coached by HPC alumnus Mickey Dean, are expected to aid the team greatly.

The season opens Sept. 24 against Wake Forest, an opponent expected to be the toughest.

"I expect a good season especially with our outstanding prospects, but we must remember that they are freshmen," says Davidson.

"I am hoping that students will come out and watch the meets for two reasons.

"One is that we need your support, and the other is that track is really an exciting sport, and you can observe most of the action of home meets from the hill," states Davidson.

Smith Eager To Start Play

By RICH TWICHELL
Staff Writer

In the past, the Maryland area has produced the bulk of High Point College's basketball team, and this year seems to be no exception.

Orlando Smith, a rising star on the team's horizon, went to Great Mills High School in Great Mills, Md., where he lettered in football, basketball, and track.

Smith

During his junior year, he averaged 23 points per game, and raised that average by one point during his next year.

"Coach Vaughn came up to me after one of the tournament games when he was scouting and gave me piece of advice: Learn to shoot not always from a set position," says Smith.

"I have since followed that advice."

Smith received a seemingly inappropriate nickname from his mother.

"Tubby" now seems to have no basis, but, as he explains it, "My mother tells me that I was fat as a little boy."

"Everything and everyone is so nice here that I can't wait to start playing ball under Coach Vaughn," says Smith.

"Joe Colbert has been showing me around, and I feel a part of the team rather than just one person playing on the team."

"I really like the gym's rubber floor because it gives you more bounce to the ball and it also aids in jumping.

"In addition, it's supposed not to be so tiring to play on."

Smith is studying to become a physical education major and says he definitely wants to coach.

"My ultimate aim is to be a poacj but I know that takes time, so I am willing to wait," says Smith.

Rough Season Ahead

Vaughn Voices Optimism

Basketball again dawned in the sports scene when informal practice began in earnest last week.

After one day on the courts, Coach Bob Vaughn's hopes are again raised for another great season.

See SPORTS PIX, Page 8

According to Vaughn, this year the team is loaded with greatly talented freshmen combined with the trendous ability of those players returning for another season.

Over the summer, Vaughn has created a tough schedule for his team to follow especially with the addition of several new and difficult teams.

UNC-Charlotte, Georgia-Southern College, Virginia Commonwealth University, Presbyterian College, and UNC- Wimington are among the additions.

The number of games for the season totals at 29.

Two games are scheduled to be held in Greensboro Coliseum which makes 14 games at home and 13 games away.

High Point College opens its season at home Nov. 20 against Greensboro College.

"With the addition of the tournament at Hickory, we should have a rough but exciting season," says Vaughn.

"There are a few teams that expect us to be pushovers, but I think that they are in for the surprise of their lives."

Trustees Vote $100,000 Addition; Chapel Funds Beginning To Swell

"At Wednesday's executive meeting, the trustees appropriated another $100,000 of for the chapel," announces High Point College President Wendell M. Patton.

"Put with a previously chapel fund designated sum, the addition brings the total to $230,000," says Patton.

He adds that there is a donation of another $100,000 awaiting commencement of construction.

Patton says that several members of the board of trustees have met with an Asheville architect to discuss ideas for the edifice.

"He will submit some sketches for our consideration along wih a suggested location then a few other architects will possibly be interviewed before a final choice is made," states Patton.

Patton expresses hope that groundbreaking wil take place this spring.

According to Patton, the trustees also apportioned $150,00 of miscellaneous college funds for that structure.

Again Patton urges students to make their suggestions concerning the building's components known to Dean of Students Robert Phillips.

"We need to compile a great deal of information by January in order to present our plans to the Department of Health Education, and Welfare for a federal loan," says Patton, "and it's an expensive proposition to make changes after blueprints are already drawn up."

No Time To Plan

Cole Fears 'No Go' On 4-1-4 Next Year

Dean of the College David W. Cole expressed his doubts Friday as to the feasibiiyy of incorporating College President Wendell M. Patton's expressed hope of a four course-one course-four course curriculum in the academic calendar next year.

"There just doesn't seem to be enough time to get all the details ironed out," he says.

Last spring, Patton appointed a committee chaired by Dr. Willaim P. Matthews to investigate the possibility of revamping the college calendar to encompass an intensive study program to be utilized in the currently defunct month-long Christmas vacation.

As an evident follow-up to the January "New Horizons" program, the extra semester would be comprised of one course, a class where students could meet once a day to engage in thourough study of a particular subject.

The ad-hoc curriculum committee was to have made a study of the existing school calendar over the summer, and a report was slated by Patton to be made as soon as the college session began this fall.

Patton reports that Matthews explained that no student committee members were available for consultation over the summer, so no action was possible at the Aug. 28 faculty seminar.

Patton instructed the committee to report at the Sept. 10 faculty meeting, but according to Cole, the report had to be again tabled due to insufficient time to discuss the matter.

"At present, the burdening details involve working out schedules and fitting courses and teaching requirements into accreditation standards," explains Cole.

Cole also views the month study period as a chance for freshmen, transfer students, and failing upperclassmen to make up missed work.

"I've been studying programs at several colleges," states Cole, "and there seems to be just too much material to go through."

Curriculums of Lake Forest College in Illinois, described by Cole as a "superb small liberal arts school;" Wofford College, S.C.; Furman University; and Davidson College are all being examined at the present time.

"Some of these schools have 3-2-3 programs and all sorts of other concoctions," says Cole.

"But before even deciding on a program, we must discover whether the 4-1-4 type curriculum is a current gimmick or a real educational advantage," says Cole.

According to Cole, several departments have already, although not necessarily knowingly, prepared their curriculums for some type of intensive study course. He cites the history department's groundwork for Asian and African history courses as forerunners of the proposed 4-1-4.

Cole thinks that there are many possibilities that cliud spring from this point and names one as being the sharing of materials and personnel with Greensboro's A & T College for a black history course.

He also points to last winter's business education's stock market seminars in New York City as good practical experience combined with the principle of a 4-1-4 curriculum.

"The math department's newly revised curriculum, although not originally devised to meet intensive study qualifications, could be easily adapted," says Cole.

Solons Fight Maze Of Parlimentary Tape; Procedures Boggle Clear Discussions

Several bills were presented to legislature Thursday night and there was much discussion on many of those measures in what was termed a "controversial" meeting.

One example of efficiency turned mayhem occurred when the Orientation expenses summary was presented to the legislature.

Each expense was itemized with the cost to the SGA.

The result of careful bookkeeping, the expense account was logically and clearly presented until toward the end of the account one outstanding expense was noted: "High Point College (inserts in handbook), $200."

Larry Johnson, vice-president of the SGA and orientation chairman explained that statement as referring to a two page insert into the orientation handbook that cost $200.

According to Johnson, to his knowledge the college was going to pay the $200.

Upon receiving Dalbey's bill, SGA Treasurer Warren Grimes immediately wrote a check to HPC for $200 approved by Mike Carle, president of the SGA.

It was later pointed out by Bob Williams, speaker of legislature, that at the time no one seemed to recall that all checks written by the treasurer for over $50 must be approved by the legislature.

When fthese facts came to light at Thursday's meeting, legislators were angered that the SGA should pay the $200.

But the check had already been written and delivered to college officials.

At this point, motion followed by discussion, follwed by a motion that died from lack of a second followed by remarks made out of order got entangled in the maze of parliamentary procedure unfamiliar to most legislators.

Williams had to repeatedly remind solons of the recommended proceedure suggested by Roberts.

Finally a motion to stop payment on the check was made by Nancy Nash, senior class representative.

The motion was seconded and approved by the legislature.

With the presentation of the rules of order of the legislature, a proposal stating standard operating proceedure of the SGA was submitted.

Ironically, that proposal caused more confusion in Parliamentary proceedures than any legislation of the evening.

The ensuing argument centered on the last sentence in Section Ii, "Special class elections to fill vacancies caused by expulsion on resignation may be called by a majority vote of the legislature.

Since appointements, according to Williams, are made by the Executive Council of the SGA, Carle contended that the Executive Council should have the power to call the elections for vacant posts.

Brian Ditzler, president of the senior class, stated that the power to call the elections should be in the hands of the legislature.

Discussion then began with varying opinions being expressed by the representatives.

After much debate, it was decided that the proposal would be submitted to the Judiciary Council for its interpretation of the intent of the SGA Constitution regarding the sentence in question.

Williams later clarified the point that since the rules of order of the legislature have not yet been approved by the legislature, the Judiciary Council's interpretation would only be an aopinion not an official ruling that is to be taken as law.

The Judiciary Council, therefore, only rules on approved bills and laws of the legislature; it offers opinions on proposals.

The legislature also heard a resolution approving student membership on the Student Personnel Committee and suggesting their method of selection.

As stated in the resolution, "Prospective student members shall be suggested to the Executive Council especially by i) student application 2 faculty recommendation. Criteria for nominaton shall emphasize a) an active interest in improving "student life" at High Point College, which committee membership entails, c) varying class membership allowing for consecutive terms and providing for continuity of knowledge and experience and d) the Nominations for student members of the committee shall be presented by the Executive Council to the Student Legislature for a 2/3 vote of approval.

This resolution will come to a vote on Thursday of thi week.

FORVM

FORVM is an open column where guest columnists, either through request or editorially extended invitation, may express their views on any subject.

This week in FORVM, the chairman of the Student Personnel Committee, William Cope, introduces his committee to the student body and offers guidelines for student service within that organization.

According to Academic Dean David Cole, placement of students on the SPC is pending a redefinition of that committee's role.

As part of a policy to include students on certain faculty committees, the Student Personnel Committee taks this opportunity to introduce its faculty members and basic functions and responsibilities to the college community.

Cope

The members are Mrs. Pauline Kayser of the foreign language department; Arthur Kirkman of the history department; Mrs. Shirley Rawley of the English department; Joseph Robinson of the business department; Mrs. Lucy Washington of the history department and William Cope (Chairman) of the sociology department.

The basic functions of the Committee as stated in the faculty handbook are:

1. To set the general policy for a program encouraging, yet regulating, student social activities. This includes general policy concerning social activities of the Student Government Association, the fraternities, and all other student organizations.

2. To review upon appeal all actions of the Judiciary Council of the S.G.A. or of the Director of Student Personnel.

The responsibilities of the Committee are as follows:

1. To initiate a program of social education for the students, of High Point College.

2. To facilitate communication among the students, faculty, and the administration.

3. To seek ways and means of maintaining and/or improving student morale.

4. To correlate student personnel policies with the philosophical and educational policies of the college.

5. To hear complaints from students who feel that they have received unfair treatment from any source at High Point College; and, if the Committee feels that the complaint is justified, suggest to the proper authorities corrective measures.

6. To review discipline cases which are appealed to the Committee by students who have been tried by the Judiciary Council of the Student Government Association.

7. To approve or disapprove recommended suspension or expulsion of students who have been tried by the Judiciary Council of the Student Government Association.

8. To hear discipline cases referred to the Committee by the Director of Student Personnel.

The Committee operates under the philosophy that students should play an active role in the academic community. We believe that most students are committed to the free exchange of ideas which is the lifeblood of the college itself.

Furthermore, we feel that the communal life must be so designed as to foster the maturation of its students as responsible citizens of both the academic community and the larger society.

As High Point College strives toward this end, you, the student must be instrumental.

In view of the above, the Student Personnel Committee plans to include a certain number of students as a part of its structure.

Any student who is interested in the college community, who is willing to work toward the attainment of the above objectives and to aid in meeting the responsibilities of the Committee, is asked to submit his name to the office of the Student Government Association where the further selection will be made.

Justices To Ponder Elections Questions

"After first being surprised, I realized that it hadn't occurred to me that we'd be doing interpretations first thing this year," says Judiciary Council Chief Justice Stephen Kennedy about legislature's resolution to send to the council for clarification the issue concerning elections which is creating controversy in the proposed new rules of order in legislature.

"As a matter of fact," Kennedy continues, "I wonder if the council should legally hand down a decision because the new rules are still in a proposal stage; nothing is even firm enough to take a stand on."

"The statement in question involves vacancies in legislature caused by expulsions or resignations," explains Kennedy.

"Under the rules, a majority vote of legislature would be in order to call special elections, but President Mike Carle says that the executive committee has the power to set the time of elections.

"The question is whether or not the statement is to be deleted from the proposed rules, and we're to figure out what to do," he states.

"Supposedly, it now is in conflict with the constitution."

According to Kennedy, the problem is clouded by the lack of guidelines for special elections.

"There are no particular dates set up for elections anyhow," Kennedy laments.

"As far as I know," Kennedy states, " last year there were no constitutional interpretations cases brought to judiciary."

"Former Chief Justice Jay Cornet may have been consulted on certain legalities, though," he adds.

As of late Sunday night, Kennedy had not decided on a time for judiciary to meet to debate the issue.

"It'll have to be either this Tuesday night or next Tuesday," he says, "and I suppose that this week would be best."

JC Fair Found Fascinating

The whole world was there, or at least most of the city at one time or other during the past week when the High Point Jaycees held the annual town fair.

"I was disgusted by all the degenerates there late Friday night," shuddered one sprite co-ed, but a couple of Hi-Po photographers found the aura of the fair quite captivating

The hooch shows were back, along with freak shows, possibly the most horrid of which featuring the "frog woman."

Bright lights and dizzy rides enthralled tots, and at least one miss managed to get entangled in a sticky mess of cotton candy.

While several huskey men tried their skill at registering mighty blows, an apparantly 80 year old wizened woman taunted more would-be muscular heroes in the crowd to step up for an attempt.

All in all, from the nearly forgotten gooey candy apple to the wishfully forgotten dollar entrance ticket, it was a fun fair to be tucked away in memories of good old days.

Rules Laid; Greeks Race As Rush Begins

The rush is on, and the four fraternities and sororities on campus are entering the period known as formal rush.

Fall fraternity rush began last Monday and will end on Sat. Oct. 11.

According to Rick Schumate, president of the inter-fraternity council, standard rush rules will be observed.

"Most of the guys are familiar with the rules, but we can't be too careful," states Schumate.

According to the basic rush rules of the IFC, there are to be no overnight parties and no bands at rush parties with the exception of the drags.

No fraternity man is to buy liquor for any rushee at any time during rush.

After the last drag ends at 1 a.m. Sunday mornign, there will be a silent period observed by all fraternity men and rushees until 3 p.m. Sunday afternoon Oct. 12 when bids go out.

Schumate states that all men out for rush should sign up with him.

Sorority rush begins today and according to Marty Brooks, president of the pan-hellenic council, an expected 102 girls are going through rush.

Each sorority will hold three icebreakers and tow preferential parties.

The first preferentials are slated for Mon., Sept. 22

The second preferentials will be held on Mon., Sept. 29 with bids going out on Sat., Oct 11.

Casting for the Tower Players' fall production, "The Birthday Party," will take place this evening in Memorial Auditorium.

There are six characters in the two act play, and Mrs. Carolyn Rauch, advisor to the Tower Players states that "the success of the play is dependant on the cast."

According to Mrs. Rauch, rehersals will start just as soon as possible after the cast is selected.

Tight Rules

"Punishment for the first offense of drinking on campus is now two weeks suspension rather than the former reprisal of two weeks rooming," legislators were told by SGA Vice-president Larry Johnson at last week's meeting.

Johnson explained to solons that the stricter regulations were part of a "trade with Dean of Student Personnel Robert Phillips" for laxer off-campus drinking rules.

Johnson at the same time voiced his opinion that enforcement of drinking regulations would probably be somewhat stricter this year.

Milton Byron Babbitt, the first internationally known composer to appear at High Point College, will present lecture Mon., Sept. 22 at 10 a.m. on "The Production and Perception of Electronic Music."

Referred to as a, "pioneer in composing serial and electronic music," by Dr. Lew Lewis, head of the fine arts department at HPC; his compositions are performed by leading orchestras throughout the United States and Europe.

The lecture will be held in Memorial Auditorium.

Cole Cancels

Academic Dean Cavid W. Cole has announced the cancelation of his planned October trip to Great Britain.

"I was to go on a bus man's holiday tour of Ireland and Scotland to study administrative techniques in those countries," Cole says, "but the recent upheavels there have forced postponement of the trip."

Cole states that the association with which he had planned to travel is rescheduling the tour for spring.

SU Success

"We are all really quite pleased," says Student Union Chairman Dave Holton about last Friday night's first SU "free beverage dance" held at the Moose Lodge in downtown High Point.

Holton states that although a crowd of nearly 500 was originally expected, the actual showing of 300 left Union officials with a profit of $25 and hope for the success of future engagements.

He adds that the SU, encouraged by Friday night's apparant student interest, plans to hold simliar dances once a month in the future.

New Improvements Slated For Intramurals

The college scene would not be complete without an intramural program, and this year the schedule is heavily filled with only a few open dates.

Again Gary Markland will head the intramurals with Charles Futrell,of the physical education department serving as advisor.

Last year, Futrell worked as a graduate assistant at George Peabody cCollege where he held a position similar to Markland's.

Futrell says he is sending out an appeal for help to any student who could perform as an official for football games.

"There really aren't any changes this year," states Futrell.

"The only two differences are that it is required to have at least 15 men on a roster to be established for football, and a player may be added to a team at any time, but he must be registered at least 24 hours before the game to be eligible to play."

"These new rules are almed at forfeitures because of a lack of players on the playing field at game time," states Futrell.

The first intramural contest will be tennis which will be scheduled with singles on Tues., Sept. 16 and doubles Thurs., Sept. 18.

Players however, must sign up by the end of today.

Football will start next Tuesday, and all the rosters have been turned in.

There are eight teams, four fraternity and four independant teams.

The season will last seven weeks.

The one day track meet, formerly seeming so popular, will be held at 4 p.m., Sept. 24.

The roster must be turned in by next Monday, and the event is slated to be open to all students.

The first week in Decmeber is the scheduled time for the ping pong tournament.

Bowling will be slated some time later, and eight teams will be the maximum number of participants.

The opening of school after the Christman holidays will again bring intramual basketball season starting Jan. 27 and it will last for nearly six weeks.

This year the greatest number of teams that may enter any sport categories eight.

Only basketball, with six fraternity and eight independant teams, will be the exception.

"This is so there won't be any conflicts like last year," states Futrell.

According to Futrell, the free-throw contest will take palce sometime in early February.

As soon as basketball disappear from the scene, volleyball arriv for the next three weeks.

McGhee's height at 6'9" aided his high school team greatly and basketball Coach Bob Vaughn hopes that his stature will do the same here.

"During my seinor year, I averages about 13.5 points and ten rebounds per game," McGhee points out.

Being a quiet and unassuming young man, the atmosphere of High Point College applaseed to him.

The main reason I decided to come to High Point was not that I would be in the new men's dorm as is the present rumor of all basketball players," laughs McGhee.

Cast Is Key

Players Begin Production Practice

After completion of casting last Tuesday night, the Tower Players began rehersals in earnest this week for the Oct. 31 and Nov.1 production of Harold Pinter's play. "The Birthday Party."

Freshman Richard Moore was elected to portray the leading role in the two act play.

He will be supported by David Springer, Ginger Price, Denise Gregoric, Sonny Melrose, and Pat Gibson.

Tower Players Advisor Mrs. Carolyn Rauch made the selections and also named Miss Lynda Long assistant director.

Miss Long comments that the play in , some ways should be easier to direct than "The Unknown Soldier And His Wife," last spring's Tower Player presentation which she also assistant directed.

"The cast of 'The Birthday Party' isn't anywhere near as large," explains Miss Long, "and it's always much simpler to work with a small group."

"On the other hand, it's more difficult for the cast because there isn't an abundance of characters to pull through a weak scene," she says.

Both Mrs. Rauch and Miss Long agree that individual skill in dramatic art will be the sole strength of the play.

Miss Price was stage manager in last year's "Antigone" and "The Unknown Soldier and His Wife."

Melrose and Gibson both played guards in "Antigone," and Gibson additionally portrayed the enemy general in "Unknown Soldier."

Denise Gregorio reherses her portrayal of Pinter's Lulu.

New Night Series

Assembly Found Promising Yet Lacking In Some Areas

NEWS ANALYSIS

By RICK TWICHELL
Staff Writer

The first in a series of night college lectures was presented last Wednesday night to an appreciative audience of about 300 people by Dr. Robert Short, speaking on the theology contained in the comic strip "Peanuts," created by Charles Shultz.

The audience was comprised of an almost equal representation of people from the city and those affiliated with the college.

Established upperclassmen seemed to dominate the constitution of the attending student body.

It nearly appears as though these students were drawn to the assembly because of its novelty and because of the popularity of the current "Peanuts" fad.

Students looking for straight cartoons were sorely disappointed because Dr. William Locke, assembly committee chairman and program planner evidently again succeeded in procuring his favorite although limited appeal type of religious cultural entertainment for the night lecture.

Short was able to keep the attention of most everyone with his witty punch-lines, and combined with the simple humor of "Peanuts," the evening was not entirely a shattering of expectations for the culturally-oriented.

It was evident that the religion department accounted for a great proportion of faculty attendants as other departments had scarce representation.

Quite a few people from the city however, seemed to be impressed with Short; they crowded around him to have him sign their own copies of his books of theological literature.

All invariably answered "yes" to the question put forth by Short: "If I sign this, will you read it from cover to cover?"

One rather self-important woman informes Short that those was the first lecture in the series, and it was a shame that he had to come first before word got around that these lectures were a wonderful treat.

Perhaps two reasons behind the first lecture's success may be that "Peanuts" is so well known, and that the night series idea is a novelty which managed to attract many people who would not ordinarily have been interested.

If the college wishes to continue with its first achelvement, it must take students more into consideration insofar as letting them know what to expect.

It is doubtful that such a large number of students would have come had they known what the program was slated to be.

This was evidenced in the fact that few seemed to want to stay to chat at the end of the presentation.

However, the basic idea of night lectures seemingly met with initial success and hopefully it will continue to grow in appreciation by students and High Pointers alike.

Solons Hear Proposals, Quibble On Expenditures

Legislators at last Thursday night's meeting were met with a barrage of old and new business items which slowly through the evening became resolved.

In preliminary action, SGA President Mike Carle made an executive council report that included recommendations concerning placement of students on faculty committees.

The assembly committee, Carle pointed out, already is comprised of several students with full voting privileges.

Carle said that the council finds acceptable the plan presented by the student personnel committee to include students on an equal basis and in equal number to faculty members.

He reported that the Publications committee has already invited three students to join.

Those three are to be representatives of The Apogee, Zenith, and The Hi-Po.

Carle told legislators that the educational policies committee has formulated a proposal to include three student members, but that plans have not yet been approved by the faculty because of procedural complications.

Extensive controversey arose over some of the various resolutions entered by Legislation Committee Chairman John Young.

Debate first arose over payment for last year's Urban Crisis Seminar sponsored last March by the Student Public Affairs Committee (SPAC).

Argument ended slowly after it was stated that invoices had not been received until this summer.

Two other resolutions, one to accept the Student Personnel Committee's plan of reorganization and the other concerning payment to cover the cost of the Student Union's purchase of refrigerators to rent both passed easily.

Another resolution from Young providing for acceptance by legislature of a change in the penal code to allow stricter penalties for on-campus drinking of intoxicants in exchange for legalization of tippling at off-campus functions passed just as easily.

However, introduction of a resolution to make payment covering a $263.17 overexpenditure by the Freshman Oreintation Committee with money from the legislature fund brought several members to their feet.

Senior Class Representative Ken Millman stated that "he was tired of having people spend money first and then comming to lefislature with the bill instead of coming to legislature before the money was spent."

Resolution for payment, however, eventually did pass.

After Senior Class Representative Richard Boyd's resolution demanding an outlined budget of SPAC expenditures was accepted, Senior Class President Brian Ditzler moved that the legislation committee present a resolution at next Thursday's meeting to accept the Judiciary Council's opinion concerning striking the statement of the proposed rules of order which would permit the Executive Council to set the dates of elections.

The power is to be transfered to legislature.

Hornsby To Combat Disinterest In Debate

After a year's absence of a debating team, attempts are currently being made by Miss Carolyn Hornsby, instructor of speech, to reform a debating society on campus.

"At least six or eight people are needed," says Miss Hornsby, "and we'll have to look to freshmen for support in view of the fact that there seemed to be no one interested in debating last year.

Former debator Miss Lynda Long, a junior who participated on the team existing her freshman year, says that debators that year found a great deal of research prepared when they joined the tea.

"Now, we'll have to do a tremendous amount of work to get going," she says.

She along with Miss Hornsby doubt that a team could be prepared to enter debates this year, but tentative plans are to organize a group to practice intramurally and observe tournaments at other schools.

Ammeeting to discuss development of a team is to be held this Wednesday at 2:30 in room 3 of the fine arts building.

Comments needed

Declaration of the availability of information pertaining to the voluntary January independant study program, New Horizons, has been made this week by Educational Policies Committee Chairman Dr. Harold Conrad, and it would appear that, as demonstrated through his almost perpetual personal refusal to comment on the committee's plans and failure to elaborate on the objectives of New Horizons, he feels his job is finished after the committee regiments the program into a semblance of order.

This, however, is not the end of his duty; to aid in effecting enthusiasm about the month-long intensive study course should be considered also part of his responsibility. And this seeming lack of interest in the fate of New Horizons is not confined to Conrad.

Early last December after about six weeks of public exposure to the New Horizons curriculum, "lack of sufficient advance planning," was labled as the study program's chief flaw to cushion the blunt blow of impending disappointment wisely predicted by those at fault for not avoiding disasterous results of the study experiment.

Where statements were made, negative reactions and critical comments from all sources were the norm before New Horizons ever hatched.

Previous to that, where statements were not made, gaps between contrasting expectations began to widen.

After the initiation of New Horizons, at least one college official publicly inferred that the program was a financial and academic mistake.

Then, of approximately 20 students enrolled in the course, only one publicly came forth for the program's defense from student, faculty, and administrative verbal attack.

For this year's second attempt at the independant study program, let there not be necessarily criticsm, but let there be at least comments aired by the proper authorities at the proper times.

FORVM

FORVM is an open column where guest columnists, either through request or editorially extended invitation, may express their views on any subject.

This week's FORVM is an essay by Senior English major Willie Shaw.

There is only the horror and destruction of man by hate. Man's false relationship to the precepts of Christianity have not altered man's devotion to hate and the results from being hate's slave. Wallace Stevens wrote that "death is the Mother of Beauty," but man must strive for relative beauty and momentary happiness in this life.

Tears, whether on the grave of a fellow human being or on the ashes of a desolate society, cannot resurrect the innocence of the primal concerns of any universal precepts relating to happiness and peace. There is no peace either in the minds of man or in the centers of metropolises. Man is so sterile of every human quality which raised him above the animals that he is now a mere functionary to practices and ideologies given only to the mechanical beasts of industry. Yes, even in this time he is given to the machines of war---that self-suicide for the very spirit of a nation's young and their potentiality.

If this time be as a sleep for a great people, where is the dream of a fecund tomorrow? If this be a time of change, what is the destiny of such violent evolution? If this be a time of pure revolution, is there any ideology ancient or new, such as now functioning successfully, as to promise any dawn from this night of blind darkness? Indeed, there is a light in this darkened time, but those, who are more aware than see, are mistaken as shadows or pariahs. From what and why and where does man run?

Such strength is there in a heart that knows love as well and equally as sorrow. As Oscar Wilde wrote, "whatever happens to another happens to oneself." Does this darkness, too, cloud man's ears from the wailing of his brothers of and in this destiny? He has replaced his care of his brother for woe, and woe is but the corruptible element of self-pity. How abundant be the results of hate!

Behold this time, this time's man, this time's man's productions in light of his empty days of youth and denied experience. But why should there be a fear for a man, a people who have deserted their abilities to believe, to trust, to hope, to love? Either there is conformity; or by such a man, such a people, there is destruction, silence, endless night. Yet, one must seek to know life with the graceful moments of nature's true and generous beauty. The beauty born out of the noble suffering of seed and birth is the most sublime and natural.

Man has sacrificed the safety of values for the benign value of safety-a safety from the edged word or glance or deed of a society of conformity. Hate is the father of man's meaningful sorrows, his denials of the gifts given without figure or illusion. Where is the strength of a dream, the ambition of a goal, the optimism of a tomorrow?

But rather than dwell on what be the circumstance of this time, the question must be "why?" There is but one answer: "Hate." Yet man dares to ask: "Why is there hate?" The answer for man, for his society, is that man has denied love and/or man has been denied love. Immediately love is related to sex. Surely, there be few of society who starve for such love, either in mutual or individual physical fulfillment, or conscious or subconscious mental illusions. This time is by sex possessed. Can this fact continue to serve as an excuse to the insidious folly of the desecration of man's natural and innocent sexual functions. Man has sacrificed the safety of values for the value of safety in conformity. Man is a bastard to any life he dares to attempt. He has dared to allow his body to rule his mind. Can the fact not be seen that all physical actions are but the result of conduced mental illusions? Never let the law of nature be forgotten: "For every action there is an equal and opposite reaction."

Denial. Man must deny the comfort of conformity. How long could he otherwise pretend, or does the role replace the distinct quality of the participating individual? The good of the human heart cries, and no man dares to listen. No man will give ear for the fear of his response. Without response, life becomes as a walk in a hall of mirrors.

Presently, there is only hate within man, a supreme hate of himself, only a selfish hate out of his pity for a love he has never known or has been denied, if even by the actions of his mental illusions for conformity. Behold and see this life, this time. Be silent and listen for the cry of the heart. If man denies this life and despairs, he is lost.

Second 'Horizons' Program Unveiled

Dr. Harold Conrad, dean of academic planning, has revealed that catologues with information concerning the January New Horizons program are now available in his office.

Registration for the month-long independant study program will begin Thursday.

Originated last year by Dr. Wendell M. Patton, college president, the program is designed to supplment regular school learning.

During the month long semester break in January, students had courses for three hours credit.

Most of the work was done outside of class on the student's initiative with classtime used as a discussion period.

Elections Slated

With freshmen and sophomores wandering hopefully about campus, petitions in hand, election preparations for these two classes are underway.

Freshman class elections are for class president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, three representatives to the student legislature and one judiciary representative.

Petitions for the potential freshman candidates will be due Wed., Oct. 1 and should be turned in to Elections Committee Chairman Bill Hatchl.

Sophomore class elections are being held to fill the existing vice-presidential vacancy created by the ascension of Larry Breeden to the presidency to replace John Koven.

The campaign speeches will be held on Mon., Oct. 20 at 10 a.m. in Memorial Auditorium, and the combined class elections will be held on Oct. 22 and 23 in the student center both days.

Poles will be open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. both days.

Caufield Serves

"We'll be serving Continental breakfast from 7:45 a.m. until 9 a.m.," says Cafeteria Chief Frank Caufield.

He adds that unless more students take advantage of the prolonged meal hour, its cancelation will be necessitated.

Team Needs

An assistant basketball manager is currently being sought bt the Pnather team.

Pro pective applicants for the position are to contact Coach Bob Vaughn or Manager Ed Grrome for information about the post.

Feared 'Ruining Strip'

Short Lectures On Shultz's 'Peanuts' Cartoon Theology

While now famed cartoonist Charles Schultz was in the first stages of creating the comic strip "Peanuts," Dr. Robert Short, last Wednesday night's Memorial Auditorium speaker, was reading the cartoon and saying, "What a remarkable person this Shultz must be."

And it wasn't until at least one year after he began explicating "Peanuts" that Short finally met Shultz in the cartoonist's San Francisco home.

"I liked Shultz from the first time I met him," says Short.

"I guess I didn't expect him to be so friendly; I felt that perhaps I was ruining his comic strip and he therefore wouldn't be too receptive toward me."

According to Short, the two men have grown to be great friends, anf they feel it is uncanny how their theologies are so familiar.

"Shultz will sometimes tell me some of the ideas that he tried to present in a certain strip, but for the most part, I try to do my own work on the theology of "Peanuts"...it just so happens that we have almost the same beliefs," explains Short.

Short also says that even when Schultz does not intend to inject theology in "Peanuts" the strip lends itself to religious interpretation.

Short based Wednesday's lecture on the themes of man's cruelty and the reasons for looking to God for answers.

Capturing the audience with his own wit along with the humor in "Peanuts," Short explained to the assembled group that the one outstanding characteristic of "Peanuts" is that it has a deep meaning where other comic strips do not.

Hotdogs Take First In Tennis, Track

Gil Hyott's grimoce didn't seem to oid Delto Sig's couse.

By KEN GEY
Sports Writer

Tennis and track annual intramural events got underway last week with the Hotdogs independent team grabbing first place in both events, trailed by Pikas leading the fraternities.

In tennis men's singles, Bill Webb copped first place, and Percy Hundley snatched second.

Both men are part of the Hotdog lineup.

Rick Jensen and Dave Williams, both of them Pikas, placed third and fourth respectively.

In men's doubles, the Hotdogs again grabbed first place.

Intramural track meet placements were:

100 yd. Nick Perlozzo (Hotdogs)

440 yd. Don Hickey (Theto Chi)

880 yd. Rick Ross (Piko)

880 relay (Hotdogs)

hurdle Rick Stephens (Piko)

shotput Mork Gebicke (Hotdogs)

highjump George Jones (Hotdogs)

Webb, dubbed "athletic director of the independants' intramurals" by colleagues, after the events explained that the Hotdogs have been top dog for several years.

"The best players are usually pooled on that team," he explains.

Webb says that there have been several additional teams put on the independant roster this year.

"One of them is a group that calls itself the 'McCulloch Roaches'," says Webb.

He explains that they are not to be confused with another team with the name "Roaches."

According to Webb, the McCulloch Roaches are predominately freshmen.

"They ought to be a pretty good outfit," Webb says.

Webb says that his job is to assign players to various teams and generally coordinate independants' intramurals teams.

He points out a rule instituted this year allowing team trophies to be awarded, where appropriate, to independant teams.

"Before this year," states Webb, "only fraternities got team trophies."

Gaines Named Designer Of Chapel States 'No Plans Formed Yet'

One further step in the acquisition of a chapel for High Point College has been taken as President of the College Wendell M. Patton announces the appointment of an architect to complete plans for the structure.

Henry L. Gaines was appointed last week by Patton as chapel architect.

Gaines has been described by Patton as a"a man with considerable experience in church and chapel designing."

Gaines is a member of the firm Six Associates, Incorporated, of Asheville.

"I'm really happy about the prospect of designing High Point College's first chapel," says Gaines about planning the building.

Commenting on particulars, Gaines states, "We're still up in the air as to the type of chapel that should be built.

"Should we stay with the style of architecture that High Point has got, or should we go sort of contemporary, more modern?

"I'm a somewhat older architect, so I guess I'm prone to prefer traditional styling." says Gaines.

"The final decision is up to the building committee, though," he adds.

Gaines says he hasn't got any special spot in mind for the pending structure.

"We've first got to decide whether to put it right there by the roadway to let all passers-by know that High Point is a church related school, or to tuck it into campus so that the students have a secluded spot for reverence and that sort of thing."

"I guess the nearest thing we've done to High Point is the Presbyterian Church in Lexington." he says commenting on other structures Six Associates have designed.

He adds that his firm is also designing the chapel of the divinity school at Duke University.

Gaines states that he hopes to make an appointment with Patton to visit the High Point College campus sometime later this week.

Soon to be replaced, Lindley Chapel has served two decades.

Bygone Days

Lindley Chapel Served For Classes, Weddings

Lindley Chapel in a tiny blue room on second floor Roberts Hall with ten pews and seating space for approximately 60 people for the past 20 years has served as High Point College's only formal worship area facility.

Remodeled in 1949, the chapel was rennovated from the space originally designed for classroom use.

During the past several years, brief worship services have been conducted once or twice a week by the Student Christian Association with sporadic and sparse attendance from the student body.

Previous to S.C.A. sponsorship, the Inter-Fraternity Council held the services, along with various other campus organizations which acted as sponsors from time to time.

At present, the chapel's usage is increased by commission as a meeting room by a few college clubs, Alpha Phi Gamma journalism fraternity in particular.

At least two weddings have been performed within Lindley Chapel's austere walls.

In August of this past summer, Miss Marilyn Hull was wedded to Marty Strulis.

Last spring, Miss Beverly Deal, the college's alumni executive secretary, was married to J. L. McCabe.

A deaconess was ordained in Lindley Chapel in 1957.

The Chapel was named in honor of Dr. Percy Lin Lev who came to the college in its early history to teach religion.

He also served as the first academic dean and as a dean of students before his death in 1954.

Pope Explains Exam's Necessity

"Any senior who plans to enter graduate school or law school must take either the Graduate Record Examination or the Law School Examination of the Educational Testing Service (ETS)," says Dr. L. B. Pope, director of guidance and counseling.

Pope further states that, due to a change in ETS policy, the exams will no longer be administrated on this campus.

"Students must make application to take the tests at one of the selected test-administrating institutions," explains Pope.

Testing centers in this area include Wake Forest University in winston Salem and UNC-Greensboro.

The three part examination tests verbal and quantitative aptitude, areas of natural science, social studies and humanities, and the student's major area.

Dr. David Cole, dean of the college, explains that graduate schools are most interested in the aptitude and major area scores.

Pope states that any source books of graduate and law schools, exam preparation aids, and additional information concerning the exams can be found in the guidance office.

Graduate Record Exams will be administered in October, January, February, April, and July.

November, February, April, and July dates are slated for the Law School Exam.

Specific registration and test dates, as well as information about cost and accessible test centers may be obtained from the test booklet available in Pope's office.

College Attends Area Meeting To Discuss Fund Solicitation

Four High Point College delegates attended a kick-off meeting in Winston Salem last Wednesday of a fund raising drive of the North Carolina Foundation of Church Related Colleges.

Representing the college were President Wendell Patton, Vice-President Lawson Allen, Lane Kerr, director of information services, and Miss Terry Botts, a senior psychology major.

The foundation is set up to serve as a solicitation agency through which private schools can receive industrial funds.

"It's based on a 'United Fund' approach to obtaining contributions," explains Patton.

Several committees are organized to cover various areas in North Carolina, and each group is responsible for contacting area firms for funds.

Patton was selected to serve on the Greensboro and High Point area committees chaired by Roger Soles, president of Jefferson Standard Insurance Company, and Robert Amos, president of Amos Hosiery Mills, respectively.

Patton says that contributions are divided among the 25 member colleges so that 60 per cent is distributed equally and 40 per cent is apportioned according to the enrolling of each school.

"In this next year, High Point College should receive anywhere from $26,000 to $30,000," says Patton.

According to Patton, several restrictions are imposed on the foundation's participant colleges.

"We can't actively solicite contributions from businesses," he says.

Patton siresses that this solicitation regulation in no way prohibits the college from accepting monetary gifts from industry.

Patton says that the college at this time could obtain more industrial funds through private solicitation, but that in the long range, the college will benefit through participation in the foundation's program.

Students were this year for the first time invited to meet with the foundation's regular members.

Miss Botts explains that since the idea was recently instituted, students did not have any formal statements for the assemblage.

Tony Lyerly, president of the Student Government Association of Campbell College, addressed the group, however.

"We were included because, after all, we are the ones who are to benefit from the educational monies being spent on our behalf," says Miss Botts.

"At the meeting, it was pointed out that industrial aid to private colleges is not so much a philanthropic gesture as a civic responsibility," comments Miss Botts.

She explains that in the long run, firms benefit from their contributions.

Chapel action lauded

After 45 years of existence as a school affiliated with the Methodist Church, High Point College has finally elected to show outwardly through the erection of a chapel its standing as a church related institution.

With the appointment of Henry I. Gaines as the proposed structure's architect, the college has now committed itself to the project of procuring a place of worship.

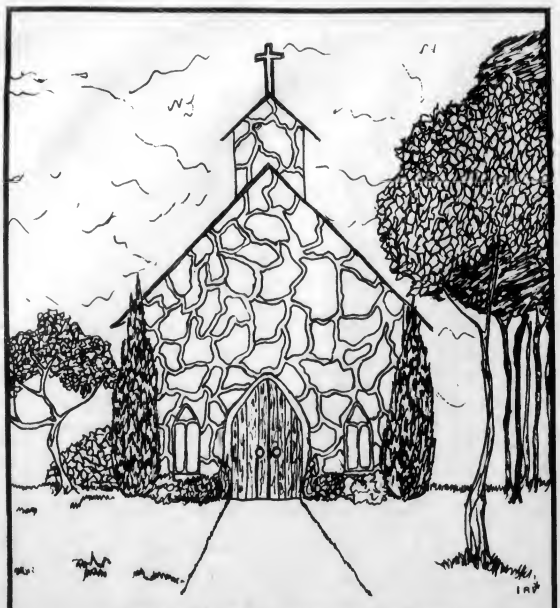

Unfortunately, the action is a bit late in coming - actually about 45 years too late - but by no means does the tardiness reduce the commendability.

For a church related college, the lack of worship facilities is a paradox of intentions if not a hypocritical public declaration.

Only the hazy shadow of doubtful student response has dulled the prospect of having a chapel.

Attendance at present Lindley Chapel services is comprised of the same few people at the few times when worship is conducted.

Whether or not the pending house of the Lord will attract more of the flocks remains to be seen, but at least an available worship center will be offered upon the completion of the new chapel.

This week Calvin Cobb contemplates elections, both campus and national.

The month of October brings with it the Freshman class elections and Sophomore class Vice-president election. These elections as well as those in the spring should be dealt with maturely. For each election there will be a great need for candidates with good qualifications. Following along this line the voters in this college should discuss all of the candidates qualifications before voting. There is a definite need for enthusiastic elections in this college as well as all colleges across the nation.

The candidates should judge their own qualifications before they run. They should decide whether or not they will have the time and dedication for the office for which they are running. The students, who elect the officials of government, should decide which candidates are best suited to goevern the students' best interests. The students are deciding on what they know about the candidate. The candidadte's platform should be definite because the electing body needs to be sure of what to expect from the candidate in the future. The candidates should not be elected because of popularity, their fraternal affiliation or because they aren't affiliated with such an organization. The candidates could have many of these qualities, but they should not be used as qualifications. These statements may seem like they should be told to a child not college students, but everyone should be reminded of these occasionally.

Cobb

Through history people have elected men who stated goals they would achieve even though the people knew they couldn't. In pre-Nazi Germany people sought an illogical way out of the depression by joining the Nazi party. This party grew from one of the smallest parties to the second largest and soon took control of Germany and it then spread blood shed through Europe. The Russians followed suit with allowing the Communists to control their government when pure Communism was impossible. The Fascists in Italy took over in a somewhat related manner. The students at High Point should not allow one clique to run its' government. A single group in control could produce power hungry officers. These officers could take liberties that would not be beneficial to the student body. The problem of over-expenditures is one "liberty" that if taken would and does hurt the student body as a whole. The money would come from the S.G.A. treasury and this would slow up other projects started by the legislature.

These things all must be taken into consideration during elections. If we as future voters and present voters in the nation's elections cannot use logical thinking in elections here, how will we do in national elections? Will we elect Nazi government officials? What would happen if the adults who want to lower the voting age came to High Point College to see if we were ready to vote on the basis of our SGA elections? Would they find an enthusiastic student body or would they find an apathetic group? I'm sure most of you know that H.P.C. is apathetic. Can't something be done about this?

Youth today are striving to lower the voting age to 18 years. One such person is my cousin and a member of my household. He is Donald Fitzhugh, a freshman in college. He recently spoke to a Republican meeting in New Jersey on lowering the voting age. He has cited things like "300 New Jersey servicemen ages 18-24 have died in Vietnam and many of these were never able to vote in an election for government. College students are more informed about the nation's problems than many of the present voters over 35.

The courts tried many people of 18 years of age. The people in the United States are in favor of lowering the voting age, but studies are being made for use as final evidence." This college may be one such test of American Young. Are we ready to take our responsibilities like men and women or are we going to disappoint the people working for us by continued apathy?

Apogee Handicapped; Shaw Blames Apathy

lter several years of diffi-lty, this year's Apogee, college erary magaine, has fallen heir a host of handicaps from past ars that seem insurmountable, t Editor Willie Shaw is undaun-d.

Plagued with problems, the 1970 pogee faces a two fold setback, ccording to Shaw.

The first and most difficult ob-acle to be surmounted is fi-nces.

Last year, the Apogee was given budget of $1,000 by the SGA. Printing costs of the 1951 Apogee amounted to $1,500 leaving Shaw with a $500 debt with which to contend.

Shaw believes he can get the necessary $500 to pay that debt, but beyond that, hopes for SGA monetary support are slight indeed.

"$1,000 is just not enough to print a quality Apogee that will meet a high degree of journalistic standards," states Shaw.

"I don't believe that the SGA will support the Apogee this year as they should," he says.

"Opposition to the literary magazine has been great among student leaders; I don't understand why that should be so but it is obvious that their values are misplaced," Shaw comments.

Another problem Shaw faces is the lack of necessary office space.

Apparently, there is no room available on campus where the Apogee can read manuscripts, type copy, and ready itself for publication.

"Every other college has offices maintained solely for the use of the campus literary magazine," states Shaw.

"High Point College has offered nothing of the sort that we can work with; however, Mrs. Shirley Rawley of the English department has been kind enough to donate a corner of her office for Apogee use," he continues.

If Shaw can overcome these problems and get the Apogee to press, he explains that the format of the Apogee will be different this year.

Among his plans for improving the magazine and giving it wider appeal will be the extention of the Apogee above the magazine's function.

Shaw hopes to have public readings of selections of the Apogee prior to publication which will arouse public interest.

He goes on to say that "in lieu of the English club's plans, the Apogee is offering speakers to discuss topics to all interested students."

In order to improve the visual appeal of the Apogee, Shaw has chosen art major Jan Henry as his associate editor in charge of selecting appropriate art work for the magazine.

Comments regarding the journalistic quality of the Apogee format will be made by Ira L. Baker, head of the journalism departmentat at East Carolina University; he has been named as the journalistic technical advisor to the Apogee.

Shaw hopes that these added features will improve the appeal and consequently the future of the Apogee.

He says, "Despite lack of interest from the SGA and administration, the Apogee will go to press on March 1, 1970 if we have to mimeograph each page and staple it together."

Fun Fund' In Full Operation

ith poverty programs abound-g in the country, High Point ollege 's Student Government ssociation has adopted a pro-am to supply penniless students ith "mad money" for only a mall service charge.

The "fun fund," previously fund-ss but now backed by SGA coin-ge, is in full operation and ready r students who feel the pull of e rising cost of living.

Nancy Nash, of the "fun fund", ates that any student needing up $25 in cash can borrow that mount from the "fun fund."

According to Miss Nash, the procedure for acquiring the temporary windfall is quite simple.

All a student need do is tell Bursar Wesley Gaynor that he would like to take out a loan from the "fun fund."

He then signs his name to a contract stating that he will repay the amount in question within 30 days or the end of the semester, whichever comes first.

The money is then his with no strings attached, no questions asked and, again according to Miss Nash, no social stigma.

"Many students used the fun fund spring semester, and they had quite a lot of fun with the money," she states.

Fraternity weekends, beach trips, special dates and activities seem to be the major uses for "fun fund" monies.

"Oh yes," is Miss Nash's immediate response to the question of whether the administration supports the concept of the "fun fund."

"In fact," she continues, "it was Mr. Dalbey's idea that started the ball rolling."

"He suggested a possible student loan fund to me, and I did the work on the proposal," remarks Miss Nash.

"I really do hope that students take advantage of the 'fun fund' because the more money that's borrowed, the larger the fund becomes due to the one dollar service charge on the loan," she says.

Assembly Adds Watson

October's required assembly rogram took on a swift change hen David Sheppard, the folk-inger contracted to appear, can-eled his engagement here and the ev. Tom Watson of Youth Un-limited was instead invited to be he speaker.

Dr. William R. Locke, chairman f the assembly and fine arts com-ittee, had to make the necessary rogram alterations last Thur-day after being notified of Shep-ard's cancellation.

Announcing his topic as "The orld in Motion," Watson says e plans to speak on the sub-ect of "what is relevant to the ollege scene today."

Watson reposts that he has spo-en on the High Point campus several times before this, but that he was disappointed in student reaction to his talks.

Prexy Amazed

"I was amazed by the crowd that showed up," says Day Student President Rich Badu about last Wednesday's day student meeting held at 10 a.m. in the auditorium.

Badu explains his surprise in part by pointing out that "posters informing the student body of the planned meet were not posted at the proper time and that announcement of the meet missed Hi-Po publication.

"I was in Michigan for a week and didn't get back until Tuesday," says Badu, "so there weren't any announcements put up until I did the work at 11 p.m. Tuesday."

Badu relates that past day student meetings yielded only a small bit of response, but that at least 35 people were present at Wednesday's gathering in spite of pouring rain.

"We'd like to invite a speaker as a day student project," says Badu, "but our hands are tied unless we get some money."

Present day student funds are judged to be about $15.

Harriers Sweep First Victory At WFU

Wake Forest University was the scene for High Point College's first meet and track victory of the season as the cross country team defeated Wake Forest by a score of 23-34, last Wednesday.

Wayne Hagenbuch of Wake Forest placed first with a time of 30:27 for the five and a quarter mile course.

High Point College followed closely behind to make a clean sweep of second, third, and fourth, and fifth places with Rich Litchford (30:34), Jon Werner (30:51), Mike Johnson (31:53), and Gene Munger (32:00) taking those respective slots.

According to Assistant Coach Bill Carter, Coach Bob Davidson was "extremely pleased" with the results.

Carter states that the victory for HPC harriers was doubly impressive in that those top four runners from HPC were all freshmen.

"This meet at Wake Forest was won by freshmen, and for many of them, this was their first five mile course in college competitions," states Carter.

With the freshmen forming a solid basis for the corss country team, Carter and Davidson are looking to the future.

"We'll be facing some tough competition this year, but that win at Wake Forest will really boost team spirit," Carter continues.

"I think we can look forward t fantastic season."

Some of the teams providing HP with that tough competition ar Davidson College and Maryla University.

HPC will face those two teams a tri-meet at North Carolina Sta University Saturday, October 1

The next opponent faced by HP will be Appalachian on October

Football Season Kicks Off; One GDI, Three Frats Win

Pika Ron Slingerman had plenty of time to complete passes to his able receivers.

It was a physically brutal game as can be attested to by David Zenns.

Zenns was playing standout defense for Pika until he sprained his ankle and resultantly wound up in a cast.

Bob Nichols played a stellar game on both offense as quarterback and defense as linebacker.

Nichols had two fleet-footed receivers in Chip Eisele and Dennis Bowley, both of whom caught passes for touchdowns.

The powerful Theta Chi defense held the Blackjacks scoreless.

Eisele and Don Hickey never let the other team behind them so they would have a chance to get a touchdown.

On Thursday, the upset of the week occurred when the McCulloch Roaches overturned the preseason favorites, the Hotdogs, 8-0.

The Hotdogs had been leaning heavily on baseball team members who couldn't show because of a baseball game that afternoon with Belmont Abbey.

However, the same went for the underdog Roaches who were minus their all-state tackle and first string quarterback.

The Roaches got a touchdown late in the first half, but were unable to score the extra point.

Delta Sigs scramble to down the Defense.

With three minutes to go in the game, the Roaches defense cornered the Hotdog quarterback in his own end zone for a safety.

From there the Roaches were home free.

Charlie Gloff engineered his team over the well-named Defense team.

He seemed to have a hard ti getting started, but once motion, there was no doubt of t outcome.

The defense was tough w Tommy Tompkins standing out the defense as he tamper with the Delta Sig offens've afternoon.

Facilities For Campus Given New Projection

Additional campus facilites have been planned for High Point College. A "Snack Shop" where students will be able to purchase eats at night was begun Oct 27, 1969 with a ground breaking ceremony.

The shop will serve two purposes: the snack bar on the first floor and a garage for maintenance vehicles in the basement.

Costing approximately $17,000, the new building will serve the students until the completion of the proposed Student Union building. Construction is expected to be completed in two months.

Once the students are housed in the new union, the Shop will be turned over to the Maintenance Department for an expansion of their shops.

The Student Union building is one of the foremost concerns of the college planners. Yet monies, which can be borrowed for campus construction with consideration to the nature of a building's use, has caused other projects to be brought forth for discussion.

Preliminary construction plans for an addition to the library have been submitted to Pres. Patton. Finding certain faults with the drawings, Patton sent the plans back to the architects for additional work.

With discussion of the building of the Student Union and the addition to the library, consideration has been given to the progress of the chapel for the campus.

Although monies and designs have been readied, a sight for the structure has not been found. Once this decision has been made, construction will begin.

One of the more interesting projects is the aspect of a swimming pool for the campus. Funds have been donated, but the remainder of the money needed is yet to be raised.

The donor's request was for the construction of an olympic size pool with galleries and dressing facilities. The total amount needed for the project considerably exceeds the amount of the gift.

Official Greetings

A special greeting to the parents of our students who are on campus this week-end! It is great to have you!

We hope to work even closer with you in providing the environment you want for your son or daughter. In order to do this, you, as parents, must have first-hand information on the College and then you must share with us your suggestions, ideas, and recommendations. So please make use of this opportunity to meet the faculty and staff, to see the classrooms and labs, visit the Library, eat in the Cafeteria, and chat with other students.

We want you to know us - good and bad. We want you to help us keep improving!

Students Must Pay

1970-71 Tuition Climbs Higher

An increase in tuition of about $300 for the 1970-71 academic year has been announced by Pres. Wendell Patton.

The rise in cost was related to the parents of students by a presidential letter.

Patton cited the reasons of the increase as ". . .rising costs of operation, particularly in the cost of food, labor, and maintenance, coupled with the absolute necessity of increasing faculty salaries and continuing our recruiting program to obtain finer and stronger faculty members. . . ."

An increase in tuition was not the only means considered to meet the rising costs. "We have endeavored to raise as much money from sources other than student charges as possible, and we will continue this. But in the meantime, this increase was necessary if we are to continue the quality institution that you expect."

Increases listed include: tuition $150, general fees $50, student activities fee $1, board $50, health service $10, and out-of-state student fee $100. Dormitory fees increased according to their facilities.

Patton singled out the increase in the out-of-state student fee by stating: "The out-of-state fee is not designed to be a penalty in any sense of the word, but represents the per student supplement that we are receiving from the North Carolina Methodist Conferences, which they want directed toward students within their Conference boundaries."

At present there are 1131 students enrolled in the college. Out of this number 587 are from North Carolina. Tar Hill Methodist number 295; out-of-state Methodist count 211.

Earl G. Dalbey, Business Manager of the college, when asked concerning the increase of tuition remarked that High Point College is still the "best buy in Carolina."

In addition, Dalbey added logic to the controversy of low tuition in state-supported colleges and universities by stating that the state can raise taxes, but the college can only raise tuition to keep up.

In Dalbey's view the increase was necessitated by the 9% increase in college operational expenses.

Regardless of reasons or causes, tuition for the 1970-71 academic year will be increased.

EDITOR'S COMMENT

With this issue of The Hi-Po, the newspaper will cease publication for the remainder of the 1969 semester. This action has been necessitated by several factors which could not continue to go unchecked. First, the financial status of The Hi-Po is very poor. At the advent of this semester, the newspaper was faced with a deluge of debts incurred by a previous editor. After attempting to pay off these accounts, The Hi-Po does not have adequate funds to continue publication without amounting greater debts. Even today there are hundreds of dollars which this paper must pay.

In an effort to rectify and to assess the financial situation of this publication, I have entrusted the paper to the Faculty Committee on Publications, I have released all financial records, present and past, to the Business Manager of the college, and I have asked for a vote of confidence in my editorship, if I am to retain the position of editor-in-chief. Perhaps there be those who think that my actions are unjustified, that all that is important of a newspaper is to be printed, that old problems should never be addressed with possible solutions.

I will not subjugate this newspaper to the course upon which she is embarked. The destination is not only bankruptcy for The Hi-Po, but destruction for any person who attempts to stear this ghost ship. Before even this single issue could be made ready, many obstacles had to be surmounted. With the aid and advice of David Steves, who with his return brought back many exiled staff members, and Ted Belch, The Hi-Po was able to recover her dignity. No longer does a banner of vanity and false pride fly beneath the masthead; the phrase, "The Voice of the Students," has been returned to the proper position of stating the sole purpose of this newspaper.

When the concerns and interests of the students are denied, when the welfare of the campus community is jeopardized, when individuals are oppressed by tyrannical edicts and misconceptions, there is first the nausea of hate and then the cancer and slow death from uninterest and total disregard. Resurrection and a re-instatement of proper health cannot be accomplished in a week, in a semester, nor in a year. Realistically, there are no cures; there is only a cessation of pain.

I cannot destroy the ghosts of this office from years past which haunt me and my staff daily. But when the investigation of The Hi-Po is completed, when there are no burdens of debt to encumber the progress of this newspaper, then The Hi-Po will be given to the students for the presentation of news and opinions relevant to their campus life and activities.

With this issue of The Hi-Po "the voice of the students" has been expressed. What animosities which once existed between the Student Government Association, the Student Union, the student body and The Hi-Po have been settled. But I cannot know if I have succeeded in my endeavors unless each student expresses himself to The Hi-Po. As stated previously, I will remain as editor only if I can receive a vote of confidence. Indeed, my ideas of journalism are alien to those which have preceeded me. But I hope to be an artist of conscience, rather than reason. I do not and will not function in the shadows of ghosts and their past accomplishments. I seek no honors, no awards. If "The Voice of the Students" is heard and understood, then I have succeeded; the paper has succeeded in being a vehicle of campus communication.

Values Endangered

The management of a college's business affairs require many talents and attitudes. Regardless of the issues which arise, the person in charge of business affairs must stand for the best interest of the college and its community. When The Hi-Po becomes only an instrument which yields favorable impressions on visitors, when Apogee is denied its very foundation for continued existence, i.e. monies and an office, a condition of poor management has arrived which must be checked and corrected.

When has the position of an administrator, and educator becomes one of treating vital campus communications flippantly? Have the forces of materialism and positional opportunity necessitated that The Hi-Po and Apogee must suffer.

There is one administrator who has remarked that he is unconcerned with the fate of the newspaper as long as there is a paper to impress parents. There is one administrator who by budget guidance and office allocation has denied life to the literary magazine. Is this campus being molded for a Philistia? There are several cardinal evils which can destroy the good and happiness of a minority already oppressed by a majority: materialism and selfishness are two such evils.

How long is the administration to allow a new value to be placed on education? How long before the sciences totally press the arts into darkness. The newspaper is shut down; the literary magazine is uncertain of the continuance its existence. If these arteries are blocked, if they are destroyed, a portion of this campus' body will have died, and High Point College will be as a cripple.

I address Dr. Patton and concerned faculty members and concerned students. Let your voice be heard. Speak out against the forces of materialism which are endangering the health and freedom of our liberal arts education. There will first come the silent nausea of distain and regret, then the silence of spiritual death in despair. Be there a purpose in your presence administration, faculty, students?

Dear Mr. Shaw:

Yesterday afternoon I attended the fall meeting of the High Point College Board of Trustees on the campus. After the business session of the Board of Trustees, the Student Government Association invited those Trustees who could remain to meet with students in the Student Center. Several members of the Board of Trustees, including myself, took advantage of their kind invitation.

I spent over one and one-half hours talking with a dozen students of High Point College. I was tremendously impressed with their intelligence and sincerity. Their goals and objectives were well defined and well focused. I found the students well informed and desirous of being meaningfully involved in the issues of our time. I found this opportunity to visit with the students so stimulating that I was reluctant to terminate my visit.

I am a member of the Board of Visitors at Emory University and Duke University and have the opportunity of visiting many university and college campuses and engage in dialogue with students throughout the United States.

In the context of this perspective, I sincerely believe that the group of students that I visited with on Wednesday afternoon represented the finest of the youth in America today and, not so incidentally, I believe that on the whole the American youth of today is the finest that any civilization has ever produced.

I am honored to be a member of the Board of Trustees of an institution with the caliber of young people reflected in your student leaders. I trust I may be able to faithfully fulfill my obligation as a member of the Board of Trustees in such a way that the students of High Point College may be provided an atmosphere wherein they can be involved in meaningful learning.

Warm personal regards.

Sincerely,
William R. Henderson

Dear Mr. Carle:

You were kind to send me a copy of the resolution passed by the Student Government Association of High Point College regarding the war in Vietnam. I commend you and your fellow students for your thoughful statement on the war and for the responsible manner in which you have presented your views.

Since your generation is the one most immediately effected by the war, it is appropriate that you should concern yourselves with how best we can reduce our involvement in it. At the same time your expression of concern that such views be expressed without disruption of orderly processes is a mark of maturity with which you have approached this critical issue.

I congratulate you on your views and your behavior.

Cordially,

House of Representatives

Dear Mr. Carle:

Thank you for the letter, along with a copy of the resolution on Vietnam adopted by The Student Government Association, which you sent me in behalf of the students of High Point College.

I commend you on your efforts to act responsibly and seriously on a matter of such concern to all Americans. Your advocacy both of reasonable troop withdrawals in Vietnam rather than an immediate and complete recall regardless of the consequences and of student discussions rather than disruptive methods of expressing your opinions are rational and contructive proposals.

I agree completely with the statements made in your resolution and, like you, I think that now our proper course is to transfer military responsibility to South Vietnamese forces as rapidly as they are able to assume it and at the same time to continue to seek an acceptable peace agreement in Paris.

You may be interested to know that I have recently decided to co-sponsor, with many other Senators, a resolution introduced by Senator Dole which calls on North Vietnam and the National Liberation Front to enter serious negotiations to end the war. The provisions of the resolution ask for fexibility in attitude by the North Vietnamese toward the negotiations in Paris, free elections in South Vietnam without a prior Allied surrender, and the release of information concerning, and the assurance of humane treatment for, men held by the North Vietnamese as prisoners of war.

I feel that Congress should have a greater voice in deciding on foreign commitments than has been the case in the past and on that basis I supported a resolution recently adopted by the Senate for that purpose. I hope very much that this resolution and subsequent actions will establish a policy which will help keep us out of future Vietnams.

Again thanking you for writing me, and with all best wishes for a productive school year,

Sincerely,
B. Everett Jordan

Dear Mr. Carle:

Thank you for your letter of recent date in which you advise of the position taken by The Student Government Association of High Point College with regards to the Viet Nam conflict.

I commend your Student Government for what I consider to be an intelligent and mature manner in which to observe the so-called moratorium. I have deplored the war in Viet Nam since its inception. However, I do not think it would be wise for the United States to now surrender all allegiance to its former commitment, and I support the President's earnest and strenuous efforts to bring about an honorable peace.

With all kind wishes, I am
Sincerely yours,

Guest Salvadorian Espies Conflict With Honduras

By DAVID STEVES

The Southern Furniture Marketing Exposition, held in High Point each year, has attracted furniture men from near and far, and this year's is no exception; McCulloch Hall was guesting a group of manufacturers from El Salvador.

These men, while occupied primarily with the furniture market, were very concerned with the impression that the conflict between El Salvador and Honduras in Central America has made on the American public.

As touted in the world's press, the war started over the result of a soccer match and escalated over a border dispute.

This, the Salvadorans feel, is massively incorrect; the dispute began over Honduras' expulsion of several thousand Salvadoran laborers living in Honduras. The spectacle of all these people arriving at the border with nothing but the shirts on their backs (the Honduras government confiscated all their property) and without their families (many were married to Honduran women who were forced to remain in Honduras) has been a major factor in uniting the people of El Salvador against Honduras.

Reynaldo Lopez, a University of California graduate, said, "El Salvador is the smallest country in Central America; we could not wait for Honduras, which is three times our size, to attack us--we had to move first."

The public relations man for the group, a Californian named Martin Sudot, who has lived in El Salvador for the past ten years, is of the opinion that the Honduran government, headed by Lopez Arellano, has deliberately fostered the picture of El Salvador as a neo-imperialist power in Central America.

"It is the opinion of the American community in El Salvador," he explained, "that Arellano has spent a great deal of money 'buying' the press representatives in Central America; that is, they have deliberately misrepresented the facts."

Reynaldo Lopez looked at HPC during his recent visit.

One of the other members of the group immediately broke into the conversation and in thickly-accented English said, "Do not mention the name of Lopez Arellano in my presence; it leaves a bad taste in my mouth."

The acts perpetrated by a Honduran terrorist group known as the "mancha brava" have fostered a great hatred between the citizens of the two countries, and there is already talk in El Salvador about what form of reprisal their government will take.

According to Sudot, this reprisal is only being contemplated because of the inactivity of the Organization of American States, which is supposed to be the Western Hemisphere's peace-keeping organization.

With the OAS dormant and the Hondurans closing off El Salvador's only route to their biggest market, Guatemala, military action is looming up fast as the last alternative.

As to who would win such a war: both sides have a negligible navy and only a 'pocket' air force, leaving the conflict on the ground. Both sides have been trained by American MAG's (Military Assistance Groups) and Special Forces A-Teams.

The crucial differences, then, lie in strength, morale, and armament.

The Honduran army outnumbers the Salvadoran by three to one, but has low morale levels, which may balance out this superiority. The Hondurans are, also, armed with a conglomeration of weapons from all over the world, which begets logistics problems, while the forces of El Salvador are standardized, using the NATO G-3 weapons series.

The Student Government Association of High Point College wishes to welcome parents to our campus this November 1. Parents Day is an excellent opportunity to discover the workings of High Point College. The faculty, administrators, and students will aid in helping your better understanding of the processes of this institution.

The students' role is expanding and becoming larger. Like students on other campuses, we seek a larger share of the responsibility of governing student life and larger role in determing the policies of the college. The Student Government Association is in support of students gaining a larger share of the responsibility in determining the policies under which we must operate.

This fall, students are being placed on several faculty committees which have great influence in the college. The students are also concerned about the judicial proceedings offered students, particularly women students. Changes are being sought in these procedures by the Student Government Association at present. The highest priority of students is the expanded Student Union which will house lounging, recreational, and cafeteria facilities. The list of student priorities also includes a campus radio station and a swimming pool. These three facilities will greatly aid in student comfort and enjoyment, which are in tremendous lack as of now.

Concerning the Vietnam Moratorium on October 15, High Point College students held classroom discussions on the war. No demonstrations were held; rather, students held seminars in which the war was debated at length. This constructive approach, rather than destructive approach, was quite successful here receiving the favorable attention of the press and of the 6th district's congressional delegation. Plans for November are at present incomplete but will, no doubt, be in the same vein.

These have been just a few of the activities and plans of High Point College students. You, as parents, should speak with as many students as possible to learn of student opinions. You can help aid High Point College by offering your views personally to students on the campus and later in writing to President Patton and to me.

From October 1968 through June 1969, twenty-four American college juniors and 1 attended the University of Besanzon, Besanzon, France. Although we were prepared for the profound differences in the French and American educational systems, we were totally unprepared for the "psycho-political" repercussions that lingered in the university's halls from the previous May Revolution.

As the 10,000 French students began to arrive during the last days of October, a certain emotional and loud agitation arrived with them. This agitation was felt as bearded young revolutionaries clad in green, Castro-like military jackets, glared at us Americans with contempt. The agitation was heard in outbursts of shouts and chants in unison of "L'ABOLISSEMENT DE LA BOURGEOISIE!" The agitation was seen in a highly organized distribution of printed propaganda from an underground press. The university walls were plastered with posters of pornography. Between corridors quotes by Marx, Lenin, Mao-Tse Tung, and Che Guevera dripped in bold, but appropriate, blood-red paint. Notices to join "La Comite d' Action" were distributed daily in the lunch lines. Lectures were periodically interrupted by bands of Leftists who charged into classrooms proclaiming strikes and barricading entrances. For the majority of us twenty-five Americans from small, peaceful, smoothly-run colleges, this was our first eye-witness account of the Communist Revolution in action.

Obvious from the beginning, the "Opposition" at the University of Besanzon was Communist-controlled. There were, of course, only about two or three Communist-trained agitators at the school, but the influence which they exerted was tremendous. The professional "rabble rousers" were experts at creating instantaneous demonstrations. Parading about in Latin American - revolutionary attire, they easily incited student crowds to shouts of revolt--like Pavlov's dog! This psycho-technique is one of the Communist's most effective phases of their "divide and conquer" strategy, which they employ universally.

The International Communist Conspiracy has launched a major offensive against the youth. The irony is that the student-victims blindly serve as stooges for the Red Web. In France there is La Comite d' Action; in America there is the Students for a Democratic Society. Regardless of suriace pretention, these Communist fronts have identical motives and they operate on the same technique. Where Red agents find no discontent, they create anarchy. In 1968 Columbia University and Paris, where all French Revolution will begin and end, were the victims of Red terror.

Without surprise, the Communist boast of their unrelenting activities and One-World goal. What is suprising is that so many either fail to listen or just fail to take them seriously. The French have ceased to listen, because now they need only to watch. As Moscow's iron tentacles tighten in France to finally smother "La Marseillaise," her red fist continues to pound crumbling America.

Brockwell Concerned With Tuition Increase

With an increase in student fees for the 1970-71 academic year, questions have been raised as to the merit and justification of the raise in monies.

Benjamin Brockwell, Director of Admissions, between recruiting trips to the North, expressed his concern and anxiousness over the increase.

Brockwell stated: "It will probably hurt most in North Carolina in getting in-state students. State supported schools are cheaper."

But the raise in fees will not make High Point College the most expensive school. Brockwell continued by adding that High Point "will still be cheaper than private schools."

"Do we have facility wise," Brockwell queried, "what it is going to take to justify a 'large' fee from out-of-state students?"

Brockwell's concern was centered around the need for better dorm facilities for freshmen. He reported that his office has lost several promising applicants after they had espied McCulloch Dorm.

In addition, Brockwell cited the need for a snack bar at night for students without transportation off the campus. Entertainment on more than just sundry weekends, fall sports to maintain student interest and pride in the college, and recreational facilities beyond two rooms in the present Student Center were also listed as areas of needed attention.

Brockwell projected that if these needs are not met, the college would become more of a suitcase college than at present. Besides, "All these things should tie into the cost," he remarked.

As Director of Admissions, Brockwell forecasted what will be required of his office.

"With only two staff members," speaking of himself and Robert Wells, Director of Financial Aid, who does recruiting, "we will have to travel year round to keep enrollment at its present level."

To relieve the strain, Brockwell recommended the need for an additional staff member.

Business Manager Earle Dalbey and Director of Maintenance watch ground breaking for the "Snack Shop" which is being constructed for night time treat for students.

Conrad Plans Trip To Canada

Dr. Harold E. Conrad of the High Point College History Department has announced his plans for the January 1970 mini-mester.

The itinerary of his study-travel seminar revolves around a trip to Canada and will include tours of Montreal, Niagra Falls, Toronto, and Ottowa.

During the two-week tour visits will be made to various business centers, art galleries, and seats of government in the canadian provinces.

Speaking about the course, Dr. Conrad said, "Students taking the course will earn three semester hours credit, and I am planning to grade on the pass-fail basis." He estimates the cost of the program to be $200.00 per student, and adds "it should be worth every penny."

All students interested in taking the course are urged by Dr. Conrad to contact him no later than November 15.

Library To Keep New Hours

At the request of students, Miss Marcella Carter has arranged to keep Wrenn Memorial Library open Sunday evenings 7-10 p.m. The library's being open on these evenings is to accomodate the students by extending the services of the library for a longer period.

The library staff has discovered (attendance records have been kept since the first Saturday in September) that students are not finding Saturday a convenient time to use the library. Hereafter, the library will open at 10 a.m. instead of at 9 a.m. and will close at 5 p.m. as usual.

Students' suggestions and expressions are appreciated by the library staff. Miss Carter stated that she and the other library personnel are most anxious to meet the student library needs.

SAM Elects Rejuvenating

The campus chapter of the Society for Advancement of Management has been rejuvenated with the election of new officers. They include: Royce M. Flynt, president; Butch Lipe, vice president; and Gary Austin, secretary-treasurer.

The organization, which is sponsored by Prof. J. W. Robinson of the Business Dept., has planned several field trips for the semester.

Hornsby Recuperating

The surgery which necessitated Miss Carolyn Hornsby's absence was performed October 19. She afterwards returned to her home in Lake Charles, Louisiana, and is reportedly doing well. She is expected to return before final exams.

Robinson To Attend Textile Talks

Representing High Point College at the 8th annual W. F. Fancourt Memorial Seminar will be Prof. J. W. Robinson and Gilbert Hyatt of the Business Department, and B. G. Bowman of the Chemistry Department.

First started in 1962, these Seminars are designed to recruit college and business school students into all areas of the textile field by showing them the diverse career opportunities open to them.

In an effort to bring recruitment to an up to date person-to-person level of contact, students and executives will take part in discussions on the various aspects of the textile industry, its relationship to the economy, and the wide spectrum of career opportunities and advancements it offers young people of today.

Robinson Replacing Speech Prof.

Replacing the absent Miss Carolyn Hornsby is Mrs. Nancy Robinson, the wife of Mr. J.W. Robinson of the Business Department of the College.

Mrs. Robinson is a graduate of Duke University. She continued her studies at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in New York. She accumulated acting experience with the Stella Adler Professional Drama Group for one year and has taught Drama, Speech, English, and Math in secondary schools.

Apogee To Get Manager

Apogee, the campus literary magazine, has begun to receive materials for consideration for the 1970 printing. The main source of materials has proven to be the creative writing seminar held weekly, Thursdays, 3:30 p.m. in the Seminar Room of Cooke Hall.

Dr. C. E. Mounts, advisor, and Willie Shaw, editor-in-chief, have lead the discussions in reviewing the materials presented by the aspiring artists.

Shaw requested that all students interested in submitting creative works to the Apogee should submit them to either Dr. Mounts or him. The deadline for acceptance of materials will be March 1, 1970.

In order to devote the necessary time to The Hi-Po, Shaw has appointed Jan Henry as managing editor. Also, the reading committee membership is now being drawn up.

The theme of the 1970 Apogee will be "Why?" In trying to explain the theme, Shaw remarked: "I do not believe that the question 'why?' can be answered, save in a personal sense. But I wish the writers to address themselves to the questions of life which cause the conditions of which cause the conditions which inspire them to write."

"I am not seeking definitions of love, hate, death, evil, or good; I wish the artist to remark on the qualities of these human elements and tell him 'why' they must exist to become a part of his life."

After Two Months

Frosh Lose Enchantment

By MARCIA LITTLE

The Hi-Po conducted an informal sidewalk survey of some High Point College freshmen after two months at college.

Attempting to be cross-sectional, The Hi-Po unearthed the following comments.

Dave Solomon, from Rockville, Md., found the students to be friendly, and was surprised to see so many students from the north.

Social life has proven to be a disappointment to Solomon, mainly because HPC is a "suitcase" college in that the majority of students leave on weekends.

He also feels the Student Government definitely ought to provide more entertainment for students, such as good movies, more bands, and concerts.

Unless a freshman is lucky enough to have a car social life on weekends is very meager according to Solomon.

He thinks that some of the regulations on campus should be abolished. "Other schools allow girls in boy's rooms, and vice versa, girls have no curfews, and alcohol is allowed on campus; something similar at HPC would not be too drastic of a step."

"If alcohol were allowed on campus," said Solomon, "then kids wouldn't have to go out to drink, and there might not be so many car accidents on weekends. I mean, there is drinking on and off campus."

Joan Kirchgessner, from Succasunna, N. J., feels that going to HPC is "the biggest waste of time."

In her opinion, the sororities are "formalized cliques" and when one is a member of a clique, it is difficult to meet different types of people. To her, the fraternities are "just as bad as the sororities."

The college, itself, definitely does not have enough to offer in activities.

Pat Dutton, from Neward, Del., expected more of a southern atmosphere than is present, but likes HPC very much.

She expected to be given more privileges, she feels that once in college, students should be able to make their own decisions.

Miss Dutton is opposed to certain things in the demerit system, especially curfews--"I dislike the ten demerits for the first five minutes, and one demerit for each minute after. I think girls should be given 'grace minutes' to get in."

"I also think the library should be open more," said Miss Dutton. "But the campus is really beautiful, the kids are great, and I do love it here."

Pete Uchno, from South River, N. J., expected the Board of Trustees to be more concerned with providing entertainment for the students. "I mean, why build a Chapel before a Student Center? How many kids are going to pray every day? A new Student Center is needed more," He stated, "the administration is undemocratic about letting students decide what they want. The administration expects us to respond like adults, but we are not treated as adults."

In summary he stated, "My life at High Point College has proven to be somewhat disappointing. Disappointing because the college offers no social life, no cultural and intellectual atmosphere, and it appears to me that the administration is totally indifferent to the needs of the student body. Personally, I have considered transferring to another school that offers more social life than HPC."

Debbie Searing found out about HPC through her guidance counselor at her night school in Livingston, N.J. She has decided that "students have to find their own entertainment off campus, instead of on campus where it should be.

"The kids seem fairly easy to me," she said, "but you're introduced to somebody one day, and when you see them the next day, it seems that they don't know you."

Mike Pfaff, from Winston-Salem, N. C., says, "The kids are great, very friendly."

Agreeing with the other interviewed students, Mike Pfaff says, "The weekends are a real drag. The school itself doesn't sponsor enough activities and if you don't belong to a fraternity, there's nothing to do."

The principal objection raised by these six freshmen seems to be to the lack of school activities.

Their collective opinion is that the school is responsible for providing social functions, and has failed to do so.

The second main objection seems to be to school regulations curtailing freedom for the students as young adults.

Six seniors and one junior have been chosen from High Point College to be listed in the published volume, "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

The announcement was made this past week by Mr. Robert Phillips, Director of Student Personnel and Dean of Students.

The selections were made by a committee of ten persons composed of five faculty members and five students. Approval of the honored students was given by the national organization of "Who's Who."

The main criteria for a student's selection to "Who's Who" consist of five areas of contribution and achievement during the college career.

The areas are: Leadership in the classroom and in campus organizations, notable academic achievements and honors, revealed citizenship through civic and politic activities, participation in varied extracurricular activities, and future potentiality for aiding mankind.

Each of the five areas has a possibility of twenty points on the critique of the committee judges. With ten committee members, each nominee has a chance of accumulating 1000 points. A student must accumulate 800 points for selection.

"Who's Who" is printed annually and includes listings of students chosen from schools in each state in the Union, the District of Columbia, and several countries in North and South America.

Play Promises Mysteries

"Have you ever played a nameless menace?" was Lynda Long's answer to a question about "The Birthday Party," the fall production of the Tower Players for which she is assistant director and stage manager.

Mrs. Carolyn Rauch, director and drama professor for the Fine Arts Department, commented on the play, saying, "Come Friday or Saturday night and see if you understand it."

Cryptic remarks are somewhat in order for this play, penned by Englishman Harold Pinter, who wrote "Party" in 1958.

He seems to be concerned with no political causes or social concerns, but instead with communicating a sense of being through a series of patterns on stage.

In "The Birthday Party" there is maintained throughout a superficial naturalism to the environment, when all the while the motivating forces are running amok with the futile lives of these characters with terror, fear, and a cold intangible horror.

There is a final implosion of mystery which releases an elemental fury for a brief moment before all return to the roles assigned them by fate.

Ginger Price, The 'sweet young thing' in last year's melodrama, plays the lead, Meg Bowles, a mothering landlady who is now much older than the belle of the ball she would like to be.

Richard Moore, a freshman, has the other major role as Stanley Weber, a musician hiding from failure who undergoes a transition from loner to maniacal berserker and is finally driven by the seething mysteries to the state of a catatonic fool.

The others in the cast are Petey Bowles, Meg's husband, played by junior David Springer, and Lulu, played by freshman Denise Gregorio.

Pat Austin, a senior as is Miss Price, plays one of the two assassins with Pat Gibson, a junior from High Point.

There is some fine talent represented by the actors in this production--which may very well be the talk of the dorms...for arguments," said Mrs. Rauch.

"The Birthday Party" is to be presented Friday and Saturday nights in Memorial Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. on October 31 and November 1.

David Springer and Virginia Price rehearse for Pinter's "The Birthday Party." The play is being given 8:15 p.m. tonight in Memorial Auditorium.

NBA-ABA Still Feud

By KEN GEY

As most basketball fans know, the American Basketball Association and the National Basketball Association have quarrelled continually over players changing between the two leagues.

Rick Casey was the first player to jump when he left the San Francisco Warriors for the Oakland Oaks of the ABA. Now Barry has signed back on with the Warriors because of the Oaks moving to Washington, D.C. and becoming the Capitols. Barry feels that his contract does not call for the move. The new Capitols obviously feel differently, since Barry is now under suit for breach of contract.

Other players who have switched from one team to another include Connie Hawkins from the ABA's Minnesota Pipers to the Phoenix Suns, for which he will be unable to play until the lawsuit brought by the Pipers is settled; Dave Bing, from the Detroit pistons to the Washington Capitols; Bill Cunningham of the Philadelphia 76ers, to the Carolina Cougars for the 1971-72 season--this will be met with a lawsuit also.

The latest jump attempt is that of a fellow teammate of Cunningham's, Luke Jackson, who was to follow him to the Cougars. Jackson changed his mind shortly after announcing this decision, and since that time has signed a three-year contract with the 76ers, insuring that he will be playing for no one else for at least three years.

NBA-ABA Still Feud

By Mitch Gill

At most basketball fans know, the American Basketball Association and the National Basketball Association are now operating separately, two players changing hot from the two leagues.

Bill Chaet was the first player to jump ship for both the San Francisco Warriors and the Los Angeles Lakers of the ABA. Chamberlain signed first on with the Warriors because of the Celtic owning the Philadelphia 76'ers and becoming their captain. Barry feels that he can't play with the Celtics as a whole. The star Captain is originally had differently, since Barry is not name and for himself a contract.

Other players who have switched from one team to another are Jerry West, who signed with the Los Angeles Lakers. Player to the Pioneer Boss, for which he will be known in that area. He was not bought by the Pioneers for the money, but for his basketball acumen in the Rookie Capable this consequence of the Philadelphia team. In the Cincinnati Cougars for the 1961-70 season. He will be out with a broken leg.

The team many players to sign are a fellow teammate of Cincinnati's, Lucy Jackson, who left Lucy's uniform to the Cougars, business changed his mind and he remained with the Royals. Others that have left their old organizations are Connie Hawkins from the New Jersey, leaving that he will be playing for no one else for at least three years.

Girls Take Pigskin

By KITTY ELLIS

The crisp autumn air reddened the cheeks of about seventy-five spectators as they watched the fierce-hitting sophomore and junior girls romp over the team of freshman and absent seniors by a score of 20-0 at the Woman's Recreation Association Powder Puff football game October 21.

At 8 p.m. under the lights of the athletic field, the winning, blue team comprised of mostly physical education majors kicked off to the younger, novice, white team. After three kick off attempts the ball gained enough yardage to be downed.

With a penalty called on nearly every play, announcer Jim Oman, a senior Phusical Education major, often explained the flag as "uniady-like conduct with a penalty of ten demerits."

This game of flag football was claimed by some of the rougher than the boys' intramural games.

After numerous fumbles and penalties, Ann Slaughter carried the ball over the goal giving the blue team their first touchdown. Betty Sue Hodock received a pass and ran for the extra point. Touchdown time came with two minutes remaining in the first quarter.

Freshman Delores Sterling carried the ball for a fifty-four yard run and was downed on the eight yard line. After a series of mishaps, the blue team regained possession of the ball. With three minutes remaining in the first half, halfback Ann Slaughter ran an around-the-end play to give the blue team their second touchdown. Extra point pass was incomplete.

As the freshmen team was furiously advancing toward their goal with quarterback sneaks and double reverse plays, announcer Jim Oman commented, "There's some hitting and hair pulling going on out there." With fifty-eight seconds remaining in the half and nine yards to go for a goal, yells of "Hurry up freshmen, you're gonna get wiped," could be heard. The buzzer sounded the end of the half.

The White team kicked off to the blue team to open the second half. After a series of tackles, penalties, passes and runs, quarterback Sue Wilson scored the third blue touchdown on a thirty-yard run. Betty Sue Hodock completed for the extra point making the score 20-0 against the freshmen.

The game continued in a vicious, fighting manner. One onlooker commented, "This is Powder Keg football, not a Powder Puff. Somebody lit a fuse." The remainder of the game was played with fumbles, tackles, passes and penalties. The press box kept the spectators in constant confusion by switching the scoreboard so as always showing the freshmen as favorites.

As the game buzzer sounded, happy, sad, and tired players stumbled off of the field. The freshmen feel that they played a good game. Watch out sophomores and juniors, there's talk of a rematch.

Football To Continue

"Intramural football will definitely continue for the rest of the season" is the word from Dean of Students Robert Phillips on the continuance of football in the face of a mounting casualty rate.

"Since the number of injuries has gone down there seems to be no need to stop football," said Phillips, "providing the injuries remain at the minimum they stand at now."

There had been the possibility of eliminating intramural football because of these injuries. However, with Dean Phillips' assurance, football will continue, and with the continued cooperation of all the players, the season should have an exciting finish.

Golden Child Of The Forest Green

"In farewell to the Robin"

By WILLIE SHAW

I

In the tutorial summer now graduated to virtue,
I was heard crying:

'Come from the forest, Golden Child;
Come not as a boy of five,
Come as life --- beautiful and eternal.
As a child upon my lap,
How can I love you;
How can I not love you?'

The night laughed at my deceit
And the day craddled me in sleep;
I could not cry alone forever.

After being too seasonal
I was mocked and betrayed
In lightening, wind, and rain;
And I sent kisses into the forest
To Golden Child grown afraid.

'Loving the innocence never dead, but slaughtered;
Loving the rich odours of your damp hair and body:
I would to have washed you clean with my tongue,
To have dried you with gentlest of caresses. . . .'

But from the green forest he would not come;
In the moonlight he was golden,
And the womb was empty from his rich conception.

II

His mother's pride was my envy.
We both were as strangers to his joy;
And in sharing love, the sources
Of his beginning and his end were united Against him --- Golden Child
Loved by the sun,
Hidden in the forest green.

'Is memory as soft as flesh?
So easy to bruise, so quick to heal
And the scars fading with time.

'I would to have penetrated you,
To have known the beauty of silence and vacancy,
To have fathomed the hollow of your early soul
Before the shadows of life's fantasies,
Before the web of dread and doubt
Had dressed your soul in envy and pride.

'For you to have known me,
For me to have known you
Not as a child,
But as earliest life.'

III

In the autumnal denial
My voice refused to cry.
His heart had been within my breast,
And I had felt the rhythm of his life.

'I could not hold the whole of you, Golden Child.
I could not encompass your love,
For my soul's arms are not as this world's.
To have held you to me,
I would have needed a universal grasp
Of selfish devotion and concern.
But the virtue of loneliness has found my need,
Has found my heart.'

I continue obsequiously
With only a memory of my innocence.

Come from the forest, Golden Child;
But never coming as a boy again,
I behold you, wretched and ugly
As I, too, am wretched and ugly.

The New York Rock and Roll Ensemble prepare for one of their numbers which they performed October 24, 1969.

NYRRE Reviewed

HPC Has New York Rock

By MARCIA LITTLE

On Friday, October 24, the Student Union sponsored Fall Weekend, featuring the New York Rock and Roll Ensemble.

The Ensemble's music is manily rock with underlying Baroque themes. The rhythm is very precise and varied. The mood is sometimes very heavy, but also can be very light.

The songs they performed were original, except for one--"Wait Until Tomorrow" by Hendrix. At one of their concerts in New York, Hendrix commented to them that they had done the song better than he ever had.

The transitions from fast music to slow, rock to Bach, were very smooth. Many bands have used oboes as back-up instruments in rock music, but the NYRRE is one of the first to use it as a lead instrument.

The audience turn-out at HPC on Friday night was not all that was expected to be. But the members of the NYRRE felt the response was very good.

The NYRRE played the following night at Cattawba College, and said they did not feel the audience there was as involved as at HPC. They only received one encore at Cattawba, whereas, at HPC they received three.

Helmi Koedam went to both of the concerts, and also personally met the members of the band. She said, "Their program was unreal. It was varied, and they all are so talented. As performers, they are great, and as people, they're great, also."

"The light show at HPC was really nice, it added alot to the show. At Cattawba, they had lights, but not a show--it made a big difference."

Because the turn-out on Fall Weekend was not what the Student Union had hoped, David Holton said that Fall Weekend "did not make enough money to have Tommy James and the Shondelles, the Brooklyn Bridge, and Billy Joe Roulale at Homecoming, which would have been a 7:00 p.m. to 2:00 a.m. show and dance."

Students seem to want HPC to provide more weekend entertainment, but if attendance at future school functions is as low as on Fall Weekend, this will be impossible.

If interested fraternities, sororities, and students can start petitions, showing student support, and asking for more big name entertainment, and present them to the Student Union, future programs will be considered.

. . .And in the November cool
he was alone with the leaves
---blown in exile to no where.

There was no passage of memory;
There was only the route of exile.

. . .And the wind sent another prisoner, alike and different
to his need.

November was cold
and naked. . . .
No one missed the robins.

Speaker Plans

Solons Surveyed

Unfortunately, this student unconcern may retard needed campus progress.

Previous accomplishments of the High Point College Student Legislature were enumerated in an interview with Speaker Robert Williams.

In the past, the Legislature worked to modify the dress code in order for it to better suit the student needs.

Operating in conjunction with the Executive Council, Legislature aided in making refrigerators available to dorm students.

This semester, the Student Legislature has spent a great deal of time examining the financial difficulties experienced by several student-run organizations, such as the Student Union and The Hi-Po. This action was taken to insure future monetary stability for these groups.

Williams appeared enthused by the fact that students have been added to the Student Personnel, Library, and Curriculum Committees this semester.

Committee participation has given students a greater voice in student life on campus and a chance to bring about some degree of change were needed.

Williams also explained some of the major issues and tasks that the Student Legislature will have to contend with next semester.

He said that a Tradition and Culture Committee will work to amass the history of HPC to give students something with which to identify.

The Legislature will also plan, if possible, to award a deserving student or community leader who has devoted time and effort for the benefit of the college.

The Student Personnel and Curriculum Committees will undertake in-depth students on the possible alteration of core courses and the cut system.

Williams personally would like to see more speakers on campus and monthly student forums in which students could express their views on important problems.

The greatest problem facing the Student Legislature will be the general need to adjust funds, increasing the allotment for student activities.

Student organizations, such as the Student Union, the Hi-Po, and the Apogee, claim that their present expense accounts are inadequate.

Much time and effort will be devoted by the Legislature to solving these problems.

Williams' outlook for the coming semester is one of practical optimism. He admits that much can be accomplished on this campus, but only with student support and responsible action.

Student concern will be the thermometer to indicate campus progress.

Students For Peace File Constitution

In mid-November, the Students for Peace, headed by freshmen Len Salvaggio and Bill Dunn, submitted their constitution to the Office of Student Personnel in the hope of gaining campus recognition of their organization.

Sponsored by faculty member Mrs. Shirley Ravey, Students for Peace wants "to encourage habits of original thought so that we become men and women who have the courage of our convictions and question mere conformity, and further, to recognize the integrity and dignity of human life."

In October and November, they planned moratoriums on the HPC campus in compliance with the dates set by the New Student Mobilization Committee, formerly the Vietnam Moratorium Committee, from whom they receive literature, buttons, and stickers.

No demonstrations are planned at HPC for December or January; but as soon as second semester begins, the Executive Council of the Students for Peace will begin making plans for the February moratorium.

At present, the constitution has not yet been ratified, and the Students for Peace are technically a committee under the Tower Players.

But, the co-organizers of the group say that "we will consider ourself a campus organization until we hear otherwise."

Scene...by Aquarius

The following is the first of a series of guest columns aimed at collegians that the Hi-Po is receiving from the Campus Radio Voice news service in New York City.

In I See, To Be A Verb, the upcoming paperback on the career and thinking of R. Buckmaster Fuller, "Bucky" is quoted thusly: "Getting to the moon camouflages the real goal of the space program: construction of space stations from which the military could rule the universe."

Muhammad Ali -- nee Cassius Clay, who's still the undefeated heavyweight champ -- says, "I could be a big star in movies and television today, I've been offered various things. But they're all traps. I live in a world of truth. I won't get up on this show and dance or show my teeth like Negroes do or make love to a white woman. I respect myself. I'm a star all over the black world. I rely on my God. I don't need anything else.

These observations come from Marshall (The Medium Is The Message) McLuahn: 1) The TV generation of students will continue to battle colleges (and the rest of the Establishment) until they rule them. 2) The real activists are only 14 years old now and have not reached the scene of action yet. 3) Mini-skirts are only the first step toward Instant Sex. 4) Experience is of no use in business, therefore look for a 20-year old president of IBM.

Dotson Rader (Columbia '68) S.D.S. Activist, told Campus Radio Voice correspondent Dennis McCabe: "There is very little overt sexuality in the movement. It has a kind of puritanical caste, making it different from the French and German movements. The swearing, obscenity, long hair and worker's clothes are to protect yourself against selling out."

Momism in Pop: Mama Cass, The Mothers of invention, Mother Lode, and Cat Mother and the All-Night Newsboys. And now on their latest LP it's Peter, Paul and Mummy. Oh mother!

Hip that they're on to a good thing in pushing (at last) supercars, auto makers predict there'll be drag racing in midtown stadums here within the next five years.

Instant money can be made in short-order snacks with instance iced tea mixes, presweetened and pre-flavored lemon, lime and mint. Just add water, stir and add ice. Make grilled cheese sandwiches by wrapping the bread and cheese in aluminum foil and putting your iron (set at wool) on top of each side for 1 minute.

Peter (Easy Rider) Fonda posed for some nude shots but no longer speaks to the photographer friend (female) who took them. She might at least have told him she was selling them to the New York Review of Sex. But then what's Peter got to hide?

Bob Downey, who wrote and produced Putney Swope, is having trouble raising bread for his next film project. The story's a contemporary re-telling of Jesus' return as James T. Chrysler. He speeds around in fast cars helping the poor and preaching against racial prejudice and the war in Vietnam. These actions make him many enemies. Betrayed by a follower, he's lured into a Los Angeles used car lot where he's hanged by a hate group.

New look on a New York Campus: Do-It-yourself poncho. Two bath towels, in a West Point-Pepperell jungle print, joined at the shoulders (leaving room for your head) left unjoined at the sides, worn over a body stocking, in flesh or contrasting color. For faculty, or parents sash it with a tie or a chain worn low. For intimate friends, why bother: Original and easy to wash... no ironing...nice in pairs.

his deferment and becomes I-A or I-A-O. When this occurs, he will fall back into line with draftable men in exactly the same place he would have occupied if he had not been deferred.

Many factors could greatly change the perspective on this list of birthdates. An increased number of enlistments would cut the necessary draftables to some extent.

But the most important possibility of completely upsetting the certainty of this system is the chance of increased troop withdrawals and de-esclation of the war.

It has been whispered in military circles that the war cannot continue in its present state and steady withdrawal is the only answer for settlement. And this withdrawal must come soon. If this occurs, the draft quota could be cut to 50,000-100,000 men per year, less than one-fourth the present quota.

There are great possibilities that a young man with 1-2 years of college left to complete could make it through his year of eligibility after he graduates from college with a number as low as 50-100.

Ditzler Addresses Alumni Defends Student Actions

Brian Ditzler, senior class president addressed the Greensboro Chapter of the High Point College Alumni Association last Monday night on the social concerns of students.

Speaking of today's questioning youth, Ditzler stressed that only in a few incidents had there been any sort of violence, either premeditated or spontaneous, and that these actions had been deplored by both students and adult citizens.

Citing HPC campus activities related to the question of Vietnam, Ditzler mentioned the totally peaceful actions of our Mobilization Committee and the stand taken by the Student Legislature on troop withdrawal.

Ditzler argued that many outbreaks of student violence were sparked by police discrimination against youth, and gave the example of the totally peaceful rock concerts attended by tens of thousands of students.

Todays college students, according to Ditzlers address, are alienated from religion by its hypocracy; the churches plead the necessity of living the best possible life but do practically nothing toward the improvement of living.

When questioned about the high rate of drug use among students by the audience, he replied that many young people disillusioned by society and their futile attempts to change it and turn to drugs as a means of escape.

He added that these same young people find it difficult to heed the people who counsel against drugs and use alcohol as their own escape.

Ditzler closed by bringing forth the concept that while today's youth may be idealistic, impatient, and at times without knowledge of how to achieve change, they do believe in a better country and have many well-founded and legitimate complaints.

In a later interview Ditzler said that from the audience's general reaction to his remarks, he was forced to conclude that he was regarded as entirely too impatient and idealistic, but could be forgiven because of his tender age.

Ditzler responded to this by saying, "I feel that we are all students, but of different ages."

"Students are ready to accept all the responsibility of the freedoms they receive," stated Ditzler. "A college can't be a parent and I don't think it should even try."

"There is nothing more high school-ish than a cut system or a dress code," he added.

Ditzler was generally trying to inform the alumni and the administration of the issues youth are involved in and concerned with, but was generally received with "You're young but you'll learn someday."

Ditzler replied, "I hope I never lose my idealism."

Team Teaching Plans Set; Cope Sees Advantages

Tenative plans for team teaching on an experiment basis next fall are now being made at High Point College.

The course will consist of various topics approached from the different viewpoints of each teacher.

Mr. William F. Cope of the Sociology Department noted that since many courses at HPC overlap, such a course could be quite successful and beneficial if handled properly.

Last summer, Mr. Cope did some studying on team teaching in Georgia and found that many students felt the course advantageous to their views of the subject.

At the present time no real basis of planning has been started.

Mr. Cope remarked that all plans are only ideas that need smoothing.

Plans may include classes Monday, Wednesday, and Friday with one teacher compiling ideas on one specific aspect of a subject lasting one to two class periods.

Mr. Cope is enthusiastic over the plans now being constructed.

He feels the course will be a sure success.

Mr. Cope also stated that the administration is completely for the project and if successful will make for more courses to be held in the same manner.

Marshalls Named Moring, Scott Co-Chiefs

They are: Nancy Sheehan, (co-chief), Allentown, Penn,; Mrs. Mildred Moring (co-chief), High Point; Judith Ann Scott (co-chief) Jekyll Island, Ga.; Lucy L. Samuels, High Point; Ruth Tapson, Winston-Salem; Gilbert E. Hyatt, La Plata, Md.; Susan E. Brown, Charlotte; Gary E. Austin, Randleman; Jean W. Rich, Asheboro; and Carol L. Caluse, Greenburg, Ohio.

Also named were: David L. Mitcham, High Point; Pamela J. Catron, Springfield, Va.; Royce M. Flynt, Winston-Salem; Beth L. Holcomb, Virginia Beach, Va.; Nancy C. Powell, High Point; Rebecca D. Gibbs, Marion; James J. DeViney, High Point; Janita Hayworth, High Point; Linda McCrary, Thomasville; and Michael C. Lewis, Baltimore, Md.

Heading the list of Junior Marshalls is Miss Sheehan, who normally would have been selected as a Chief Marshall, but is a transfer student this year.

Selected by a faculty committee, chaired by Dr. Locke, for their high academic achievement, the new Junior Marshalls have grade point averages ranging from 3.0 to 2.15.

Mullinix Speculates On Plans For Spring

"Plans for the spring semester activities are being thought out," says Chaplain Mullinix.

Although it is far in the future, the Chaplain has made some early arrangements to keep the High Point campus from becomming stagnant and void of life.

A February coffeehouse, sponsored by the Methodist Student Movement and featuring a group from Garner-Webb College, will begin the line of spring activities.

In March, the Student Christian Associatin will sponsor "Religion in Life Days" which will tie together through paintings and films, the performing and graphic arts, reflecting the theme of God's Joyous Gifts of Sight and Sound."

During the week of Easter, "some holy observances will be kept," and definite plans are brewing to work in coordination with Mr. Highbaugh and the High Point College choir.

Chaplain Mullinix has also been holding "vesper" services every Monday at 6:30 p.m., in Lindley Chapel.

Attendance has ranged from three to ten students, and sometimes even twelve; but the Chaplain is determined not to discontinue the services. "I would like to have more participation but it's entirely up to the students."

Presidential Scholarships constitute a little-known aspect of the High Point College financial aid program.

Those students currently holding the Presidential Awards include freshmen Susan Green, High Point; Lucy Hill, Graham; Carol Kane, Falls Church, Va.; Linda Laws, Snow Hill, Md.; Sue Moody, Pompano Beach, Fla; and Rosemary Ritter, Robbins.

Juniors include: Mrs. Nancy W. Rich, High Point; Judith Scott, Jekyll Island, Ga.; and Jane Way, Asheboro.

Mrs. Sharon Shacklefords Stewart, a senior, also holds a Presidential Scholarship.

Based on high school records, the scholarships are granted to incoming freshmen, and may be held as long as the student maintains a 2.0 average at HPC.

Students holding Presidential Scholarships must reapply for them each year stated Mr. Robert Wells, Director of Financial Aid, but students who do not reapply can get their money by going to see Wells later.

Spring Play Plans In The Air

"I'm still up in the air about the spring production," said Mrs. Carolyn Rauch, director of Tower Players.

At this point three major possibilities being considered by Mrs. Rauch are Hamlet, Three Penny Opera, and The Cave Dwellers.

Mrs. Rauch is interested in doing a modern version of Hamlet, perhaps with modern dress and music.

She has wanted to present a Shakespearean play ever since her arrival at High Point College, two years ago.

Bertolt Brecht's Three Penny Opera is a play Mrs. Rauch refers to as her ace in the hole.

She has been eager to direct this well-known epic drama ever since her college days, when she performed in it in an acting capacity.

The Cave Dwellers by William Saroyan is the story of seven characters who seek refuge in a deserted theatre which is slated for demolition, and offers great range for both the actor and the stage designer.

Cool Yule

In an attempt to recognize the non-commercial meaning of Christmas, the members of Drama Director Carolyn Fauch's acting class, in conjunction with the High Point College choir and chamber orchestra, have decided to give a performance for the school and community to put the occasion in its proper perspective.

This performance, entitled "A Warm-Up for A Cool Yule," will be given Monday, December 8, at 6:15 p.m. on the steps of Roberts Hall.

Set in medieval times, the play will be performed accordingly by members of the acting class and the HPC Tower Players under the direction of senior Virginia Price from Fairfax County, Va.

Immediately preceding the play will be a concert by the HPC chamber orchestra in the lobby of Roberts Hall.

A caroling session featuring the High Point College Concert Choir, directed by Mr. William K. Highbaugh, will follow the performance.

Refreshments will be served in the lobby of Roberts Hall at the conclusion of the program.

Registration Set, Courses Added For New Horizons Program

Several course additions have been made and registration for the New Horizons Program at High Point College has been changed, according to Dr. H. E. Conrad, Dean of Academic Planning at the college.

All registration cards were to have been filed with Conrad by Dec. 5; the New Horizons will begin Jan. 5 and extend through Jan. 23.

Courses will be conducted on and off campus.

Two more three-hour credit courses have been added to the New Horizons Program: a planned co-operative work experience program to be offered by the business department and a psychlogy course, Small Group Processes, open to all students who have had introductory psychology.

"There will also be a mini-semester offering in Human Relations," said Conrad. This will be a three week course during which students will work with service agencies such as United Appeal, Red Cross, YMCA, etc.

Other courses to be offered include: The Negro in America, The Space Age and Today's Culture, Theology and Symbol, Philosophy and Culture, A View of the American Investment Securities Market, Canada, Our Northern Neighbor, Research in Physical Science; Experimental, Innovative Programs in Public Education; Applied Kinesiology; and Mexico, Our Southern Neighbor.

Some of the courses will be taught only on campus, while field trips will be necessary in others.

Fuzz Truck Burns Burning Bush Appears

Students on their way to early classes last Monday were treated to an unexpected spot of warmth when a blazing can of gasoline hurtled from the familiar campus police van parked beside the Student Center.

The flaming liquid quickly spread across the parking lot beside the smoldering van into nearby shrubbery, adding a merry crackling to the roaring gasoline and the hissing of burning upholstery in the van.

The fire, rated by a passing student as a "small to medium" raged uncheckedfor several minutes as students gathered at a distance and speculated on how long it would take the flames to reach the vehicle's fuel tank and explode.

The member of the HPC maintenance staff who had been trying to start the van when the fire started, returned to the scene with an assortment of portable extinquishers and succeeded in subduing the blaze.

The High Point Fire Department had been called earlier, and a pump truck accompanied by the chief's car roared up just as the last spark winced out.

The firemen flooded the still-smoking van as a precautionary measure and then departed.

Onlooking college chaplain Roland Mullinix was questioned as to the connotation of the police van's ignition being followed by the appearance of a burning bush, but refused to make any definitive comment.

Subsequent investigation has revealed that the mechanic was adding gasoline to the carbuerator when the can caught fire, probably from straying ignition sparks.

His quick action in throwing the flaming can away from the van was probably all that prevented its explosion.

Rumors that the blaze was a miscarried assasination attempt or firebombing on the part of campus radicals have been scoffed at by the majority of students and administrative personnel, although there are still those who mutter darkly of plots and conspiracies.

PRESSES ROLLING AGAIN

By DICK KNOPH
(Special Correspondent)

The scene is the busy office of the campus newspaper on a weekday night; the time is early evening. The air is filled with the sound of clacking typewriters, feminine laughter, and much masculine grumbling and profanity. The Hi-Po is on its way to the presses once again.

But let us go backward in time a week or two, to the period when this same office was the scene of solitary nocturnal labor by a few disillusioned people.

The duly-appointed editor had just left school and an acting editor was in the saddle. Willie Shaw was journalistically very competent and even artistic, but his real love was the literary magazine, the Apogee. A former business manager was persuaded to return to his old post, and the rest of a skeleton staff had been temporarily assembled.

With great effort, one edition of The Hi-Po was put out under pressure from the administration. Then the weary mechanism ground to a halt, completely out of gas. There were no more funds.

Faced with the probable castration of his beloved Apogee and with threats for officers of the United States Marine Corps, Shaw resigned.

The machine that rolled on for forty-two years was stopped; there was no longer any direction. Its original staff had left it, and the few persons still technically 'involved' were at a loss for what to do.

A faint hum arose from the dormant newsplant as the HPC provided emergency funding and paid off old debts. Hurried conferences with the newspaper's advisor brought new ideas and fresh hope.

Now things begin to move more quickly as the machine picks up speed; business manager Ted Belch is persuaded to return and stay. He rapidly brings his three years of experience to bear on The Hi-Po's financial entanglements.

A series of long phone calls and personal talks bring senior phychology major Jo Deininger to the editor's chair. A bureau chief and editorial assistant under previous editors, she brings to the task the vitally needed time and skills.

Now a small host of firmer staffers begin to return from their long exile.

Judy Scott, a junior from Jekyll Island, Georgia, returns after an absence of a year and a half to take up a new job: she left as a typist and returns as copy editor.

Cartoonist Lynda "Irving" Long from Washington, DC, is called and asked, "Will you do it?" The answer is a quick affirmative.

Photography is the one department that has endured the two transitions; photog editor Ken Schaus is a rock of reliability and excellence.

Returning from his lengthy retirement to assume the managing editor's chair and once again fill the office with cigarette smoke and invective is junior David Steves from High Point. His new reporting staff is academically young and inexperienced; their constant question is "How do you. . .?"

This young staff, mostly freshmen and sophomores because of The Hi-Po's "generation gap," immediately has outrageous demands put upon it. They respond with a surge of enthusiasm and energy that causes editor Deininger to grin and make glowing plans for next semester.

The Hi-Po is starting to roll again; much lost momentum must be regained, there is a staff to be trained, and many old habits and contacts to be restored.

The only one who seems downhearted is Business Manager Belch, whose new business staff has scurried out to dun old debtors and seek new advertising accounts, leaving him alone in the office. He mutters darkly to his adding machine, "My wife is going to kill me for taking this job again." The small machine is cowed and says nothing.

The Hi-Po shifts into high gear as the deadline approaches and copy editing, proofing, and lay-out follow one another in rapid succession. The finished paper is taken to the printer and a sigh of contentment arises from the whole staff, who drift away for the holidays, leaving the rebuilt machine in neutral and awaiting their return.

HPC Men Hit By Lottery; Troop Reduction Hoped For

By TED BELCI

Under the nation's first Selective Service lottery in 27 years, young men between the ages of 19 and 26 born on September 14, will head the 1970 draft calls next month. At least two High Point College students fall into this category.

The first date, encased in blue plastic as were all the dates, was drawn from a laboratory jar by Rep. Alexander Pirnie of New York, ranking Republican on the special draft committee in the House, shortly after 8 p.m. December 1, 1969. In less than an hour and a half, all young men in these age groups knew approximately their fate for the coming years.

President Nixon signed the present lottery system legislation into law about two weeks ago, ending the previous system of "oldest first". The old system was criticized because it left young men uncertain for a period of seven years. The long list of deferments was also a major topic of criticism.

A place in line for every man at least 19 years of age but not 26 by the end of this year has now been designated. In whatever year a young man becomes I-A---"available for military service"---or I-A-O---"conscientious objector available for noncombatant military service only"--- he will be subject to the draft.

About 500,000 men will begin 1970 in one of these classifications. These men will be draft material according to their number in the lottery and the position of the first letter of their last names, also chosen by a lottery system.

Men will be called in the order in which their birthdays were drawn, until the local boards throughout the nation fulfill their 1970 draft quotas.

Of main concern to High Point College students is the questions of student deferments. Many students will lose their II-S with graduation in December, May, or August and will become I-A or 1-A-O during the year. That makes them subject to the 1970 lottery also.

260,000 presently deferred men will probably be drafted in 1970 and these men will come from those birthdays appeared in the first one-third (122 birthdates) drawn last week.

How high this figure may reach depends solely on the local draft board, the number of men in its quota, and the number of eligible men it has in the top one-third.

But the men whose birthdays are in the first 122 dates are almost certain to be drafted sometime during 1970. A great number of students at High Point College are affected here.

Those men whose brthdays fall in the middle one-third (123-244) must simple wait out the year and will probably be uncertain until a draft notce arrives or the year ends.

Those in the last one-third (243-366) are almost certain they will not be called in 1970, with their chances even smaller in future years. But again, local board quotas might interfer with this certainty. A small draft board with very few draftable men in the first two-thirds of the list could reach into the top one-third.

It is quite simple to determine your place in the system. Simply find your birthdate and the number that corresponds to it. Draft boards will start at the top of the list, September 14, and work their way through the others.

Men who now hold deferments will not be called while their deferments continue. Men now in school will keep their college deferments, unless the next Congress passes new legislation.

But the number that was received last week will stay with the young man until he loses

New Rules Open Femme B-Ball

By TRUDY MATHENY

Women's intercollegiate basketball practice began Monday, December 1st. This year a few changes will be made as to the rules of the game.

Last spring, in a meeting held in Greensboro, several women collegiate coaches voted to experiment with the five-player rule that the men now use.

The rules are basically as the men's rules with the exception of the thirty-second clock and the rule of having numbers on the front and back of the uniform. Those rules that do apply are the following:

1. The game is played by two teams of five players each.

2. Time out is taken for all violations.

3. Free throws are not taken following a double foul.

4. For a held ball (more than five seconds when closely guarded), a jump ball is given.

5. The hand is considered to be part of the ball on tie balls, shots, dribbles, interceptions, etc.

6. Penalty for all violations will be taken on the sideline.

7. The following are not consireder dirbbles: a. Successive tries for goal; b. Fumbles; c. Attempts to gain control of ball.

8. During a free throw the defensive team shall occupy both lane spaces adjacent to the endline.

9. Players must hold their position around restraining circle during toss up.

10. Either the foot or the lower leg may be involved in the intentional kicking.

11. If a player causes the ball to go out of bounds by deliverately throwing or hitting the ball against an opponent, ball is awarded to the player struck by the ball.

12. Tagging has been eliminated as a foul (blocking and holding cover this).

Guarding, outside of the free throw lane, so closely from the rear that contact results when an attempt is made by a player to turn or pivot is a form of blocking.

A complete list of rules are printed in the 1969-70 Basketball Guide.

Miss Betty Jo Clary who is the women's coach like the five-player game better. "It is better than the roving game. There is too much pressure on the two girls who have to rove the entire game. Too often the girls are the two best players and pressure interferes with their accuracy in shooting."

There are those who oppose the five court rule. The reasoning is that it is too much of an aggressive game for girls.

In answer Miss Clary says, "The five-girl basketball is actually less strenuous on some of the girls, because there won't be the full court press as was required in the four-girl, two-rover set up."

There are more advantages than disadvantages to the game. It will cause a higher scoring game and a greater chance for the fast break.

"As for the spectators, they will enjoy the game more, and be able to relate it to men's basketball."

"It is no more strenuous than the six-girl, roving situation, the only thing is that now, every girl will be moving and will have to learn to shoot."

With all the changes and present favorable outlook, Miss Clary says she will not know just how well she will like the five-court rule unti a game is played and the rules can be seen to work effectively.

Season's Greetings

With this last issue of the semester, The Hi-Po wishes to extend its warmest season's greetings to the entire college community.

Publications will be resumed February 7, with our homecoming issue.

Good luck on exams and we'll see you next semester.

Students' Viewpoints Should Be Used

For the first time in High Point College's history, the students have put down, on IBM cards and in electrographic pencil, exactly what they think of their professors.

The unsigned cards are then sent to Purdue University to be scored, keeping anonymity at a high level.

Results are then sent back to each professor with norms for both the school and the nation. The interpreation of these norms is totally up to the individual professor.

No professor interprets scores the same way as another, which reduces unifority severly.

A professor, popular with the students, may be very eager to see his results, while another, not so popular professor may discredit his, thinking that they don't really prove anything.

The teachers who may need these rating the most, may not even look at the results, much less interpret them.

One wonders what acutal purpose these ratings serve, since the results go no father than the professors themselves. They cannot be used against the bad professor, nor in favor of the good one.

The administration hires our professors. It deserves to know how its employees are performing their job, at least from the student's point of view.

Three Exam Blues

As if omitting reading day were not enough, the administration has now decided to schedule three examinations on the first day of testing.

Granted, one is a usually rather short physical education activities exam, but the others, (Monday, Wednesday, and Friday at 1 p.m. and Tuesday and Thursday at 10:30 p.m.) are two very popular class periods.

Students with three exams December 12, must start intensive studying right after their last class on Thursday, which in some cases does not end until 3:45 pm.

For a few unlucky seniors there is the added attraction of Graduate Record Examinations bright and early Saturday morning.

Graduate school admission relies heavily on Graduate Record scores, as does graduation upon final grades.

In view of this situation, students can hardly be expected to perform at peak level on any one of these tests. They will get little enough sleep as it is without a reading day, and probably much less with an extra exam thrown in between for extra measure.

Those involved in making the exam schedule could have at least picked two less popular class periods for the longer exams. If this was not possible then they should grant professors permission to give an exam on another day to students found in this predicament.

professor and course.

Professors were rated on a ten point scale, while courses were rated on a basis of five points.

Evaluating students were asked to judge their professors on their subject knowledge and interest, appearance and mannerisms, objectivity, skill in making the class interesting to students, and overall teaching ability.

Courses were judged on facilities available, reference material available, compliance with stated objectives, and value to the student.

The IBM cards will be sent to Purdue to be scored, and results will be returned to the professors for their own reference.

Whats Your Number

By DAVID STEVES

America has always been a nation of numbers. Its average citizen has a social security number, a bank account number, a car license number and driver's license number, several credit card numbers, and possibly a selective service number.

Last week, on December first, all males between the ages of 19 and 25 on that date accumulated yet another number--a lottery number. The available range of numbers is small, only 366, and at least one-third of the numbers are "winners." The prizes, however, are quite different from those in the Irish Sweepstakes.

The sheepish holders of "sure" two-digit numbers win a paid tour of duty at government expense, the right to serve their country, and a very remote chance of being killed or wounded.

For a moment consider the fact that college students have been persistent advocates of increased equality and reform in the draft laws. Now, this equality has been achieved, the argument that affluent parents keep their sons out of the draft by sending them to college is invalid. College brings a delay, not an exemption.

Strangely enough, college students seem to be displeased with this new-found equality before the draft boards. They have been arbitrarily divided into three classes: the predestined, the uncertain, and the free. The free are complacently elated, the uncertain are worried sick, and the predestined are discouraged, to say the least.

What has always been a remote problem is now a situation that must be faced as much as four years in advance. The word "deferment" has assumed a much more literal meaning than before.

It is somewhat hard for a "neutral" observer to understand the complainers. The much-desired equality has arrived. . .I-A or II-S, it's only a question of time for everybody.

Editor's Mail

Dear Miss Deininger,

According the High Point College catalogue 1969-70, "High Point College attempts to provide a sound, progressive program. A living Christian philosophy of education gives depth and intensity to this quality program..." (p. 5-6). What exactly is a "living Christian philosophy?" It is time to re-examine this concept and its application.

We are living in a time in which it is becoming increasingly apparent that the teachings of Jesus have too often been distorted so that he becomes no more than a legalist's crutch. Legalists can stand up, shourt, and wave their Bibles around but this will not change the truth. For these people, according to John A. T. Robinson in his book Honest To God, there is "an absolute moral standard engraven for all to see... there can be no doubt about Christian standards in this or any other matter. In any change they are unchangeable: the only question is whether men live up to them." (p. 109). Thus the law becomes more important than people. If this is Christianity, then Jesus died in vain.

Jesus was the greatest situational ethicalist of all time; he never intended to be interpreted as a legalist. Both Robinson in Honest To God and Fletcher in Situation Ethics point out that for Jesus there was no absolute law except love and respect for individuals. As Robinson states, "the only intrinsic evil is the lack of love." (p.118 Honest To God). He goes on to explain that "there can be for the Christian no 'packaged' moral judgements - for persons are more important even than 'standards' ". (P. 120).

Do we throw out all laws? NO! We seek to make laws and rules for the sake of persons not for the sake of laws! Christians use these laws as guiding principles, and as Fletcher states in Situation Ethics "enter into every decision making situation fully armed with ethical maxims.. but prepared in any situation to compromise them or set them aside in the situation if love seems better served by doing so."

High Point College is fully equipped with a superstructure of intricate rules and attitudes which assume that thje are absolute moral laws and that the violation of one of these rules is an indication of irresponsibility and immorality. It is time to re-examine this superstructure in the light of the above.

One particular area that needs to be re-evaluated is the demerit system. For example: if a female student does not attend a dorm meeting 15 demerits are assigned. This examples not only points out the trivality of the system but also demonstrates the rigidity of it. When 26-36 demerits are "earned" the "criminal" may be subjected to campusing, dorming, or rooming even though she may be 21 years old. Do we first consider that an "absolute" rule has been broken or do we consider the person first? Christian "person-centered" ethics considers people!

Not only must the entire demerit system be reexamined but also attitudes toward all students. HPC needs a more responsible student-oriented attitude; after all, students are people!

FIRST EDITION DROPS IN

Kenny Rogers & The First Edition is a beautifully bound group whose music goes straight to the heart and mind of today.

The roots of their music go down deep into the rich soil of folk melody, blues, jazz, hard rock, and the classics.

But the catalyst of their sound is a blending of the individual talents of Kenny Rogers, Terry Williams, Mary Arnold, Kin Vassy, and Mickey Jones.

The group was born when members of Randy Sparks' New Christy Minstrels got together at pickin' and singin' sessions and swapped ideas about the "new music".

Two minstrels--Kenny Rogers and Mike Settle--spearheaded The First Edition.

Mike has since left the group for a career in television writing, but still composes for the group occasionally.

Shortly after The First Edition was formed, they played an engagement at Ledbetters in Westwood, near UCLA.

Tom Smothers, who was in one of their first audiences, was so impressed with their enthusiasm, that he became their advisor, signed them for the Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour," and gave a part on stage at CBS to introduce them to the press.

Then, a contract with Reprise Records was signed and an album called simply "The First Edition" was recorded and released.

One of the cuts, "Just Dropped in to See What Condition My Condition Was In," was released as a single and the group suddenly had its first hit.

Two more major hit records, "But You Know I Love You," and "Ruby Don't Take Your Love to Town," have made The First Edition a regular on the charts.

Once in the spotlight, The First Edition's special sound came to television on network shows that have included "The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour," "Ed Sullivan Show," "Tonight Show," "Jonathan Winters Show," "Red Skelton Show," "Mike Douglas Show," "Today," "Operation Entertainment," and the "Happening '69 Special."

They have appeared at Mr. Kelly's in Chicago, San Francisco's "Hungry I", "The Bitter End" in New York and "The Troubadour" in Los Angeles.

And, Alcoa Aluminum recognized The First Edition as a group with an unusual ability to communicate, signing them as national spokesmen for 1968-69.

In 1958, he had his own hit single, a million seller called "Crazy Feeling," on Carlton Records.

Later he joined The Bobby Doyle Trio, a well known jazz group that recorded for Columbia, and traveled the country in night club and concert appearances, often in tandem with The Kirby Stone Four.

Kenny joined The New Christy Minstrels in 1966 and, after a year of working with Mike Settle and Terry Williams, left with them to help form The First Edition.

He was delighted with the chance for more freedom.

"The regimentation of a large group," he explained, "is a valuable experience, but eventually you have to gather your courage and go on your own."

"Now we want it our way, with our own music--and that means whatever we believe in," he added.

Terry Williams is The First Edition's happy, sleepy-eyed guitarist, whose career could only have been music.

He took up guitar at the age of 14, and it's been his specialty ever since.

Today, Terry's enthusiasm is such that he's added the 20-string guitar to his accomplishments, even though he thinks mastery of that instrument is several years away.

After a stint with The Kids Next Door, it was a question of being the right girl, in the right place, at the right time.

In his mid-twenties, Kin has polish and experience beyond his years.

Although his first love is the guitar, he can hold his own on the bass, piano, and trumpet.

As the newest member of The First Edition, he's found kindred spirits in this group of energetic, individualistic young performers.

Mickey Jones, from Dallas, Texas, gives The First Edition its beat.

Although he thinks of himself as a musician, he is an actor on such TV series as "Daniel Boone," amd "High Chaparral" and motion pictures including "Wild in The Streets," "Finian's Rainbow," "The Star," and "Camelot."

KENNY ROGERS AND THE FIRST EDITION

A NEW GROUP of campus policemen, the William J. Burns International Detective Agency, has arrived to police our campus. See next week's edition for the story.

Dr. Stokes Enlightens Lighted Lamp

Thirteen High Point College students were inducted into the Order of the Lighted Lamp this Wednesday morning as the annual ceremony was held in Memorial Auditorium. This year's induction marks the 35th anniversary of the Order, the oldest honor society on campus and symbolic as one of the highest honors a student may maintain.

Membership is based upon scholarship, character, leadership, and service. Students selected first had to obtain a scholastic average of 1.75 quality points for five preceding semesters of college work.

Aside from academic attainment, each candidate must have rendered outstanding service to the school through participation in various club organizations. Present members of the Order of the Lighted Lamp nominated candidates and the faculty had the opportunity to confirm or reject the nominees.

Tapped Wednesday were Robert Pate Williams of Asheboro; Linda Carol Crutchfield of Greensboro; Rebecca Deanne Gibbs of Marion; and Warren Louis Grimes of Smithfield.

Out of state students tapped were Mark E. Gebicke of Adelphi, Md.; Jenny Olivia Bond of Arnold, Md.; Steve J. Mattheisen of Catonsville, Md.; Gilbert Elliott Hyatt III of LaPlatta, Md.; Charles Francis Eakes of Arlington, Va.;

Lynda Louise Long of Forestville, Md.; William R. Webb of Greenbelt, M.d.; Rebecca Ann Proehl of Lynchburg, Va.; and Beth Lucille Holcomb of Virginia Beach, Va.

The address was given by Dr. Lem Stokes II, former president of Pfeiffer College and now assistant director of the North Carolina Board of Higher Education.

Dr. Stokes presented to the student body several of his concepts of education. He stressed the need of emphasizing relevancy in today's courses.

"Dates, names, and places are not the important things in history. . .J, E, D, and P are not necessary to religion. That type of study strips religion of it's philosophical meaning," said Dr. Stokes.

Dr. Stokes, a native of Korea where he was born of missionary parents, was president of Pfeiffer from 1953 to 1968. He was sidely known during that time as the "flying president" due to his avocation of flying his personal plane. He still pursues this "hobby" along with stamp collecting, tennis, golf and singing.

Home Againing

The Hi-Po bids a hearty welcome to High Point College alumni. The college has greatly changed in ways; in other ways it may never change.

We hope you will enjoy yourselves reminiscing with old classmates about the "good old days" and the way things "used to be" here, while presenting students plan for what High Point College could be.

Again, welcome back, grads!

As Lemmings Run

High Point College has a population problem.

It is dangerously underpopulated.

Each semester more and more students are moving off campus for various reasons: to avoid paying board fees, better study conditions, more general privacy, to escape dorm rules, reasons as numerous as the people moving out.

Of course our thinly populated dorms are not caused by this fact alone. A startling number of rooms are left empty after first semester grades are sent home. This is particularly true of Woman's and McCulloch Halls.

The seemingly high academic mortality rate among freshmen is to be expected. Each freshmen class has a mean score on college boards ever so slightly lower than the previous one. With a rather consistent level of teaching, it is no wonder that a greater number of freshmen are failing to stay in college.

But this does not account for the upperclassmen who find that living in the dorms is too expensive and/or too confining. They move out, despite exorbitant rents charged for an unfurnished apartment.

The administration, in order to keep operating costs at a minimum, should at least attempt to ascertain why students are moving off campus. Measures could and by all means should be taken to make campus housing more appealing to students. Dormitories would be better off if run a little more like an apartment building.

Reach Out

"Give a damn." "To listen is the beginning of understanding." "Watch out when you reach out, but for God's sake, reach out."

These are three very contemporary remarks dealing with a very contemporary subject, communication. It has become fashionable to be a little less concerned with one's self, and to be more concerned with one's fellow man, and it's about time.

Homecoming: Reminder of the Good Old Days

Midnight Ramblings

Less For More

By David Steves

It has happened to Homecoming Weekend again. Another costly group of "big name" entertainers has finked out on dear old HPC.

STEVES

Last time it was the Impressions who gave last-minute notification that they were not going to fulfil their contract obligation; this time it's Tommy James and the Shondells.

The excuse offered is about the same, too; a vague and uncertain mumbling that seems to boil down to "We don't feel like playing that night and your college isn't a big enough date for us to be hurt by welching on you."

One Student Union representative refers to the sellout (no pun intended, you can be sure) as "Bahama fever."

However, junior Larry Johnson, chief entertainment producerer for the SU, managed to scratch into some unusual luck and came up with Kenny Rogers and the First Edition as replacements for the missing Mr. James and his cohorts.

However, there is a very large catch to this find. According to David Holton, chairman of the SU, the organization is going to lose its--and by "its" he means the students'--shirt on the First Edition.

They are going to cost about $4000.00 according to Holton, and a quick computation reveals this to be costing each student a little less than $4.00 for the concert WHETHER HE GOES OR NOT! Add the $1.50 admission charge and you see that a student will actually be getting more for his money by staying away.

Hopefully the time will finally come (when the losses incurred by this weekend are totaled up) and HPC and the SU will realize that they must stop pursuing the chimera of "big name" entertainment. It is a very expensive and poorly attended luxury that we can obviously not afford.

In contrast, one of the SU's best attended events was last fall's off-campus Oktoberfest dance, which cost less than a quarter of the money the SU is going to lose this afternoon.

Isn't the solution obvious?

Editor's Mail

Dear Sir;

The Student Government Association of High Point College is an organization that has no real power.

No real power?

Yes, the SGA on this campus is nothing more than a puppet organization with the administration holding the strings!

If the SGA would, by chance, pass a controversial bill which the students were behind, but the administration did not favor, then the bill would be vetoed by the administration via the Student Personnel Office.

Why has the SGA tolerated this nonsense?

The answer is rather obvious; the leaders and the people in the SGA have built up an illusion around their superfluous titles.

Around this illusion, they actually think they are something and thus no action is needed.

The SGA has degenerated into a battleground where the main issues are actually ones of personality conflicts. And if one is to look into the actual leadership one can see that there are obvious divisions amongst the leaders based on immature responses to personality conflicts.

Often bills are blocked in the legislature not because of opposition to the bill but because, "I don't want that bill 'cause I don't want him to get the upper hand." This sort of perverted competition is very similar to the arguements raised over sand boxes in nursery school.

By now, many people will be trying to sight the so-called "obvious" achievements of the SGA.

So let's look at some of the achievements made this year.

First, students are now on some faculty committees; now that looks real good. But just getting students on some committees is no real problem.

The students are still outnumbered and the committees only meet a couple times a year, or as they say, "upon being called by the committee chairman" (who is a faculty member.)

Thus in all actuality this was a move of massive tokenism intended to calm down the raising student discontent.

Are we going to stand for such a belittling gesture?

Another achievement is the ruling of drinking on off-campus activities.

Now really, how big of an achievement is that?

Yes, most of the students like this ruling but come on this is no major gain, especially when compared to other schools that actually have had these rulings ten years before HPC, and in some instances, never had such rulings to begin with.

The last example of so-called achievement is the resolution sponsored in the SGA concerning Viet Nam and the Moratorium. The resolution was supposedly to show opposition to the policies in Viet Nam, but in actuality said so little it would have made Richard Nixon jealous.

So there is this problem.

What are we, the students, to do?

We must unite and insist that we be given a real voice; we must insist that the SGA start moving; we must insist that the administration listen to the students and listen so good that they will start acting of reaction.

We must stop calling all this tokenism achievement.

If we the students want to change the school towards the better, we must start acting now, and that means petitions and that means verbalization in SGA meetings and to faculty members, yes, and even to the administration.

We must take action now to make this our school; we must start as our elaborate student catalogue says "questioning mere conformity."

Youth Unlimited; Changing Human Lives

About 18 months ago a strange corporate structure emerged in the form of Youth Unlimited, Inc.

It was designed to communicate with some of the most deeply troubled youth in High Point.

During 1969 Youth Unlimited, under the direction of Tom Warson, a former newspaper man for Fairchild Publishing Co., dealt with 17 suicide attempts, 15 premarital pregnancies, 35 youths referred to professional psychiatric or governmental agencies, more than 90 youths in job placement, and over 100 kids who were experimenting with drugs, many of whom no longer use them.

"By meeting a variety of people at the level of their needs we have developed a bad image," said Watson concerning a number of accusations and rumors concentrated around the "Stonehenge" part of the ministry.

"This coffee house is a chance to glimpse another side of life we hadn't noticed before. . .it's an idea that found a home; and our ideas have a habit of collecting people; come on people now." It was the summer of 69 that saw Stonehenge as a coffeehouse and point of contact for other YUI concerns.

In a "non-brochure" that was an expression of an action group of the Core, the Sunday night worship the Stonehenge was described as an abandoned old house, waiting to die with an idea fresh as life and as young as hope.

Watson described it as a place of involvement in worship, creative expression and in meeting the community's needs.

Undaunted by a premature shortage of funds in the summer, the Henge and its staff, now cut in half, and a large group of volunteers worked with the Model Cities Commission on rat control project which led into the more recent Housing Code issue with City Hall.

A training course in Urban Dynamics, a study group on political thought and methodologies, a leather craft workshop, a creative arts work group and a "headshop" are all new programs starting with the Henge in addition to the weekend coffeehouse entertainment and Core worship.

The first segment of YUI to be realized, the Kum Ba Yah has moved its operation from a small storefront on Main St. to a large warehouse on Hamilton St., leased from the Redevelopment Commission.

"We have had a lot of kids take advantage of us in the past, but with the present system of a youth council and requiring a commitment from each member, we cut preliminary contact from about 500 a week to a third, but the result has been the virtual elimination of disciplinary problems, better programming, and very meaningful contact," said Larry Thomas, director of the "Yah."

"They are involved in a number of community outreaches, the latest of which is a special Christmas program for the children at Mills Home in Thomasville," added Watson.

The Yah operates mainly as a recreational facility every day but Monday, and has pool, ping-pong, basketball, volleyball, a canteen jukebox and a room for silent meditation and private devotions.

There are several spiritual encounter groups that are part of a special activities programming which is run by the kids themselves.

The greatest need now for the Yah is for adults and college people to act as resource people.

As far as over-all needs are concerned, the greatest is in financing, which brings to the fore the latest venture of YUI, and that is Unlimited Enterprises.

Unlimited Enterpirses, Inc., is a new subsidiary of YUI with all of the company's profits going into the parent corporation.

In its charter, Unlimited Enterprises lists several purposes within the ministry:

"To provide motivation and job opportunities to youth who are not functioning in a manner that contributes to our society or to their own well-being.

"To provide a point of contact with youth, who would not contact the traditional structures for job and educational opportunities and counseling and to steer them in the direction of industry and educational institutions.

UEI is now promoting a design for a paper product bookshelf, a service station manager's training program and the actual operation of a service station to begin March 1. An irregular shirt sales campaign, and the operation of a craft shop are already in operation with the hope of an expanded sales campaign and pizza kitchen for the Henge.

The board of advisors of UEI are appointed by the directors of YUI and is entrusted with all responsibilities of management of the corporation.

Its chairman, Thayer Coggin, is an adult, but all the other officers are young people, with the chairman of YUI, Bill Henderson, and the YUI executive director, Tom Watson, as ex-officio members.

"And so, by God's grace, we shall continue," concluded Tom Watson, a man with a vision.

NIGHT SCHOOL MAY HALT

Today the future of the evening courses at High Point College is to be discussed by the administration.

A sampling of night school students shows that they have accepted the death of the program as inevitable.

Mr. David H. Holt, Director of Evening School, answered by saying that "no decision has been made."

The Evening School had its origin in 1959 when the program was constructed by Dr. C. R. Hinshaw.

The number had decreased to 694 by 1967; and last year only 546 attended.

Mr. Holt gave a number of reasons for this decrease, the first of which was the draft.

At one time, a person was exempted from the draft if he took twelve hours at an accredited school.

Now the requirement is that the person must be enrolled as a full time student "in good standing." This change destroyed what Holt called "a haven for draft dodgers."

Another of Holt's reasons is the advent of institutions such as Guilford Technical Institute and Davidson Community College.

They offer courses at a fee of between $6 and $7 per hour, while the evening courses here cost $25 per hour.

Even with this greater fee, the program is having financial problems, with only 140 students attending last semester, and 40 of those from day school, Holt says that this time we'll barely break even."

When asked about the feeling of some that the courses are substandard, Holt disagreed, "Some claim it's easier, but this is debatable; personally I would defend all the night school faculty as very capable."

"They all have masters degrees; one might be more lenient with grades than the other, but this is true in day school also."

It seems that not all the administration shares this opinion, however.

One student reported that his advisor suggested that he not attend because the work is, in

Homecoming Queen Crowned

Miss Hastings, escorted by Lee Brown, received roses from Dr. Patton on behalf of Student Government Association.

Miss Hastings, a P.E. major, was crowned at 8 p.m. in Alumni Gymnasium.

First runner up was senior, Miss Joyce Kait from Alexandria, Virginia, escorted by Rick Jensen. Miss Kait's major is English Education.

Miss Debbie Landrum, freshman, from Wilmington, Delaware, was second runner up. Miss Landrum was escorted by Ron Slingerman. She plans to major in Elementary Education.

The court was made up of Dana Johnson, freshman, from Rockville, Maryland, escorted by Paul Obermueller from Baltimore, Maryland; Mary Ann Rafferty, freshman, from Potomac, Maryland, escorted by Dennis Olley from North Hampton, Massassachusettes; Carolyn Dean, sophomore, from Cambridge, Maryland, escorted by Skip Attinger from Bowie, Maryland; Martha Dannington, sophomore, from Chatham, North Carolina, escorted by Rick Steffen from Bethesda, Maryland; Wendy Duda, junior, from Alexandria, Virginia, escorted by Bruce Shaffer from Silver Spring, Maryland; Nancy Easterling, junior, from Charlotte, North Carolina, escorted by Bob Harrelson from Greensboro; Carol Myrick, junior, from Greensboro, North Carolina, escorted by Jim Long, a coach at Page High School; Donna Hastings, senior, from Bethel, Delaware, escorted by Ted Thomas of High Point; and Linda Sanders, senior, from Ashboro, North Carolina, escorted by John Seward from Silver Spring, Maryland.

After the ceremonies the court opened to Purple Panther action.

The panthers met the Mountaineers from Appalachian in non-conference play.

First Edition Sends Regrets

The manager of The First Edition, vocal group forced to cancel a Saturday afternoon engagement at High Point College, contacted students Monday explaining the situation.

Ken Kragen of Ken Kragen and Friends, a managerial agency in Beverly Hills, Calif., made numerous calls to the campus Monday apologizing for the inconvenience the "no-show" may have caused the students.

"This was the first date the kids have missed in the three years they've worked together," he explained. "They are quite upset about it."

Actually, we know from experience that there are a lot of groups who have a "no-show" reputation.

"Frankly, we're worried that people might think the same of us if we don't explain.

"The kids were booked in Boston Friday night and had reservations on an early morning plane Saturday that would have put them at Greensboro airport shortly before 11 a.m.,---or in plenty of time to set up their equipment on stage.

"They were up at 5 a.m. and made their plane."

"But the fog caused the plane to be rerouted north."

"There was a slight chance to make connecting flight out of Cleveland but the kids couldn't get their luggage and equipment (53 pieces) transferred in time."

"Then they tried to charter a plane but couldn't find one that could carry the five of them and the equipment."

"We tried all Saturday morning to reach personnel at the college but could get no answer. (The switchboard was closed.)

"We were prepared to play that night if we could reschedule the concert," Kragen said.

"We've told the Student Union that we will pay any expenses that they may have incurred for advertising and printing."

"Also, we've told them that The First Edition feel so strongly about having to cancel out a college concert that they will be glad to come to High Point in March or April for a $2,000 fee rather than the $4,000 they customarily receive.

"In other words, they're willing to lose money just to make up their date to the college."

"We're sorry it happened and appreciate the chance to explain."

"It was just one of those things over which none of us had any control," Kragen said.

Priorities questioned

We need a new student union and we get a snack shop.

We need a more modern library and we get promises for a new section to be tacked right on to the old one.

We need responsiblity and we get rules.

High Point College's administration has so many irons in the fire that none of them are getting hot. The administrators are afraid of the student unrest which has become rampant on several campuses not far from home.

We are being appeased by stopgap methods.

Students have been concerned about the completion date for the new student union. To quell turmoil we now have a glorified book store-snack shop, which, by the way, was supposed to open weeks ago.

The library is also in a sad state of affairs. The librarians have been promised new stack sheives to be squeezed between the old ones until a new wing can be built. One can only speculate as to what will happen to the present building. Will it be remodeled or left in its present shape?

Perhaps the idea concerning the thinking students most is the idea of responsiblity. We are young people who are going to be turned loose in a "hard, cruel world" in a very short time. We can't learn to take responsibility unless it is given us.

Students have questioned: Why can't we have drinking on campus? Why can't we have open dorms? Why can't we govern ourselves more?

The recently initiated beer-dances have been attendance successes which have not lost money, in contrast to the usual result of college functions.

It has been found that, in the case of open dorms, students want visitation regulated to certain hours during certain days, not all weekend as some seem to think.

But both the dances and the dorm experiment are only tentative measures, although they are billed as another giant step in HPC's social progress.

We are being appeased with half-way measures that the administration feels will keep us happy, at least for a while until they conjure up something else.

The sad thing about this situation is that it is working! We are letting ourselves be pacified by makeshift measures. It is time the sleeping students of High Point College voice an opinion on the issues at hand.

The only way the administration can know the students' wishes is to tell them the way we feel.

We want responsibility, and we want it now.

Champagne and beer

"The Student Union is not getting the groups we want to hear." "If we can't have the Supremes or Blood, Sweat, and Tears, we don't want to go."

These are some of the comments heard around campus about the supposedly poor job the SU is doing.

The fact is, we have champagne taste on a beer budget.

We may as well try to sign the Beatles as consider groups in the $20,000 bracket, such as the Supremes.

The First Edition fiasco has been credited to Dave Holton, as had the Impressions flop.

Certainly, others have blamed both him and the SU for various and sundry other things, also.

The actual blame for these failures, plus the Shondells copout, does not rest with the SU or Mr. Holton.

On the contrary, under his leadership the organization has done fantastic things for High Point College.

The SU has tried to keep the best interests and wishes of the students foremost when considering possible types of entertainment.

However, it is caught in a power squeeze between the administration and the students. It is not allotted enough money to do the things the students are currently demanding. Neither has it been given an increased anount to help alleviate this situation.

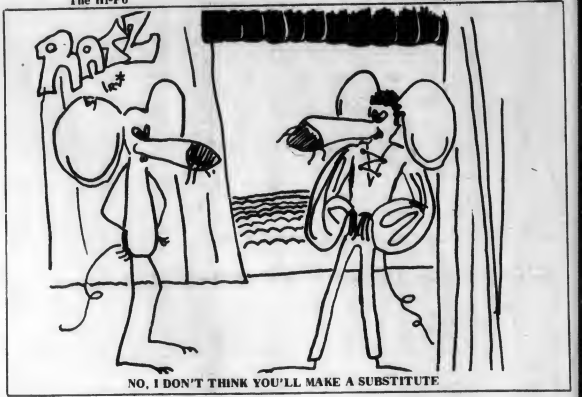

Now that Mr. Holton has relinquished his position to Larry Johnson, we suggest that the student body back this continued effort to provide the college with the best possible entertainment programs.

Midnight Ramblings

How About A Ride?

By David Steves

I have recently become fascinated by the great variety of automobiles being piloted about by the students at HPC. There seems to exist a very real social order among both the semi-sentient vehicles and their owners.

STEVES

Tops in the pecking order, of course, are the 1970 models and the newer or more expensive sportscars. A '70 VW does not compare with a '69 MGB, but it does beat the heck out of a '52 Chevy stationwagon.

Cars in this top category are usually the gifts of proud parents or the end result of much arduous toil and saving on the part of their young possessors.

The cars themselves are a rather standoffish bunch. They preen themselves in each others' side mirrors constantly, glorying in the constant loving care of both engine and exterior that is lavished upon them. They also tend to provoke races with the "lower classes" secure in the knowledge that anything they can't outstart they can outrun.

Next, below this elite group, are the medium to late-model cars that are in good condition. I also include here the vehicles that are not young, but have been rejuvenated through rebuilding.

Many of these vehicles undergo real suffering when they fall into the hands of a young coed who knows nothing about automobiles and their ills. I mean the kind who don't even know when their victim isn't performing right. "It starts every morning, doesn't it?" they say.

Long-suffering boyfriends are a usual accessory to this type of car and its driver. They sport greasy fingers, hangnails, and shudder when anyone mentions the word "engine." Of course, many of these sweet young things have an even better solution: they have it towed (the car not the boyfriend) to the garage, and announce "Fix it and send the bll to my Daddy."

The bottom category of this classification system is occupied by a conglomerate of objects that can only loosely be referred to as automobiles. They are generally titled "wheels" or "transportation" by their not-so-proud owners, who can be distinguished in any crowd by their tendency to keep all conversations away from the subjects of gas mileage, oil consumption, and cars in general.

The vehicles themselves run a full gamut of countries, makes, models, and years. A college campus is a good place to find such relative rarities as '53 De Sotos, all the Edsels, and a positive plethora of decrepit Fords and Chevroiets.

A Rose Is

By: Paul Gabriel

If High Point had a town crier and if he were allowed to spread the news, he might well ring out, "Paranoia Rules."

Suppose if you will, an inn-by-the-roadside, an old gray place outside but with a cheering fire and a sympathetic innkeeper.

The town gossips, a bit timid to enter and join in the fellowship, soon have the town buzzing with thoughts of Rabelaisian orgies and treasonous passions against the king.

A young maid in the inn was finally singled out as the cause of the evils and taken to the commons and burned as a witch.

Pardon me, but my analogy is showing.

More than six months ago a coffeehouse was opened in part to be a contact point for alienated youths in High Point.

Drug users, peace freaks, free love advocates and radical christians--augh!

It must be dangerous if "they" use the place, we had better close it down.

Most symbology aside, until the "Henge" people were forced into the streets, the constable and his law enforcers never met the hairy enemy face to face.

Last Saturday the "Henge" people held an outdoor rally, celebration and rock concert in front of the closed building and in a nearby city park.

Police smiled and clapped in time with the music, adults said they wished that they had come sooner and many a youth expressed concern in community problems and a desire to get involved in "something that was really happening."

Many churches were leafleted and one was even interrupted; despite the unnecessary rudeness, more positive response has been received than ever before.

Perhaps this seed of rational community support will be allowed to grow without the threat of a witch-hunt.

As long as it stays in the streets it is free and open.

"It" is, at least for now, if not forced to change again, a contemporary aggregate of good samaritans no longer in the inn but the street.

Not just anyone can be turned away at the inn.

Nearly anybody can close a door.

Have you ever seen a peacock? He isn't beautiful as he could be until he opens himself to all around.

But he can be hurt more easily too.

Sure, and even marble corrodes when it stands still too long.

A peacock is a long, long time but there may come a time when the crier can ring out, "I've talked to everyone and all is well."

Guns Are Protection Say New Police

High Point College is no longer protected by "campus cops." HPC has gone to the top, and is now employing men from the oldest detective agency in the United States, The William J. Burns International Detective Agency.

Sergeant T. W. Wilson, who has had eleven years of experience, supervises the other three HPC patrolmen.

Each of the men have had from three to five years of experience.

There is a walking patrol, where one man walks the campus, checking the Student Center, Roberts Hall, dormitories and other locations of activity.

There is a motor patrol, which checks the President's house, the Public Relations building and the other buildings not on the immediate campus.

Many students have pondered the question of why the patrolmen wear guns.

Mr. Earle G. Dalbey and President Wendell M. Patton determine the regulations for the agency and they decided that the guns were a necessary precaution to protect the campus.

Sergeant Wilson said, "We carry guns for protection, for the students and ourselves; there could be an incident when a trespasser causes trouble, and we're forced to use guns."

SU Weathers Storm

High Point College never heard Kenny Rogers and the First Edition's rich soil of folk melody, blues, jazz, hard rock, and classics.

At 2:30 on the day of the concert, Saturday afternoon, Dave Holton received a telegram from the group.

The telegram said that there had been a flight change that could not have been helped.

There was bad weather in Pittsburgh, they were diverted to Cleveland, and there was not a flight out that could have reached High Point before 9:30 on Saturday night.

When asked if there was some sort of action that could be taken against the group, Holton replied, "No, in their contract, they have an 'act of God' clause that covers everything from stubbed toes to hangnails, and that's their loophole."

"People might ask why we agreed to such a contract. The reason is, that every big name group has such a clause," said Holton.

The $4000 the SU has "saved" can now be used for alternative entertainment.

Larry Johnson said that the most likely possibility at this point as an alternative would be an off-campus party.

Mike Carle stated that it might be desirable to have the group come on campus in the Spring after its European tour for a reduced rate.

At the same time Holton tendered his resignation from active administration as SU chairman due to work committments and responsiblities in the naval reserve.

Larry Johnson is to assume the duties in the interim until elections can be held later in the semester.

Holton said that he would serve in an advisory capacity to the SU endeavors.

Holton has suggested that a SU Director be hired.

"The SU involves too much work for a student, who also has studies to keep up. A director would be able to devote all his time to the SU.

"A director could provide activities on campus, give the activities the necessary publicity that they need, and generally, wake the college up, especially with the new Student Center being planned, a director is really going to be needed."

"As soon as the Student Center opens, there should be programs and entertainment already scheduled," Holton said.

Chaplain Plans Session

"How do you tell George He's got bad breath without getting punched in the mouth," is Chaplain Mullinix's explanation of a coming weekend's sensitivity training at Boone.

There are aspects of communication of which most people are not aware -- verbal and nonverbal.

For this reason Reverend Mullinix is planning a series of encounter groups of a form of sensitivity training.

"This will not be a group therapy session," emphasized Mullinix, "but will be an effort to get away from the dehumanization society is trying to force on us."

The groups will attempt to "help the individual discover who he is and how he fits into society," and yet "make each member appreciate others as individual, unique human beings."

Although much bad publicity has been given to sensitivity training by pretender groups who feature nudity as a drawing card, legitimate groups have gained a strong foothold on many of the nation's largest campuses.

Mullinix's group will attempt to strip the individual of his trite defenses and make him aware of these same cop-outs in others.

He plans to start with one pilot group, composed of about a dozen people. The groups will meet once a week unless they feel this is too infrequent.

No time has been set for the start of this program, but those interested in the pilot group should contact Mullinix.

More groups will form if there is interest and if the faculty will give aid to the program.

Also in the works for February is a coffee house, thematically revolving around three words: Introspection, Evaluation, and Involvement.

Activities will include a film festival, a concert by the Sons of Thunder, and rap sessions led by Reginald Smith of the A.S.U. Wesley Foundation.

Mullinix also reminds students of the experimental worldship held every Sunday at 6:30 p.m. He said the location is "in and around Lindley Chapel."

Invasion Of Privacy

Open Visitation Meets With Approval

By MARY GLADENY

Open visitation was tried at HPC for the first time last semester and met with the general approval of the student body.

One freshman girl decided that she would not like boys to visit on Sunday afternoons because "People need Sundays to rest" although she went on to say that she would not mind visiting the boy's dorm during those hours.

Senior Lorraine Scronce suggested once a month on Sunday afternoons.

Javier Sanjines, sophomore, thought it would be nice twice a month. "That would give you something different to do," he said.

Junior Wayne Schoenhut thought that the dorms should be open every day, with girls being required to sign male visitors in and out on a special form and vice-versa. He added, "A lot of other colleges do this and the students are only required to put a book in the doorframe."

Danny O'Connor believes that the only restriction should be the doors remaining unlocked; "however, I don't think that girls should ever be allowed into the rooms of my dorm because no matter how hard you try you could never clean them up enough to allow a girl in. This is speaking from my point of view; I live in McCulloch Hall, I can't speak for the men in Millis or the New Dorm."

The majority of the students interviewed believe that some progress in this area can and should be made. As one summed it up, "Other colleges already have open visitation and it seems a shame for us to be outdated in this area, too."

STAFFER GLADNEY QUIZZES PAT QUAKENBUSH

Amid the many favorable opinions expressed were a few negative reactions.

Several thought that open visitation would be detrimental to their study effrts.

One freshman girl saw no sense in it at all. "It's good for maybe once a year like at Christmas; that was nice, but not every Sunday. I wouldn't bring my boyfriend up here; what would it be like if I had a guy up here and my roomate did too? There are lobbies and lounges for people to visit in!"

Sophomore Doug Tracey had a solution to the whole question: "I think students are mature enough to decide for themselves, they ought to bring it up as a plebiscite and vote on it."

Campus News Briefs

Players Christen Original

Mrs. Carolyn Rauch, director of the High Point College drama society, announced that the spring production of the Tower Players will be the first production of a new play by the author of Pumpernickel Ice Cream, Dr. Walter Huggins, entitled The Skin Game.

Huggins, according to Mrs. Rauch, has "honored the Players by allowing them to be the first to put on his new play. It is actually a very great compliment to us."

"He will be working very closely with us," she added, "all the way from try-outs through rehearsals to opening night."

"I think I am going to be a little nervous about that," said Mrs. Rauch, "I've never had an author watch me direct his play before."

The play itself, a satirical autobiographical spoof on the life and times of a famous football quarterback, is to be partially set on the campus of a North Carolina college, "Cathedral Hill."

The play has been dubbed a cross between primitive American melodrama, high camp comedy, and joyful-ended goodness by script-readying members of the Tower Players.

Senior, Paul Gabriel, chief set designer for the Players, terms the problems which will be presented in staging the production "interesting."

Rehersals and set construction are to begin this week.

Blood Needed

High Point's chapter of the American Red Cross will be on campus, Monday, March 10 in a bloodmobile donor drive sponsored by the Alpha Phi Omega.

The bloodmobile will be open to those desiring to give blood in the student center during the hours of 10:00 and 3:30.

There is to be an inter-fraternity competition, the prize for which is a trophy to be given to the fraternity or sorority with the largest number of those attempting to give blood.

John Young, APO representative, emphasized the need for the signed releases to be obtained from the parents for all students under 21.

The donor drive is to be open to the community and anyone who gives at least one pint of blood will be entitled to free blood for himself or family should the need arise.

Deadline Set

Willis Shaw, the editor of the Apogee, says that he needs all forms of creative literature including short stories, essays, poems, and any other type work which does not exceed 1,500 words.

Although the tentative deadline for student material is February 21, Shaw said that he might extend it if not enough material is in by then.

This year's publication will get its main financial support from the Student Government Association in the form of a $600 grant.

Another $600 grant from the administration is pending.

A stipulation has been placed on the grant requiring the publication of faculty material.

Shaw said that if this money comes through, the faculty material will be judged by the faculty at another institution.

Student material will be selected by a student reading committee with Shaw having the final word.

Shaw, with the help of Dr. C. E. Mounts, advisor, and Jan Henry, associate editor, conducts a creative writing seminar every Thursday at 3:30 in Cooke Hall.

Kerr Speaks

Sherry Franz, president of the Delta Beta chapter of Alpha Phi Gamma, national honorary journalism fraternity, announced this week that there will be a chapter meeting at 6:30 p.m., Thursday, February 12, in Lindley Chapel of Roberts Hall.

After the business portion of the meeting, there will be a guest speaker: Mrs. Lane Kerr, former home furnishings editor of the Greensboro Daily News, will address the group on her experiences as a female newsman dealing with the White House during the Johnson administration.

Miss Franz added, "All the members must be present."

A Psi O Initiates

Alpha Psi Omega, High Point College's new dramatic fraternity held the inductions of its charter members on Sunday, February 1, 1970.

Initiated were Miss Jo Deininger, Miami Florida; Miss Virginia Price, Annandale, Virginia; Miss Judith Scott, Jekyll Island, Georgia; and Patrick Austin, High Point.

Also scheduled to be inducted are: Mrs. Margaret Leary, High Point; Miss Dorothy Styles, Black Mountain, N.C., both alumni of HPC; and Paul Gabriel, current president of The Tower Players.

fact, substandard.

Out of the 694 total for 1967, 56 first semester and 113 second semester were from day school, this relationship was repeated in 1968 with 44 first semester and 81 second semester out of the 546 total.

The non-day students enrollment decreased from first to second semester by eight percent in 1967 and over ten percent in 1968.

As to what Mr. Holt expects in the February 13 meeting, he said, "We may consider other things such as non-credit business courses, speed reading, or afternoon classes . . . or we may keep Evening School."

"It has definitely been a great asset to the Community -- I firmly believe that."

RIDE . . .

The cars spend a lot of time in the shop and up on jacks in the campus' parking lots, since no one can really afford to have all the needed work done in one of the many places that can repair such an abomination.

I guess cars are just like animal pets; the longer you own one, the more you get to looking and acting like it.

Harriers Suffer Lack Of Depth

"A lack of depth could prevent us from winning any titles this season," said coach Robert Davidson of the High Point College track team.

Last spring they placed fourth in the conference, following Presbyterian by only one point.

"This season Catawba will be the team to beat in this conference," said Davidson.

Javelin seems to be one of the strongest events this season.

Gary Markland, a past district champion, returns, supported by Walter Mantz and Jim Leng.

Individually, Dinnis Bowley, Mike Lewis, Carlvin Steed, and Tommy Davis will contribute to the sprint events; and as a team, they should do well in the 440 relay.

Steed, Mantz, Lewis, Mark land, and Bill Webb will be fea tured in broad jump and tripl jump along with George Jone in the high jump.

Davidson feels "adequate" the mile run and 880, with Eri Noren and Loyd Davis.

Also termed as adequate b Davidson are high hurdle an 440 intermediate hurdle event with good performances ex pected from Webb, Mantaz, an Harry Melrose.

The three mile run "look pretty good" with Richard Lits ford and Mike Johnson.

Snack Bar Delayed By Lack Of Work

SNACK BAR NEARING COMPLETION

Construction work on the almost completed temporary snack shop has been fitful at best, The Hi-Po was informed by Earle G. Dalbey, HPC's vice-president for business and financial affairs.

Students who had been impressed with the speed with which the structure approached completion during the first semester of this year were disappointed by the dearth of progress over their four-week Christmas absence.

"No work was done," said Dalbey, "because the contractor couldn't get anyone to work. There simply wasn't any labor available before New Year's."

Dalbey blamed the geographic location of the building for some of the slow-down; "You've got to remember that this is the South. . . .people just aren't in as much of a hurry as they are up North."

President Wendell M. Patton stated in an earlier interview that the contractors did not regard this particular job as being of sufficient importance to merit their full efforts, and that larger jobs paying more money would probably get higher priority.

Also cited by Dalbey as a factor in the work's slow progress was the fact that construction was halted for a week after the building's electrical wiring had been put in by the slowness with which the High Point city building safety inspectors arrived to inspect the job.

In spite of all delays, Dalbey expects to open the temporary snackshop's doors for business "within two or three weeks."

"I'm waiting on the arrival of the tables and chairs," he explained.

The refrigerator ordered from General Electric as part of the snack shop's kitchen facilities has not yet arrived due to the strike that GE has been faced with, but Dalbey is confident that now that the dispute has been settled it will be on the way.

"If not I'll buy another one somewhere," he added.

Hours of operation for the new facility will be from 6:00 p.m. until lock-up hours (11:30 p.m. Sunday through Thursday and 1:00 a.m. on Friday and Saturday).

Questioned as to what else will be in the new building besides the grill and attendant eating space, Dalbey stated that it would take time and some indication of student desires before anything else would be considered as an addition.

The present cold-lunch facilities available in the college bookstore will remain in operation, he added, thus providing roughly 8:00 a.m. through 11:30 p.m. eating facilities for the students.

Are elections needed?

It will be interesting this year to see if we can surpass last year by having one candidate for each of the four major SGA offices.

This way we may be able to do away with SGA elections altogether and end this long, drawn-out process of postponing speeches and elections until such time as there are enough candidates for the vacant offices.

The elections committee has plastered walls, windows, and posts with notices of the forthcoming elections and candidate requirements.

Hopefully, interested students, well, maybe curious students, will read these bulletins. That in itself is a major accomplishment around this campus.

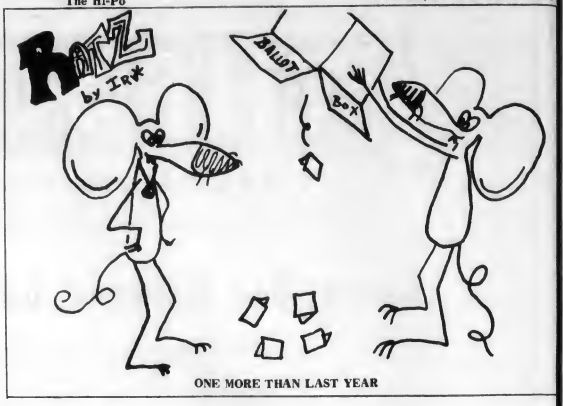

Not an SGA office-holder has passed away without receiving some type of criticism, but are we willing to take the responsibility to change that which we don't like?

Do we have the guts to stand up and take the blame or credit for changing or continuing SGA policy?

If last year is any indication of upcoming general interest, we are in sad shape, as far as leadership goes.

In order to make a choice we must first have something to choose from. We must remember that because there is only one person running for an office does not necessarily mean that he is the best for the job.

It is hoped that the number of students interested in governmental and student affairs in general warrant the need for an election. Otherwise our time is wasted.

ONE MORE THAN LAST YEAR

Editor's Mail

Dear Editor

The editorial entitled "As Lemmings Run" in the February 7 edition of The Hi-Po captured my eye and my mind. Surely this problem of students leaving our institution of higher learning is appalling, if not disgraceful. In order to find a way to stem the tide of this grand exodus, I consulted the leaders of various student government groups across the nation. I was beginning to think the solution impossible until I talked to Art Bacchus, President of the Student Government Assassination of High Town College, High Town, N. C.

"Mr. Bacchus," I queried, "I understand that High Town College used to have a population problem."

"Yes," he said, "each semester more and more students were moving off campus."

"But didn't you build a new Coed Dorm?" I interjected.

"Yes, we have," he replied. "Then why were the students moving off campus," I asked, puzzled.

"For various reasons," said Bacchus. "Probably to avoid paying board fees, or to have better study conditions and more general privacy, or just to escape the dorm rules. The reasons were as numerous as the people moving out," he added.

"I see," I exclaimed, as I began to understand the situation. "But the dorms look crowded now. What brought about the change?"

"Ah ha!" he replied snappily, beaming at me. "The Student Government Assassination (SGA) is responsible for that. At first we were stymied, but then someone from the Student Legislature suggested a revolutionary action."

"And what was that?"

"A Student Moratorium for Freedom from Campus Restrictions," he almost shouted. "We used a giant purple grape for our Freedom Symbol."

"Why a grape," I asked.

"Because every cause needs a Symbol," he exclaimed, rather importantly. "We even encouraged the students to keep grapes in their rooms by supplying them with portable refrigerators. Now they can keep their grapes fresh and cool to the tongue, as well as out of sight from the housemothers. Surely this was an accomplishment for the SGA."

"Well, Mr. Bacchus, I can see that things have really changed here at HTC in many ways. What is the SGA doing in the way of entertainment for the students?

"I'm glad you asked that, Steve. Our subsidiary, the Status Union (SU), has signed many "big name" bands for campus concerts."

"I bet the students really went for that," I exclaimed.

Bacchus frowned. "Well, I said we signed up "big name" bands. So far we haven't had much luck with them actually showing up to play," he conceded. "But we're working this problem over."

"I've also heard that the SGA has succeeded in getting some students placed on faculty committees. What progress have you made in this area?" I questioned.

"We're real happy about this, Steve." He smiled confidently. "Right now we're working on a program to eliminate the seemingly high academic mortality rate among the freshmen. We have proposed to abolish all academic standards, thereby destroying the whip of tyranny and pedagogy here at HTC."

"But how will a student's progress be evaluated if all standards are eliminated?" I asked.

"We've thought of that, too," he beamed. "Under the new plan a student will be rated according to his ability to consume grapes!"

"But wouldn't such a diet be unhealthy for the students?"

"Just as long as the students don't get graped," he laughed, an obvious pun.

The company commander we at first had hated and feared, we now liked and admired. It wasn't that he had changed, but that we had accepted the new routine and prospered in its structure as he directed us.

The common bond we recruits first shared had grown to friendship and now most of us were returning to our divergent origins - our ways to possibly cross years later on active duty.

A small number of us had our experience only half over as we were now ordered to two weeks active duty.

Midnight Ramblings

So Bleed Already

By David Steves

Have you ever looked at the front page of the second section of The Greensboro Daily News? If so, you have probably noticed that on the lower left side of the page is a medium-sized picture of a lanky-tressed young man with a sleepy look on his face. This is Jerry Bledsoe, whose column, MEANDERINGS, appears below his picture.

STEVES

Last week I got the chance to meet this paragon in the flesh when he came to the HPC campus to address a journalism class, and a most interesting speaker he turned out to be.

You see, Jerry is a holder of the Ernie Pyle Award, which is the rookie-of-the-year prize of newspapering. He writes a fairly good and moderately humourous column that specializes in "color" stories.

But the man is a guidance counselor's nightmare: without any of the benefits of hgher education he has become a fairly erudite columnist for one of the more prominent southern newspapers and won one of the higher awards of professional journalism.

However, Jerry is not the hard-driving go-getter that all these accomplishments would seem him to be. Rather, he has openly dedicated his entire life and being to the perfection of the art of what he terms "laying around"... indolence, in other words. He also insists that newspapering is one of the most fertile fields for furthering such a study.

Jerry himself reminds me of how the young Abe Lincoln must have looked on his way to the Illinois statehouse; tall, gaunt, and pale. All he lacks to be the complete image is the prognathous jaw. Even without it, he presents a good picture of a vegetarian in a crop failure.

Contrary to what might be inferred from his humourous writing style, Jerry is a sort of shy person: seventy-five per cent of the talk he gave in the class was addressed to a spot roughly six inches in front of the desk he was sitting on. You get the impression that he does not like being face to face with more than three or four people at a time.

Jerry's sole venture into the higher plateaus of academia has left him a one-semester alumnus of High Point College, and he apparently maintains some interest in the place. He recalls only one of the professors he had as worthy of the name (Dr. Sa Underwood), but says he does s improvement.

I questioned him as to why h does not write some of his co umns on collegiate issues or ha penings of interest. He answer that some of the issues made hi so mad he just was unable even talk about them, let alo write about them.

Trying to pin him down a lit bit, I discovered that he had fo lowed the events of last week' shut-down of the Stonehenge wi interest. While agreeing that t purpose that the Stonehenge per personnel had announced of a tempting to aid individuals havi problems with drugs was com mendable, he brought up his o main objection to their activit "If they're gong to try to sav them from the drug scene, w try to change their hang-ups Christianity?"

He seems to be of the opini that in such a case the cu wold be worse than the disea

In short, Jerry Bledsoe is slow-moving rebel. His espous of the "do your own thing" phi osophy, however, prevents h from concerted action against t establishment and reduced him the role of gadfly.

I would venture to predi though, that if any man is cap ble of overthrowing a social or by "laying around," Jerry Bled soe is the one.

SCREENPLAY

Arts School Dances

On February 12 the North Carolina School of Arts presented an Evening of Dance at Memorial Auditorium in one of the Campus and Community Series.

The program included "Fugitive Visions" by Job Sanders, "Poeme" by Pauline Koner, "Screenland" by Sanders, "Flick-Flack" and "Symphony Thirteen" by Duncan Noble.

The company first danced "Poeme" in November, 1969 in New York. The ballet received enthusiastic reviews from the New York Times, the Saturday Review, Dance Magazine, and the Village Voice.

Saunders said, "It's about life and some feelings I had about Peg herself and about despire and joy," he added.

The program on Thursday night was well attended by High Point College students, faculty, and community members.

Rauch Casts Skin Game

Mrs. Carolyn Rauch, director of the drama department at High Point College, has released the list for the cast of The Skin Game, the spring production, written by Walt Hudgins. The parts go as follows:

Joe, Jon Werner; Mama, June Nunnery; Papa, Dave Springer, who will also work as choreographer with Mrs. Paul Owen; Sueann, Teresa Rimer; Roxy, Mary Burnley, with Debbie Johnson as her understudy; Grapolski, Rich Moore.

Also cast were Chris Mckinney as Old Bloody and Little Maff; Sally Kemp as Mini; Patti Frost as Pearl Lynn; John Dashkavich as Hoot; and Mike Waggoner as Rock. Pat Gibson was cast as both Bart McMartin and number 71. Patrick Austin will play Big Maff. The commissioner will be played by Herman Coble, Jr., the bartender will be Ed Grune, and Sam Lemonds will be number 38.

The play also has a chorus which will consist of: Ginger Price, Terry Botts, Susan Sharrock, Patti Frost, Evey Kirk and Cynthia Grestemuller, Gerry Owen, Robbie Woodside, Denise Gregorio, Sherry Danforth, Sally Kemp, Ed Grune, Hartson Poland, and Cliff Metcalf.

The football players are: John Dashkavich, Pat Gibson, Charlie Colff, Pete Uchno, Rich Moore, Mike Reise, Sam Lemonds, and Mike Waggoner.

The assistant director is Debbit Johnson; Stage manager is Lynda Long; and Terry Botts is the chorus leader.

Due to the large number of parts in the play, Mrs. Rauch opened tryouts to the residents of High Point. Two High Point residents who do not attend HPC have captured the female leads. They are Mary Burnley and Teresa Rimer. According to Mrs. Rauch, the two girls gave the most impressive performances of all who tried out for the female leads.

Some of the returning Tower Players are: Pat Gibson, who played the parts of first guard in Antigone and the enemy leader in The Unknown Soldier and his Wife. Gibson also played the role of McCann in Birthday Party.

Also returning is Dave Springer who was Petey in Birthday Party. Pat Austin, who has been in almost every Tower Players production since his freshman year, including the male leads of Creon in Antigone, the general in The Unknown Soldier and his Wife, and Goldberg in Birthday Party, will again appear on stage in his final performance with the Tower Players. Freshmen Rich Moore was Stanley in Birthday Party.

Also reappearing will be Denise Gregorio, who was Lulu in Birthday Party; Ginger Price, who was Meg in Birthday Party, and Herman Coble, Jr.

MRS. RAUCH CONTEMPLATES CAST

SANTA CLAUS WORE OLIVE DRAB GREEN

Only minutes after our arrival at the central receiving station, we were herded into dull grey buses standing by outside to take us on the too short ride to the camp. As we approached the gates of the compound the guards waved us through. The sight of arriving busloads of the camp's new consignments was evidentally commonplace.

We had been sent from all over the southeastern third of the country and though strangers to each other only hours before, we shared a common bond. We all realized that to resist was futile, to escape - impossible, and to give in - inevitable.

Each of us was soon to forfeit all possessions from the outside world, to forfeit thinking for ourselves, to forfeit doing what we want, when we want, how we want. We were to have our heads shaved almost bald and be regarded in equal standing - that of relative unimportance.

We were to do everything not as individuals but as a company. The only visible sign that was to remain of our former selves was our last name, stenciled prominantly above the pocket on our dull blue uniform shirts.

There was no turning back now.

We had all raised our right hand and signed on the dotted line.

We were in the Naval Reserve and this was our first reward: Christmas in bootcamp.

The buses pulled up outside building 213 and the drivers yelled for us to disembark. Several uniformed camp veterans directed us up to the third landing of W-Wing where we were to catch our first sight of the man who was to be our company commander.

Young, close-cropped, muscled, of medium height, possessing a sinister smile and a deep harsh voice which we were soon to hear much of, the C. O. watched his new company of reserve warriors file in.

SURPRISES IN STORE

Little did we realize that the pleasantly joking man before us then was to be the officer we were to hate and feat hours later.

Those first few days were hell while we adjusted ourselves to the rigorous routine of reveille at four, breakfast at five, drilling till inspection at 7, classes at eight, dinner at ten-thrity, classes till supper at four, barracks-lectures, and free time for letter writing and shoe shining before the evening clean-up began around 6:30, and taps at 9.

Our first meal served harsh notice of the food we could expect during the remaining weeks.

Quality fresh and frozen foods, together with some reconstituted items were miraculously transformed into tasteless, partially undercooked, partially over-cooked, and completely greasy gastronomical disasters.

Our company commander denied that the chow was flavored with sizable amounts of potassium nitrate though seemingly verifiable evidence could be offered otherwise.

To compound the disgust with the usual bill of fare, recruit petty officers walked around yelling "get it and go, people" and various other irritable sayings to encourage us to rapidly consume the fodder and leave.

EVENTFUL INSPECTION

Our first personnel inspection was in our barracks the morning following our arrival.

While we all stood at attention, there was a general nervousness as one of the camp's better known and disliked inspectors walked from recruit to recruit.

At the same time one of the company's younger boys continued to have an upset stomach in reaction to his preliminary contact with bootcamp chow at supper the night before and at breakfast a little earlier that morning.

It was indeed unfortunate for the inspector that he stopped in front of the ill lad to give him a going over, as the boy just couldn't contain his stomach anymore and lost it all over the face, shirt, and coat to the completely suprised and loudly cursing inspector.

It was fate that chose to single this young lad out and make him famous for such an embarrassing occurrence, but the story of his accomplishment spread quickly on base and he came to be recognized on sight.

KEEP IT CLEAN

To cut down on the time necessary for the barracks clean-ups prior to daily inspections, by means of devious logic it was decided that we would be prohibited from many otherwise normal actions.

To keep the floors clean and scuffless, we were not allowed to wear our shoes inside.

We couldn't use any of the tables and chairs in the barracks.

We were not allowed to use the water fountain. To keep the blackboard eraser clean we had to use a cloth to wipe the board.

We could only use two of the eight toilets and five of the 12 sinks.

To keep enough sets of clothes on the clothes line outside for inspection, we would throw water on the same clothes every night.

Once one set of our clothes was correctly folded and placed properly in our lockers, we were not allowed to touch it and were instead to keep using the unfolded items.

The most ridiculous rule prohibited us from sleeping between the sheets on our bunks - only on top. The exception to this was once a week the night before we changed the sheets when we had "hotel night" to wrinkle and dirty the bottom sheet.

ENDURANCED STRESSED

Classes every weekday were on topics such as first aid, NBC warfare, water survival, fire fighting and damage control, the Uniform Code of Military Justice, gunnery, Navy organization, marlinspike seamanship (rope tieing), and "Why Vietnam?"

The highlight of our classes was the gas chamber wherein we had to remove our masks and sing "jingle bells," to insure our thorough inhalation to the tear gas already stinging our exposed skin.

Marching and double-timing everyday except Sunday to inspection, to chow, to class, and on the grinder (a large blacktop area), most all of us developed foot blisters. For the first time since junior high school I couldn't wait to take off my thin dark socks and put on the white socks I bought for myself at the Navy Exchange.

One could not write about bootcamp without mentioning the distinctive medical services offered.

Sick call was held twice every day, and was a marvel of inefficiency and time consumption.

It often only took one trip for a man to decide he would rather die than wait in line for hours to rarely see a doctor, to be yelled at, harshly and unsympathetically treated, and then given asperin to relieve his maladies.

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

Yes, Christmas vacation in bootcamp definitely was a unique experience. Christmas day we were permitted the distinct privilege of sleeping till 6 a.m. as opposed to the normal 4.

The only Christmas carol we sung or heard the entire time was the one we sung in the gas chamber.

New Year's Eve we were in bed by nine and up the next morning at the unusually late hour of 5:30.

We left two weeks after our arrival in bootcamp, early on a rainy Saturday morning.

OPEN LETTER FROM THE FIRST EDITION

451 N. CANON DR., BEVERLY HILLS, CALIFORNIA 90210

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE STUDENTS AND FACULTY OF HIGH POINT COLLEGE.

We would like to express our deepest regrets and apologies for our inability to reach High Point and perform as scheduled on Saturday, February 7th.

We feel that all of you who attended or planned to attend the concert should know the facts of the situation. Here is what happened:

We left Boston, Massachusetts, where we performed the night before, at 7:00am Saturday morning on Allegheny Airlines Flight #829. We were scheduled to change planes in Pittsburgh to Eastern Airlines #739. Unfortunately, however, the Allegheny flight never landed in Pittsburgh as that airport was closed by bad weather. While in the air, our airplane was rerouted to Cleveland. We immediately investigated the possibility of getting a connecting flight which would take us to Greensboro in time to drive to High Point for our 2:30pm concert. By the time our equipment was unloaded from the airplane, there were no connections we could make. We then investigated the possibility of hiring a charter aircraft, but with five people and fifty-two pieces of equipment and luggage, weighing nearly 3,000 pounds, we could not locate an aircraft large enough.

When it became apparent that we could not possibly make it to High Point on Saturday afternoon, we tried unsucessfully to notify your school, our agent, and our managers. We then sent telegrams to the school activitiy office and to the auditorium.

These are the facts. Still, the saddest fact of all is that you were disappointed by us, and we were very disappointed that we could not do our show for your school. The First Edition has been performing for almost three years. This is the first time we have ever missed a concert! We think that we are responsible entertainers who try always to maintain a high level of professionalism.

In any case we are very sorry for any inconveniences we may have caused you, the students and faculty at High Point college.

We have offered to reimburse the school for any expenses incurred in connection with the show and to appear at some future date for half our normal fee. Although our failure to appear was in no way our fault, we still want to do everything in our power to make up for your dissapointment at Homecoming.

PATTON ASK

By DAVID STEVES

Tuesday, Feb. 24, at 6 p.m. High Point College saw its first large protest meeting, as approximately 300 students gathered before Harrison Hall to hear speakers.

The president, Wendell M. Patton, and several administrators were to hold several meetings the next morning for the hearing of the student grievances, and ask that all students please attend.

The president asked several administrators for their opinions on such topics as open dormitories and selective visitation.

The rally broke up with loud applause.

Next morning at 10 a.m. a grievance assembly was held in the auditorium of the Fine Arts Building.

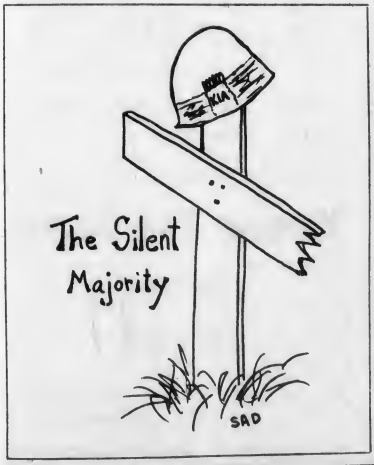

Questions were directed to Robert T. Phillips, Michael Carle, and Earl G. Dalbey, who were representing the administration.

College Chaplain, Roland Mullinix moderated the discussion that eventually followed between the administrators and a student panel consisting of Brian Ditzler, John Young, and two freshmen; Pete Uehno, and Marsha Little.

First on the program was President Patton's opening remarks. He thanked all persons for attending, contrasting the gathering with a series of meetings. To facilitate communications that he had held two weeks ago which were attended by progressively less than one dozen students.

"We do need improved communications," he stated. "I feel that this has been our greatest problem this year." He added, "The doors to any administrative office on this campus are always open to any student."

Patton went on to state, "There is a small group of students on and have sometimes [illegible] cation for some time, according architect," stated Dalbey. to Dalbey.

Holton Sees Need For Program Planner

Senior David Holton, former chairman of the Student Union governing board, addressed a plea for the hiring of a full-time director of the Student Union to last week's family meeting.

Citing the need for a program planner and disbursement comptroller, Holton saked that an SU director be hired before the building was begun, in order to assist with planning the contents of the SU hall.

He asked that the faculty support his contention and support the students through the Student Union.

Mack Patrols Campus

Ranking member of the William J. Burns Detective Agency's HPC detachment is Sergeant Walter "Mack" Floyd.

Sergeant Mack, as he is known to his new friends on campus, is a veteran of the Greensboro City Police Department, retired after thirty years of active duty with the rank of lieutenant.

Extremely experienced and well-versed in law enforcement, Sgt. Floyd is a valuable part of the new HPC police force.

Candidates Sought

Student Government Association elections for the offices of President, Vice-President, Secretary, and Treasurer of the SGA will be held March 11 and 12.

Briefly, the election requirements state that:

1. A Candidate must have an overall "C" average and be a member of the rising junior or senior class.

2. Petitions for candidacy must be signed by at least 100 students and not more than 115. They must be turned in to P.O. Box 3200, Campus Mail, or to Bill Hatchl, room 104-B in the New Dorm, by February 25.

The elections will take place in the Student Center from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

Candidates' speaches will be delivered at the March assembly in the auditorium.

If any prospective candidate has a question concerning any part of the executive committee elections, consult either your Student Handbook or Bill Hatchl.

QUAKER QUINTET QUELLS HIGH POINT

By Dick Knopf

Despite a twenty-five point performance by High Point senior guard, Danny Witt, the Panthers were outlasted by the Guilford Quakers Tuesday night by a score of 95-65.

After a slow start, the Quakers poured on the steam and exploded to a sizable lead.

Powerful offense and superior defense allowed the Quakers to pull ahead early in the game.

A command of both offensive and defensive boards by the Quakers forced High Point to play Guilford's fast-paced game. The Panthers were not able to keep up with Guilford's running offense, falling behind 52-30 at the half.

The Panthers were not strong offensively in the first half, with Witt, the Carolina Conference scoring leader, adding only 7 points.

Joe Colbert had 10 points, Joe Wilson 8, John Kirkman, 4, and Tubby Smith 1, his total for the game.

Again, a plethora of personal fouls placed the Panthers in early problems. Kirkman quirked himself into four quick querries in the first half. This panther plague accounted for Guilford's 16 points from the line in the first twenty minutes.

High Point came on strong in the second half and cut the lead to 12 points.

Wilson also came on strong with 8 points, pushing his total for the night to 16.

But Guilford settled down to its even keel of run-and-shoot basketball, allowing for the 30 point difference at the end of the game.

After both Smith and Kirkman had fouled out, the Panther prospects were dim.

Jerry Crocker and Tom Ennis added 14 each and Teddy East had 10.

The Purple Panthers wind up their 1969-70 conference season Saturday night in Alumni Cymnasium against the Catawba Indians from Salisbury, North Carolina.

After the Catawba contest, the Panthers will be preparing themselves for the Carolina Conference Tournament, beginning February 25 in Winston-Salem.

It was a twenty-plus point performance by High when senior guard, Tommy Wike, his brothers were reinstated by the Guilford College faculty, Monday night by a count of 69-61.

After a few short, but fine, hours, greeted on the streets and applauded by students from Fairfield, Guilford and adjacent suburbs showed the Panthers how it should really be done.

A combination of both offensive and defensive strategy was employed during Second High Point vs. Guilford's Independents game. The Panthers were the ones to jump up with Guilford's running attack, which looked to be the deciding factor.

The Panthers were out of step offensively before first half, with their fine all-star defensive

PATTON ASKS "PROPER CHANNELS"

By DAVID STEVES

Tuesday, Feb. 24, at 6 p.m. High Point College saw its first large protest meeting, as approximately 300 students gathered before Harrison Hall to hear speakers.

The president, Wendell M. Patton, and several administrators were to hold several meetings the next morning for the hearing of the student grievances, and ask that all students please attend.

The president asked several administrators for their opinions on such topics as open dormitories and selective visitation.

The rally broke up with loud applause.

Next morning at 10 a.m. a grievance assembly was held in the auditorium of the Fine Arts Building.

Questions were directed to Robert T. Phillips, Michael Carle, and Earl G. Dalbey, who were representing the administration.

College Chaplain, Roland Mullinix moderated the discussion that eventually followed between the administrators and a student panel consisting of Brian Ditzler, John Young, and two freshmen; Pete Uchno, and Marsha Little.

First on the program was President Patton's opening remarks. He thanked all persons for attending, contrasting the gathering with a series of meetings. To facilitate communications that he had held two weeks ago which were attended by progressively less than one dozen students.

"We do need improved communications," he stated. "I feel that this has been our greatest problem this year." He added, "The doors to any administrative office on this campus are always open to any student."

Patton went on to state, "There is a small group of students on this campus who are seeking to destroy this institution, and who apparently do not know that there exists a right and a wrong way to accomplish changes."

He then brought forth several points dealing principally with the fact that HPC, as a small, private, Christian college expects its students to act as Christians and ladies and gentlemen at all times.

Reminding the students of the oath they had signed upon their admission to the college, he told them, "Your primary concern is to be educated, not to be involved."

Siting the SGA as the proper organization through which students should seek change and reform, he promised the assemblage that lawful and orderly protest demonstrations would be protected, but asked that they be used only as a last resort.

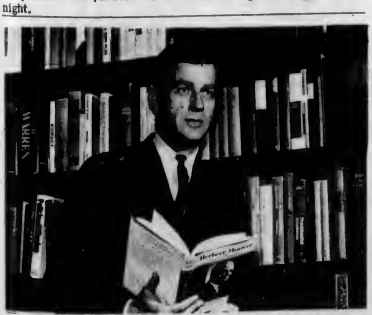

Announcing some personal comments about the shouting and disorderly conduct that took place last Saturday night outside his home he stated, "The group that performed these acts were not being constructive . . . nor acting in good faith. They were acting to create problems, not resolve them."

"It is me you dislike, not my children," he added, "and I will not tolerate any further harassment of my family. Anyone identified doing so will be immediately subject to suspension and further legal action."

A brief questioning period by the student panelers followed, during which the administration were asked about such things as curriculum changes and tuition increases.

Following this was a still briefer period of questioning from the audience.

Senior, Paul Gabriel evoked prolonged applause when he asked the President to identify the radicals and revolutionaries that he had spoken of earlier. An angry murmuring swelled the building when President Patton replied that such radicals would identify themselves during the next few months by their illegal activities. The students have responsible actions planned after the meeting to present the platform to the Student Legislative meeting that night.

FUTURE COFFEEHOUSE ON WEST COLLEGE DRIVE.

Gets Go-Ahead

Coffee Grounds Okayed For Students

"Well, we have a house," said Chaplain Mullinix, of a house near the campus which is to become a recreational and entertainment facility for students.

A ten room house at 909 West College Drive, "the house" and its original idea came out of a serach by the Baptist Student Union for a place to holds its seminar series.

As the student interest rose, proposals for coffeehouse, gamerooms, study-rooms, and a place for encounter were complimented by administrative suggestions for training in lay ministry programs.

Immediately, however, the plans for "the house" are to provide "a place to get in to to get out," said Mullinix.

"It should be open in the next couple of weeks for the weekends, just as soon as we can get the furnishings and bookings for the coffeehouse entertainment format," continued Mullinex.

Officially, then, the house is to be a center for student involvement and training in Christian living and at the same, but not necessarily similar, time to be a recreational and entertainment facility for the campus.

There are possibilities for a free university featuring student initiated courses, faculty teach-teaching special seminars, and sensitivity training.

Courses could include community problems and the alienation of youth and the church and community.

The first acitivities have already been held: a "freezing cleaning day" last Saturday in a house without heat, and an outside meeting Sunday as a preliminary to the actual setting up of "the house" as a student run activity.

There will be some supervision; when querried about it, the chaplain said, "me, I guess," at least until the program grows and new arrangements are required.

"This coming summer will be a time for intensive planning in order that the house can be open as a full time facility next September."

Mullinix continued, "and there is the possibility that a community life experiment can be set up by then."

Community life is a reference to an experimental living experience for selected students off campus at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

High Point's version would be an experiment for four to six girls and about eight boys interested in an off campus living experience with the goal being one of Christian involvement in the community, as well as the campus, with emphasis on personal encounter and spiritual growth.

The girls would live with Mullinix and his family, and the boys would live nearby and run the coffeehouse, keeping in close communion "during hours."

With clean floors as well as some new and innovative ideas, "the house" folk are looking for more folks to bring in new ideas and fresh bodies for the work remaining to be done.

"As far as we know we are still nameless," said the Chaplain, but he added that the ideas are still growing.

Hatfield To Come March 7

Sen. Marl O. Hatfield (R-Oregon), former governor of his home state of Oregon and U.S. senator since 1967, will speak at High Point College on Thursday, March 5.

The lecture, on a topic not yet decided, will be a feature of the "Campus and Community Series" offered by the college and will be given in Memorial Auditorium at 8 p.m.

As in other presentations in the series, the public is invited to attend and there will be admission charge.

Sen. Hatfield, who made the nominating speech for Richard M. Nixon in 1960, is presently a member of the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, the Interior and insular Affairs, and the Select Committee on Small Business.

A graduate of Willamette University and of Stanford University Sen. Hatfield holds 19 honorary degrees from colleges and universities throughout the nation. During World War II he served in the South Pacific and Far East aboard a U. S. Navy amphibious attack craft.

During the last Republican convention, Sen. Hatfield was temporary chairman and keynoter. He has won a number of awards including the Eleanor Roosevelt Humanitarian Award and Man Of the Year. He is also a recipient of the Robert A. Taft Memorial Award.

Policy replayed

President Patton, on behalf of the trustees and the administration, has done it again.

This past Tuesday the February edition of the Development Bulletin was distributed to the students en masse, after it had already been sent home to parents.

Last year, a similar bulletin was released, stating action to be taken in case of violent take-over attempts by students.

There has been absolutely no threat of usurping administrative powers or of capturing the administrators themselves. Tuesday evening and Wednesday morning were proof of that.

This bulletin, certainly, has already caused much consternation among parents, especially when they remark, "What are you doing down there at High Point, attempting a Columbia-style take-over?"

High Point College has not the calibre of students who would plan a successful building deizure, much less carry this plan out. The students attending this "small church-related college in the finest sense of the word" have proven and are continuing to prove that "established channels" have not lost out yet to violence. For this we should be praised, not threatened.

Editor's Mail

Dear Editor,

Last week the students of High Point College observed something in The Hi-Po which in the entertainment world is extremely rare. Mr. Ken Kragen, the personal manager of Kenny Rogers and the First Edition, sent a letter explaining the reasons for his groups not showing for our Homecoming. Mr. Kragen asked to have the letter printed and offered to pay the cost of printing (over $100.00). I hope the students, as well as officials of other colleges and universities who read this paper, can appreciate the extreme professionalism and dedication of Mr. Kragen. Mr. Kragen had made an earnest effort to correct a situation which legally required no action at all.

Any group and management who act with such a dedication and such professional attitudes towards their audience can only meet with continued success.

Sincerely,
David Holton
Chairman, Student Union
Governing Board

Dear Editor:

Recently, there was a poll taken by one of the psychology classes as to student opinion on the presence of and, if so, the extent of cheating on the HPC campus. This poll has caused me to do a little thinking about an unpleasant subject, and I think it's about time something was said about the situation. Since this is about the only available soap box, here it goes.

First of all, let's get right down to the nitty-gritty of the matter and admit that there is cheating on this campus, and everybody knows about it, professors and students. From collaborating on tests to skiping exams, HPC students manage to run the gamut quite effectively.

But we go most colleges one better--if you happen to desire the answers to a test, all you need to do is locate your nearest frat man or sorority sister and trot right down to your nearby Friendly Frat File where you will find a variety of back tests, which some professors (trying in their small way to aid the cheater and penalize the student who does not have recourse to these tests) have not changed in any way, shape, or form for years. And that's a conservative estimate.

All right, it happens. But why doesn't anybody seem to care? I know we're not supposed to give a damn what the other guy does in his spare time. But shouldn't you care when someone walks out of a class with your B? I do.

My solution? Well, if these students would expand half the time, thought, and energy they use in hatching plots to cheat, on study-ing, they'd pass anyway. And maybe, just maybe, they'd have something more to show for their four years than a piece of paper.

Midnight Ramblings

The Space Race Is On

By David Steves

Freshmen at a college which prohibts the possession of automobiles by members of their class always look forward with an unholy glee to their sophomore year, when they are going to return with their car and be liberated from the dorms on weekend nights.

I feel that a word to the wise is necessary to those freshmen: once you get the car, where are you going to put it? This is even more applicable to day students, since dorm students at least have the advantage of being there most of the time.

The fact is that there are about 1 1/2 times as many cars on this campus as there are parking spaces. Hense latecomers to the campus on mornings are forced to park where they can find a space--most often at a distance of roughly 3000 miles from their classes.

I personally don't mind this TOO much. The benefits of a brisk 20-minute walk to Roberts Hall every morning are much too numerous to be related here, I'm sure, especially when it's pouring rain, or there are three inches of freshly-fallen and uncleared snow on the ground, or the temperature is 5 degrees and the wind speed 45 knots, or any combination of these factors.

For some time I thought that I had circumvented this problem by parking in front of Roberts Hall, rather than competing with the dorm students for the interior parking spaces. My simple solution was ended one morning with a rude jolt.

I was wheezing onto the campus in my vehicle one morning and about to make my usual right turn into "my" parking lot when I ran smack into an interlocking network of land mines, barbed wire, and machine gun nests that had been set up during the night by the elite troopers of the William J. Burns Detective Agency.

Vladimir and I shuddred to a halt and I addressed the guardsmen manning the post:

"Hey you, whattaya thik yore doin'?"

Relieved to find a student who could speak his native dialect, he replied: "No students allowed to park here anymore, kid."

"Says who", I retorted.

"Orders from the Chief," he sneered, "all youse kids cars are blocking the view of the library from his office window and besides, he says yer car is unsightly."

Realizing that such orders, not to be disobeyed, I drove off as rapidly as possible, muttering to myself: "If the tuition was lower we could afford nicer-looking cars, already?"

Our plots being literally blocked, I got together a group of similarly afflicted day students and we all chipped in to hire a crane, planning to have our cars hoisted onto the roof of the Fine Arts Building each morning and down again each afternoon.

However, the troopers soon appeared and threatened to dynamite the place rather than allow up to park, so we fled the campus once again.

Desperation measures are now in use: we have a car pool of students who take turns driving the day's car around an around the campus while the others are in class.

Resist Not Evil

Platform Or Platitudes?

By PAUL GABRIEL

Have you ever pondered the difference between wise and wishful, platform or platitudes, specifics or desultory criticisms.

A recent bulletin, designed for public relations, made again the made again the president's statement of policy concerning campus disruption.

Edgar Cayce once said, "Resist not evil, create good," and this is my only contention.

Within perhaps one of the most efficient statements of educational purpose of late, "We believe that students should carry more responsibility, but we also believe absolutely that responsibility and authority are inseparable. We intend to give students increased responsibility, increased authority, and a stronger voice in all areas in which they can and are willing to assume responsibility for their decisions," is a worthy appeal.

What does this mean to students? "There must always be some authority in control. . . Some believe that erosion of traditional authority means the beginning of higher freedom for the individual. History does not confirm this. The human mind cannot support moral chaos long--dictatorial power will invade the vacuum that is left by receding authority."

This is really where it's at, but. . .

This sort of platform may be necessary to inform a less sophisticated public that this college has standards, but the rod is not to be spared even in mention.

"When in the judgement of the president a situation on the campus beyond his control develops, he may declare a state of emergency. He then assumes temporary dictatorial powers."

It would seem that if dictatorial power were an invasion of vacuum created by receding authority the traditional authority would not fall heir to such "limits of conduct" that have not existed as a threat on this campus before.

At least not as far as the students are concerned.

Resist not evil, or you lose it strength to destroy you and wishful thinking expecially when negative may not be wise.

To take a stand and state specifics for how one will respond is good and necessary, but when stands become platitudes created for a community that tends towards generalizations, and desultory criticisms that suggest conditions that don't exist, the road is opened for chaos. Authority has already begun its retreat and instead of holding fast to the strength of the classroom and the integrity of faculty to generate responsibility it seems the trenches are being dug for a war no one else is thinking about.

Christ said that the sin was in the thinking, the act simply followed that God already was knowing of.

Walt Kelly said, "And as we make tinny blasts on our tin trumpets may we seize the enemy, and not only may he be ours, he may be us."

Gathering Sparks Grievance Assembly

Saturday night, Feb. 21, was just any other quiet weekend night at High Point College, until out of nowhere a truck full of male students, some under the influence of intoxicants, came to a screeching halt in back of McCulloch Hall.

Their trucks brought out the residents of McCulloch that were still around.

By the time the campus police arrived in his green van, everyone was caught up in the excitement.

The students began to sing, "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" to the policeman. When there wasn't singing there were shouts of "Cop of the Week!" and "Speech! Speech!" Many of the young men shook hands with the policeman while others clapped and cheered.

After the campus cop left, the crowd became even more excited. One student yelled for Dr. Patton and drinking on campus. Another student, with his fist in the air, shouted "Let's go to Patton's house! Let's go to Patton's house!"

The crowd, growing in number, marched to the president's house and sat on his front lawn.

"We want Patton! We want Patton!" they chanted. They shouted several other chants about drinking on campus and girl's hours. One student suggested going to Woman's Hall.

The young men shouted affirmatively and stampeded to the freshmen girl's dorm.

On the front lawn of Woman's Hall the crowd encountered some opposition: Dean Phillips.

What had started out as fun and games now began to have serious over-tones. The young men went back to their dorm still chanting.

Dean Phillips threatened to expell one student among them if they didn't stop their shouting. They stopped, but much concern was brought up about updating the many rules of the college.

After a discussion with the dean lasting 15 to 20 minutes, an assembly was decided on to give the students a chance to voice their opinions and let their grievances be known.

Registrar Refutes

Transfer Survey Disproves Rumors

The rumors going around the campus that the students at High Point College are not happy and are leaving in droves are false, according to David H. Holt, registrar. "These rumors are unjustifiably false and I have figures to prove it." he said.

Holt has just completed a survey for himself. There have also been investigations made for Dr. Paton, and investigations made by house mothers and the Alumni Office.

"It was astounding. We found that the college was only 20 students down," said Holt.

Cards are kept by Holt on all students. These cards contain grades, quality points, hours attempted, hours passed, etc. Every semester these cards are brought up to date.

"From these cards it was found that 120 students did not come back to HPC this semester.

Fifty of these students were seniors that had either graduated or had enough credits to finish in night school or by correspondence class," said Holt.

"Seventeen students transnumber is actually very small.

Those that did transfer went to state schools, where tuition would be less or universities very close to home."

"Twenty-three left because they were not able to adjust and had to drop out. Eleven of the 23 were freshmen. These are the students that just didn't make the grade," explained Holt.

The remaining 30 students left no reason why they left HPC. "But" said Holt, "it seems that most of the students who transfered were transfer students in the first place."

"In place of the 120 students we lost, there were 50 new students. So that means that we only had a lost of 20 students," said Holt.

"Last year," continued Holt, "we started with 1,151 students at the beginning of the year. At the start of second semester we had 1,070 students. This year we started with 1,131. This semester we have 1,065 enrolled.

We were 20 students less at the beginning of this year than last year. Second Semester, this year, we are almost up with the figure for Second semester last year. This shows that we are up with students rather than down.

"On the basis of my investigation," concluded Holt. "the rumors are just not true. We aren't happy to lose students but we are justified when we see why."

Hi-Po Staff Meeting Thursday, March 5, Room 9, Harrison Hall at 4 p. m.

Frosh Get History Seminar

The History Department of High Point College has set up an experiment using freshmen students as guinea pigs.

The students now in the seminar were selected on the basis of their interest and ability to handle a new and different approach to history.

Dr. Gratiot said the seminar is a "special section to experiment. It lets the students have more latitude in the subject."

The students are currently meeting once a week on Wednesday afternoons for approximately two hours.

The participants, advised by Dr. Gratiot, Dean Cole, Mrs. Washington, and Mr. Stitt, choose the topics they wish to discuss and relate them to contemporary problems.

The students read the textbook, outside books on the chosen subject, and in discussion, raise questions in depth, and expand on each other's ideas.

If the program proves to be successful, it might be continued next year, or it might be expanded to include more than one class.

Gathering Sparks Grievance Assembly

Saturday night, Feb. 22, was just one other dead statistic night of High Point College, made out of yesterday's whole hell of many students, people about the business of investigation, made into a screeching hell to think of for others later.

There became brought out the attitudes in McCollum that were held revealed.

By the time the Sparrow police arrived in his prison one hundred and fifty people were there.

To continue Friday's story, Dr. Wells, Judy Coed Fellow* in the policemen, What there wasn't maybe there were those of "Way to the Stars" and "Wonderful Lonely" some of the many who made home left by television made others stopped her attention.

After this occurred, the one student who was a member left another called the Lt. Patton and questioned him as to his member should have been in the dormitory. Let's go to Patton's control Let's go to attention house?"

The charge, directed at another student in the president's letter said We do this I'm in to.

"Let's go to Patton's office!" Then another. They shouted several more times another affirmative and approved to this another guy's mate.

By the time the police in attention had the house approximately one hundred people.

They had decided not to fill and silence and begin to have sex, beg over tokens. The whole thing was finally to have sex and shouting.

Frosh Get History Seminar

The Hi Po Department of High Point College has set up an experimental study Freshmen entitled to history study.

The seminar was to six years, and was designed to be a study of history students had studied in college a year and students to seminar.

In October read the students in a "special" student to history study. It has the students have been meeting every Thursday. The 12 to 15 students meeting once room an month, students discussion the approximately reading and books.

The instructors, serves in Dr. Ralph Hardee Cole Hon. Washington, and Dr. John Moore Hon. Walter Hines Page, diplomat and British made to contemporary American history.

The students meet the seminar, Dr. Hardee, Dr. Moore etc., and, and discussion the students discussion in depth, and student to study student's issues

If the students proves to the successful, it might be continued next year; it is might to as students to another very does new home

Registrar Refuses

Transfer Survey Disproves Rumors

Dr. Wells, Registrar, has announced that a survey of transfer students has been completed. The survey was conducted to determine whether there was any truth to the rumor that students were transferring to High Point College because they were unable to be accepted at other colleges.

The survey was conducted by Dr. Wells and Dr. Hardee. Each student was asked to indicate why he transferred to High Point College. The results of the survey indicate that only a small percentage of the students transferred because they were unable to be accepted at other colleges. The majority of the students transferred because they were dissatisfied with the academic programs at their former colleges.

Dr. Wells stated that the survey was conducted in order to dispel the rumors that High Point College was a "dumping ground" for students who were unable to be accepted at other colleges. He said that the survey indicates that the rumors are false.

Dr. Wells also stated that the survey indicates that the academic standards at High Point College are high and that the college is not a "dumping ground" for students who were unable to be accepted at other colleges.

Witt Whips Up

HPC Clubs Catawba

Appearing for the last time in the High Point College Alumni Gymnasium, senior guards Danny Witt and Joe Colbert truend in fantastic floor performances to beat fifth-placed Catawba, Saturday night by a score of 93-84.

Catawba cracked under the Panther press led by Colbert, playing his first full game since early last semester.

Sensational scoring by Witt again won the game for the Panthers. With 43 points for the game, Witt again reached his record of points for one game made earlier this year at Newberry.

Witt has also broken the 1959 High Point scoring average, previously held by Danny Sewell, of 23.7. Witt's average before the game with Catawba was already 25.4.

Gene Littles ambled amicably onto the court when Witt made his fifteenth point of the game to beat Little's seasonal score record of 725 points.

Littles presented the proud Panther with the basketball used for the record-breaking basket. Witt went on to finish with a total of 756, shooting 17 of 30 from the field and 9 of 9 from the line.

One day, before, Witt had been named one of five on the All District 26 all-star team.

The Panthers pulled ahead slowly during the second half of a game tied thirteen times, finally achieving a 93-84 victory.

Supporting Panther performances were turned in by John Kirkman with a strong inside game of 17 points; Steve Allen with 12, and jumping Joe Wilson with 9. Joe Colbert and Tubby Smith each contributed six points to the High Point victory. In addition Allen grabbed 12 rebounds off the boards.

Leaping Charles Lynn led the Indians, scoring 28 points before he finally fouled out. He was followed by three more men in double figures: Perry with 13; McDougal 13; and Shelton 10. Also scoring were Bailey and Garrison each with 7 points and Stevens with 4.

The High Point Panthers finished their 1969-70 conference season with a 4-11 league record and an overall closing of 13-26.

They entered the Carolinas Conference Tournament which began Wednesday night in Winston-Salem ranked seventh.

Hypercriticism not needed

In an editorial Tuesday afternoon, Mr. Frank Lambeth, General Manager of radio station WMFR, criticized four members of a prominent High Point civic club for not giving Dr. Patton a vote of confidence for his statements Wednesday and general handling of the presidential statement regarding undisciplined action on the part of students.

One of the members who did not approve of Dr. Patton's statements is the pastor of "one of the largest churches in High Point which also happens to be of the same denomination as the college."

Another is a High Point judge.

A vote of confidence is a personal matter of the individual and should not be subject to public criticism.

This is not to say that the four dissenters are either right or wrong in their feelings.

There may have been others at the meeting that felt the same way, but were afraid to express themselves publically.

We praise those who had the courage to reveal their true feelings.

They have reasons for these feelings and should not have to be called upon the carpet for it.

Editor's Mail

Dear Editor,

"My field is time," wrote Goethe. Whatever the great poet may have meant by the expression, this prosaic poet can state the awesome significance of "time" for an increasing number of modern men. What is left when the reverence-evoking heroes are unmasked as suppressors of the very justice in which they verbally exulted? What is left when the gods are gone and man finds himself terrifyingly alone? What remains when the world has ceased to be a gigantic "womb" replete with the security of transcendent meaning and purpose? The answer to these questions is: "time." The resultant world is one in which every moment is a question and in which nothing is granted. For existence caught up into, and defined by, time is one in which I MYSELF am forced to choose and for which choosing 1 ALONE am responsible. It is a world in which the question of future is dominant--whether future will be allowed to remain future, both for myself and for others. It is a world of passions and of reeling passions, growing out of a concentrated consciousness that is alone with itself.

With this liberating and, albeit, bitter situation in mind, how should we react to a stagnant and sterile society, one whose models are Hollywood personifications of useiessness and Madison Avenue creators of synthetic values? What do we say about a society in which the innocent from the "wrong" side of the tracks is robbed of his sense of worth by a relentless barrage of standardized self-definitions? What do we say about a society which literally creates its poor and alienated? Do we merely consign it to heli and withdraw from its installment plans, split levei houses, and promotions? (And that is a tempting solution.) Or do we call it into question vis-a-vis the category of time?

The revoiutionary movements of the world, e.g. the NLF, the Chinese, the Latin American, black militancy, the students (or SOME students), have chosen the latter alternative. They have recognized that the primary (and, one can say, the biblical) categories which define reality are time and creativity. Chaos, disorder, change, advance, movement, passion--these are the values for a mentality that is sensitive to injustice, that is not content with an imperfect present, and that dares to risk everything to launch into an unknown future, Hegel postulated a dialectic in history in which opposing thesis and antithesis are resolved in a unifying synthesis. Even if one is not a Hegelian, he might still ask: Has the ultimate synthesis (or the Kingdom of God, or the absolute future, depending upon one's taste) been achieved? If it has--but that is a suicidal thought, wrought with unbearable pain, and Kirilov's god-like deed becomes a possible prototype for us; if it has not, then we are forced to become the creators of the future and of new values. if it has not been achieved, let

What to Bring to College

By DAVID STEVES

Every freshman, or prospective freshman, worries about what to bring to college. Young ladies coming to HPC for the first time receive a letter from the Dean of Women detailing all kinds of good stuff like extra towels, an iron, spare hair rollers, etc. Boys are not so fortunate; they are forced to learn the hard way.

DAVID STEVES

I'd like to advance a new item or items that all college students should have. . .weaponry. Last week the parents of all HPC students received a bulletin explaining to them what the college will do in the event of a student insurrection, so I think it only fair that fashion-conscious students should have some idea as to what they'll need whenever this uprising comes to pass.

First of course, there is the all-purpose personal sidearm to be carried to classes and on dates without adding extra weight. For the ladies, I recommend the Colt .25 cal. automatic, which has the advantage of rapid fire while keeping to purse size and featuring attractive chrome plating. For our huskier campus males, something with a little more stopping power; the U.S. Army standard .45 automatic, which comes in several dashing civilian models. Wrangler Jeans will be coming out with a low-slung open-cut sports holster in time for summer school this year.

While these pistols will suffice for the run-of-the-mill spontaneous demonstration, preplanned protest marches call for weapons with a little more range. Those who prefer pistols can go to either the police model .38 special, an accurate piece, or the .456 magnum, which combines high velocity impact with clean-cut lines and styling.

However, there are those of us who will be participating in this year's action at a distance, and last season proved once again the worth of several Columbia favorites. Leading the field in the ladies' long-arms arsenal is what many dealers have begun to call the "Coed Special": the Remington model of the Army's M-2 carbine. This sleek creation features 30 rounds of rapid fire backed up by rapid reloading and a glossy mahogany finish. Both Ladybug and Villager have come out with matching cinnamon and sienna slings this past spring.

The gentlemen, as always, adhere to the old favorites: the Springfield '03 for sniping and the Thompson submachinegun for close-in assault work.

Now for the heavier items that are optional for the average arsenal, but are musts for every fraternity or club gun room, Winchester came out with a new light-weight bazooka firing incindiary shells, but since it is still so untried most organizations will stick to the older versions, which have proved just dandy for blowing holes in police barricades and/or buildings. A word of caution, though, comrades: watch those backflares. We had a lot of casuaities last season because of this.

Another innovation that had some successes last season is the M-60 grenade launchers. These have proved to be great for defending occupied buildings and for shooting over walls and other defenses.

Well, that's ali for this week, comrades. Maybe next time I can go into the subtleties of knife work, artillery, and the more powerful explosives.

There Was a Time

By PAUL GABRIEL

There are times when a lone student in search of solice wonders where it is that he might find calm, the mythical eye of an academic storm.

Out of The Hi-Po morgue came to me a brief memory of a past student and his discovery, Morpheus.

Morpheus, the mouse that lives at the top of the tower, was discovered in The Hi-Po and is now all but forgotten.

Not quite, quoth he; there he sat mumbling Latin and complaining about bishops and mousetraps.

Sitting atop the pinnacle of learning, we shared our woes and wooed each other's sentiments with tales of the days gone by.

Morpheus believed that until bishops were switched, the Church's one foundation was the churchmouse; then a younger and more "citifield" cleric came and brought with him the trap.

Transepts soon became battlegrounds of learning the trap and then soon finding a new one.

But the line was crossed one Saturday afternoon when Morpheus found in his favorite mouse-sized chapel in the woodwork occupied by a shiny-brass-blessed-with-holy-water MOUSE DETERGENT. Too much. . .

So here we sit, a mousey muse and a bemused recluse, looking out on what is done and left undone.

There could have been worse fates. . .

Pondering the silence as well as the talk, we'll take the quiet any day.

So while all around are studying to build a better mousetrap and talking about why it should be built, Morpheus is building a better mouse.

Morpheus may have been an invention once upon a time but now he is something to believe in, something quiet, something calm.

A Student Bill of Rights

Students Rights Enumerated

National educational associations representing faculty members, administrators, and students have developed this Statement on the Rights and Freedoms of Students and propose it for adoption as a joint statement of principle.

Ten organizations, one of which represented students drew up a proposal nearly four years ago "to discuss the academic freedom of students and to explore the feasibility of reaching a consensus on standards in this area.

In searching out the various motivations for the present concerns and interests on campus, The Hi-Po was informed that one of the reasons of the statement of policy by President Patton was to fulfill this college's responsibilities toward this Student Bill of Rights, approved and subscribed to by this college.

Because of lack of space, certain explanatory paragraphs have been deleted, however the main body is intact and the entire copy may be examined in Mr. Cope's office or the office of the Dean of the College, Dr. Cole.

It is hoped that this statement will clarify the rights and responsibilities of students as they are recognized by the administration.

PREAMBLE

Freedom to teach and freedom to learn are inseparable facets of academic freedom. The freedom to learn depends upon appropriate opportunities and conditions in the classroom, on the campus, and in the larger community. Students should exercise their freedom with responsibility.

The responsibility to secure and to respect general conditions conducive to the freedom to learn is shared by all members of the academic community. Each college and university has a duty to develop policies and procedures which provide and safeguard this freedom. Such policies and procedures should be developed at each institution within the framework of general standards and with the broadest possible participation of the members of the academic community. The purpose of this statement is to enumerate the essential provisions for student freedom to learn.

I. FREEDOM OF ACCESS TO HIGHER EDUCATION

The admissions policies of each college and university are a matter of institutional choice, provided that each college and university makes clear the characteristics and expectations of students which it considers relevant to success in the institution's program. While church-related institutions may give admission preference to students of their own persuasion, such a preference should be clearly and publicly stated. . .The facilities and services of a college should be open to all of its enrolled students, and institutions should use their influence to secure equal access for all students to public facilities in the local community.

II. IN THE CLASSROOM

A. Protection of Freedom of Expression: students should be free to take reasoned exception to the data or views offered in any course of study and to reserve judgement about matters of opinion, but they are responsible for learning the content of any course of study for which they are enrolled.

B. Protection Against Improper Academic Evaluation: Students should have protection through orderly procedures against prejudiced or capricious academic evaluation. At the same time, they are responsible for maintaining standards of academic performance established for each course in which they are enrolled.

C. Protection Against Improper Disclosure: Information about student views, beliefs, and political associations which professors acquire in the course of their work as instructors, advisers, and counselors should be considered confidential.

III. STUDENT RECORDS

Institutions should have a carefully considered policy as to the information which should be part of a student's permanent educational record and as to the conditions of its disclosure.

IV. STUDENT AFFAIRS

A. Freedom of Association: Students bring to the campus a variety of interests previously acquired and develop many new interests as members of the academic community. They should be free to organize and join associations to promote their common interests.

1. The membership, policies, and actions of a student organization usually will be determined by vote of only those persons who hold bona fide membership in the college community.

2. Affiliation with an extramural organization should not of itself disqualify a student organization from institutional recognition.

3. If campus advisers are required each organization should be free to choose its own adviser, and institutional recognition should not be withheld or withdrawn solely because of the inability of a student organization to secure an adviser. Campus advisers may advise organizations in the exercise of responsibility, but they should not have the authority to control the policy of such organizations.

4. Student organizations may be required to submit a statement of purpose, criteria for membership, rules of procedures, and a current list of officers. They should not be required to submit a membership list as a condition of institutional recognition.

5. Campus organizations, including those affiliated with an extramural organization, should be open to all students without respect to race, creed, or national origin, except for religious qualifications which may be required by organizations whose aims are primarily sectarian.

B. Freedom of Inquiry and Expression:

1. Students and organizations should be free to examine and discuss all questions of interest to them, and to express opinions publicly and privately. They should always be free to support causes by orderly means which do not disrupt the regular and essential operation of the institution.

2. Students should be allowed to invite and to hear any person of their own choosing.

C. Student Participation in Institutional Government:

The student body should have clearly defined means to participate in the formulation and application of institutional policy affecting academic and student affairs.

D. Student Publications

Student publications and the student press are a valuable aid in establishing and maintaining an atmosphere of free and responsible discussion and of intellectual exploration on the campus. Whenever possible the student newspaper should be an independant corporation financially and legally separate from the university. In the delegation of editorial responsibility to the students the institution must provide sufficient editorial freedom and financial autonomy for the student publications to maintain their integrity of purpose as vehicles for free inquiry and free expression in an academic community.

1. The student press should be free of censorship and advance approval of copy, and its editors and managers should be free to develop their own editorial policies and news coverage.

2. Editors and managers of student publications should be protected from arbitrary suspension and removal because of student, faculty, administrative, or public disapproval of editorial policy or content.

3. In order to emphasize that the student newspaper does not speak officially for the institution, it should carry neither the institutional seal, official motto, nor the institution's name.

4. All university published and financed student publications should explicitly state on the editorial page that the opinions there expressed are not necessarily those of the college or student body.

V. OFF-CAMPUS FREEDOM OF STUDENTS

A. Exercise of Rights of Citizenship: As citizens, students should enjoy the same freedom of speech, peaceful assembly, and right of petition that other citizens enjoy and, as members of the academic community, they are subject to the obligations which accrue to them by virtue of this membership. Faculty members and administrative officials should insure that institutional powers are not employed to inhibit such intellectual and personal development of students as is often promoted by their exercise of the rights of citizenship both on and off campus.

B. Institutional Authority and Civil Penalties: Students who violate the law may incur penalties prescribed by civil authorities, but institutional authority should never be used merely to duplicate the function of general laws. Only where the institution's interests as an academic community are distinct and clearly involved should the special authority to the institution be asserted.

VI. PROCEDURAL STANDARDS IN DISCIPLINARY PROCEEDINGS

Practices in disciplinary cases may vary in formality with the gravity of the offense and the sanctions which may be applied. In all situations, procedural fair play requires that the student be informed of the nature of the charges against him, that he be given a fair opportunity to refute them, that the institution not be arbitrary in its actions, and that there be provision for appeal of a decision.

A. Standards of Conduct Expected by Students: These general behavioral expectations and the resultant specific regulations should represent reasonable regulation of student conduct but the student should be as free as possible from imposed limitations that have no direct relevance to his education. Disciplinary proceedings should be instituted only for violations of standards of conduct formulated with significant student participation and published in advance through such means as a student handbook or a generally available body of institutional regulations.

B. Investigation of Student Conduct:

1. Except under extreme emergency circumstances, premises occupied by students and the personal possessions of students should not be searched unless appropriate authorization has been obtained. For premises such as residence halls controlled by the institution, an appropriate and responsible authority should be designated to whom application should be made before a search is conducted. The application should specify the reasons for the search and the objects or information sought. The student should be present, if possible, during the search.

2. Students detected or arrested in the course of serious violations of institutional regulations, or infractions of ordinary law should be informed of their rights. No form of harassment should be used by the institutional representatives to coerce admissions of guilt or information about conduct of other suspected persons.

C. Status of Student Pending Final Action:

Pending action on the charges, the status of a student should not be altered, or his right to be present on the campus and to attend classes suspended, except for reasons relating to his physical or emotional safety and well being, or for reasons relating to the safety and well-being of students, faculty, or university property.

D. Hearing Committee Procedures:

1. The hearing committee should include faculty members or students, or, if regularly included or requested by the accused, both faculty and student members.

2. The Student should be informed, in writing, of the reasons for the proposed disciplinary action with sufficient particularity, and in sufficient time, to insure opportunity to prepare for the hearing.

3. The student appearing before the hearing committee should have the right to be assisted in his defense by an adviser of his choice.

4. The burden of proof should rest upon the officials bringing the charge.

5. The student should be given an opportunity to testify and present evidence and witnesses. He should have an opportunity to hear and question adverse witnesses. In no case should the committee consider statements against him unless he has been advised of their content and of the names of those who made them, and unless he has been given an opportunity to rebut unfavorable inferences which might otherwise be drawn.

6. All matters upon which the decision may be based must be introduced into evidence at the proceeding before the Hearing Committee. The decision should be based solely upon such matter. Improperly acquired evidence should not be admitted.

7. In the absence of a transcript, there should be both a digest and a verbatim record, such as a tape recording, of the hearing.

8. The decision of the Hearing Committee should be final, subject only to the student's right of appeal to the President or ultimately to the governing board of the institution.

PREAMBLE

SGA Suggestions

By BOB WILLIAMS

Student Government cannot function effectively without three important factors being present on this campus.

First, the general student body must bring CONSTRUCTIVE SUGGESTIONS for progress to their representatives and must continue to support those suggested changes.

Second, students must be willing to donate their time, interest, and hard work in serving within Student Government.

Third, the administration must realize that "talk" is not enough, and that constructive actions must be its response to creative student proposals.

In early October, the Student Legislature supported United States troop replacement by well-equipped South Vietnamese forces to be executed as quickly as possible; suggested that students dissatisfied with the war situation express themselves by steadfastly maintaining and exercising their privilege as students to attend class, and communicated with Senators Sam Ervin, Jr., and B. Everett Jordan and Representative L. Richardson Preyer.

Major campus-oriented actions of legislature have led to the addition of student members to the following faculty committees--Student Personnel, Educational Policies, Assembly and Artist, Library, and Publications. Much of the initiative for change must come from these students.

Other major proposals passed by the Legislature include the removal from the penal code of archaic disciplinary provisions restricting off-campus activities, the elimination of financial difficulties incurred by The Hi-Po and Apogee, the attainment of a Judicial Council decision declaring the SGA president's inability to veto constitutional changes, and providing refrigerator service for the students.

The executive branch of the Student Government has strengthened the Student Government budget system, initiated a sliding scale for cafeteria fees for working, dormitory students and investigated the possibility of a radio station on campus. Due to prohibitive cost and lack of space, the radio station has been postponed until student interest and increased student activity fees are generated.

At its last meeting, Student Legislature set the election dates for class elections, passed the expenditure addition of up to $500 for the Junior-Senior, and tabled expenditure for a freshman-sophomore sponsored dance. It passed important proposals increasing the student activity fee from $28 per student per year to $43 per student, enacting Dormitory Council revision, requesting that the president of SGA and the speaker of Legislature be invited to Annual Board of Trustees meetings and strongly supporting a visitation program.

The final result of the visitation question depends upon the extent of student commitment.

We students must accept the responsibilities of supporting Student Government through careful study of campus problems and hard work.

The future survival of High Point College depends upon the willingness and ability of the students, faculty, and administration to work together with good intentions and without fear.

Informal meeting with Patton

Monday Meeting: Rhetoric

By MARY GLADNEY

Monday, March 2, at 10 a.m. President Wendell M. Patton, Dean David W. Cole, and Vice President of Financial Affairs Earle G. Dalbey held an informal meeting with students which fealt with campus problems.

The meeting, in the TV room of the Student Center, was attended by about one hundred students.

Many students expressed the feeling that apathy on the campus was the fault of the administration.

As Mike Johnson said, "Apathy breeds apathy. The administration doesn't seem to be concerned about us, so we seem to lose concern about the school."

Concerning admissions policies, Patton stated that there must be a change in the admission standards of High Point College.

The new admission policy will try to decide on which students will benefit from HPC's environment and which will not.

Patton said he was hesitant to allow an open visitation bill that would condone "dating in the bedroom" to be passed in a school with a supposedly Christian environment.

Students objected on the grounds that the school must accept the student as a mature young adult and, as the handbook says, "recognize the integrity and dignity of human personality."

Patton said the open visitation bill was on his desk, ready to be signed, but he would not sign it until he knew how the student body felt.

Len Selvaggio stated his understanding that Patton "didn't wish to deal with the student body as a whole, but instead with a select representative of the entire student body."

It was Patton's opinion that the Student Legislature is not representative of the student

Open Assembly with Patton, Dalbey, Phillips

Patton Opens Up To Ideas

By JOHN YOUNG

Prominent members of the Student Government Association met with Dr. Wendell M. Patton, Dean Robert E. Phillips, and Mrs. Nanci Motsinger on February 26.

Under discussion were the raising of the student activity fee $15 and publication of the school budget.

Also discussed were the separation of dormitory councils and changes in dormitory rules; visitation in the dorms; and student representation at meetings of the Board of Trustees.

Patton's overall attitude seemed to be one of interest in the student and his needs. He expressed a desire to know the wishes of the students and his intention to become more available to the student.

Patton suggested an informal meeting with the students which took place Monday morning at 10 a.m.

"The Board of Trustees has the responsibility of raising fees," stated Patton renouncing his obligation to approve the student activity fee increase. This will be discussed at the March 11 meeting of the Board of Trustees.

Patton did, however, approve the resolution of dorm council separation and the idea of changing the dorm rules. He agreed that students in each dorm needed to govern themselves.

It was felt that student representation on the Board of Trustees would aid in communication between trustees and students. Patton promised to recommend that the Board extend a standing invitation to the President of the Student Government Association and Speaker of Legislature to all general board meetings.

The discussion was primarily concerned with dormitory intervisitation. Patton stated that he would keep an open mind, but at that time was not in agreement with the visitation plans.

Phillips suggested that weekend nights during specified hours be used on a trial basis to test the feasibility of intervisitation.

Patton, however, felt that the trustees should make the final decision on this controversial issue.

The students were told that on this and other issues they could present their case at the March meeting of the Board of Trustees.

Dean Motsinger States Changes

By BOB WILLIAMS

In a special interview for The Hi-Po, Bob Williams asked Mrs. Nanci Motsinger, Assistant Dean of Students, pertinent questions concerning the women students:

Williams: "Mrs. Motsinger, what changes have been made in regulations for Woman's Dormitory and what additional changes are anticipated?"

Motsinger: "The second and third floor lounges in Woman's Hall have been opened for the residents and their dates of Woman's and Wesley Halls from 6 p.m. until closing on Fridays and from 2 p.m. until closing on Saturdays and Sundays. Also, thanks to Mr. Dalbey's help, new furniture has been placed in these lounges.

"The Dorm Councils and a group of freshman girls represented by Marcia Little and Debbie Stamper are reviewing each rule in the rulebook and will suggest revisions to us."

Williams: "Why are women from other dorms not allowed to take dates into the lounges in Woman's Dorm or into their own Club Rooms?"

Motsinger: Freshmen women initiated their open lounges. They cleaned and decorated them, and are responsible for maintenance. Their lounges open to a main stairwell and there are no problems of infringing on the privacy of others."

Williams: "What is the policy concerning possible special late hours for girls attending special social events on the weekends?"

Motsinger: "Persons desiring special permission for off campus events at other campuses need only to come to the Dean of Students Office. Each request is given careful consideration and is usually approved."

Williams: "Are you considering abolishing closed study hours for freshmen girls next year?"

Motsinger: "This is to come through the freshmen committee and go to the Dormitory Council for consideration. My office will act upon their recommendation."

Williams: "Are you receptive to possible changes within the Girl's Dormitory Council's demerit system?"

Motsinger: "Yes."

Frosh Girls Meeting

By MARCIA LITTLE

On Friday, February 27, freshmen women met with Dean of Women, Mrs. Nanci Motsinger, in Memorial Auditorium to discuss changes they desired in dormitory rules and regulations.

After discussing the matter with Carol Clause, president of the Women's Dormitory Council, it was decided that a questionnaire should be compiled by representative freshmen women and the Dormitory Council.

It was the concurring opinion of the girls present, that a questionnaire, which will be mandantory for all freshmen women to complete, will be truly representative of the female students.

Some of the ideas which grew out of the meeting were concerned with later curfews, the necessity of weekly room inspections, working off demerits, closed study, blanket permission, and lights out.

It was implied by Dean Motsinger that if changes are made present freshmen girls might not be able to enjoy all the privileges they have worked for so hard for the remainder of the year.

IBM Comes To HPC

Starting in June, High Point College will use the IBM system to expedite registration and other matters.

Room 26 in Robert's Hall is currently being renovated to house the IBM center.

All of the registration process and the functions of Student Personnel will be taken care of by this new system.

It is hoped that grades will come out within 48 hours instead of four weeks.

Eventually, the IBM system will include college payroll, student billing, fraternity and sorority enrollment, Dean's list, and advisor system.

Mr. David H. Holt, registrar, is writing up the system, planning each step and the operation of the machines.

"It is very complicated," he said, "It must be wired just like a computer."

Concerning a computer, Holt expressed hopes of having one in a few years. The IBM machines will fit into a computer system.

"If we get the computer, this will enable business education students to have practice using this system right on campus," said Holt.

"It was a lot of work, but I'm anxious to see it start. We hope the new system will be fool-proof and alleviate most of the problems we have now."

With the coming of the new semester and new year, many of the Alpha Gams have been having candlelight ceremonies.

Wendy Neff, was recently pinned to George McColley of Lambda Chi Alpha.

Five of the Alpha Gamma Delta sisters became engaged over Christmas. Carolina McCorkle was engaged to Fred Payne, a junior at Yale University; Lois Mayer to Jim Nichols, a member of Pi Kappa Alpha at Wake Forest University; Paula Pipes to Preston Knapp, a student at the University of Virginia; Bonnie Schrader to Ray Bretzman, an affiliate of Delta Sigma Phi at Wake Forest University; and Jane Bell to Dave Ackerman, a Theta Chi graduate of High Point College.

Three Alpha Gams were married over the vacation. On December 23, Jayne York married Jack Embree, a graduate of Appalachian State College.

Carolyn Moses married Dennis Sanders, a member of Pi Kappa Phi at University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, on December 27.

Elections

Elections to fill the offices of the Student Government Association Executive Council positions will be held on Wednesday, March 11, and Thursday, March 12, in the Student Center from 9 to 4 on each day.

The following names will appear on the ballot: President: Tom Albertson and John Young; Vice-President: Alan Prather; Secretary: Carol Clause; and the office of Treasurer remains vacant.

Write-in candidates will be accepted.

Interested candidates must have an overall 1.0 average and not less than 50 and not more than 60 names of members from their class on the petitions.

Speeches will be given on April 6 at 10 a.m.

Life On The Other Side

By MARCIA LITTLE

Last year, Linda Tanner, a former student of High Point College, transferred to Winston-Salem State College, a predominantly black school.

On Friday, February 27, Miss Tanner spoke to Mr. Cope's social pathology class, explaining her views on the racial situation in the United States.

Miss Tanner feels most blacks shelter a severe bitterness toward whites because of their enslaved ancestors.

When slaves were finaliy Christianized, emphasis was put upon obedience and "turn the other cheek," which Miss Tanner calls "rascist religion."

"The Negro's religion was the one thing they could call their own, and consequently, they relieved their inner tensions through their hymns and services," said Miss Tanner.

Reportedly, more students attend church regularly from Winston-Salem State than from HPC.

In the civil rights laws, the imposition and inconvenience is usually placed upon the blacks.

In present day busing, usually it is the black children who must leave their schools and cross town to another school.

"The attitude of white toward blacks is 'You come to us, look like us, act like us, and MAYBE we will accept you," stated Miss Tanner.

When asked if she felt integration was possible now, Miss Tanner replied, "I don't know. Idealistically, I'd like to think it could work; but realistically, I'm very confused."

Miss Tanner hopes to attend graduate school, so she places a personal emphasis on her grades.

On weekends, she goes to parties and dates.. "Things are the same at Winston-Salem as at any other college."

"I would say 85 percent of the kids at Winston-Salem study, do their thing, go to parties on weekends, to graduate and get more money, thus, the purpose of college," stated Miss Tanner.

After the first two or three weeks at her new school, Miss Tanner said the "bars that had to be broken," were overcome, and she could begin to feel comfortable.

"At first, I was confronted with open stares and questions. I tried to answer them as honestly as possible; I felt that would be best," said Miss Tanner.

Miss Tanner realised the academic level of Winston-Salem State is lower than HPC, but as she states, she is "getting more of an education than just reading, writing, and memorizing."

Lounges Open

The second and third floor lounges of Woman's Hall are open to men on weekends; Friday 8 p.m. until closing hours, Saturday and Sunday, 2 p.m. until closing hours.

The lounges have also received new furniture, and more is to come. It is hoped that a television will soon be on the third floor, also.

New SU Officers Plan Activities

On February 25 a meeting was held for the election of new officers of the Student Union.

Those elected include: Larry Johnson, Chairman; Marty Froystad, Entertainment; Barbara Earle, Secretary; Ed Grune, Publicity; Tom Kincaid, Tickets; Cathy Currie, Facilities; Robbie Woodside, Coffeehouse; Pete Uchno, Cinema; Bob Volz, Tournament.

A discussion following the meeting led to the formation of three major goals which are; to make a constitution for the SU, to charter the SU, making it a recognized organization separate from the Student Government Association, and to eventually increase the Student activity fee by $22, making it $50 per semester, per student.

Several activities are planned, including two parties at the Moose Lodge, on March 14 with the "Caravelles," and on April 3 with the "Marlboros."

The admission to the dance will be $3.50 per couple, and $2.00 stag.

Block tickets are available at $2 per couple for and campus fraternity or sosority in which 75 percent of its active members participate.

A free concert has been set for April 30 from 8-10 p.m. featuring the "Town-Criers."

To date, the semester's expentitures are: for two bands, $900; the Moose Lodge (for both dances) $250; Beverages for both, $500; and Concert, $900, leaving a balance of $2,675.

Part of the balance will be spent on three movies to be shown March 10 and 19 and April 2, a new ping-pong table, and new cue stickes for the poolroom.

Larry Johnson, the chairman-elect of the SU, attributed the apparent incompetence of the SU to several sources.

Johnson feels that the SU was formerly operated by too few people, thus it was not properly representative.

He said that inadequate funds restricted the planning and depth of substantial social activities.

Johnson also stated that the task of organizing an efficient SU was "phenomenal due to the job's techincal requisites, and non-paid students with limited time cannot always meet the challenge with ample success." supporting his argument for the need of a SU Director.

Survey Shows Conflict

239 students responded to the Student Interest Survey conducted by the Student Government Association.

Concerning open visitation, the majority of the response was in favor of open dorms only of Friday, Saturday, and Sunday.

109 students desire an extended curfew for every night of the week. 37 students desire a curfew, and 31 do not.

Out of the 227 who answered the specific question concerned with coffeehouses sponsored by the Student Union, 206 said they liked the specific activity.

As for the entertainment, big name concerts was number one on the list, followed by Moose Lodge dances, coffeehouses, movies, and planned activities.

Listing specific needs or improvements, the general response seemed to want a new Student Center, a full time Activities director, inexpensive weekend dances or activites every weekend, and the gym open on weekends.

Tuesday, March 10, the American Red Cross Bloodmobile came to High Point College.

The Bloodmobile was at the High Point Red Cross Chapter last week and received 358 pints of blood.

Donated blood will be sent to the blood bank in Charlotte, N.C., where it will then be sent to any hospital as needed.

The blood can be transferred to another state, if need be. Mrs. Saunders, the head nurse of the local Red Cross Chapter stated that "a lot of hospitals have their own blood banks and may not need any of this blood."

Residents in the High Point area require approximately 3, 300 pints a year. The blood itself is free to all patients; the only charges are for collecting, testing, refrigeration, and distribution.

A donor had to be 21, have his parents' permission, or be self-supporting to be able to give blood.

There was an inter-fraternity contest to encourage members to donate blood. The results were based upon a percentage of the members, and will be announced in the next issue of The Hi-Po.

The Alpha Phi Omega's donated 10 pints; the Lambda Chi Alpha's, 8; the Delta Sigma Phi's, 6; the Pi Kappa Alpha's, 10; the Theta Chi's, 9; the Phi Mu's, 13; the Kappa Delta's, 4; the Zeta Tau Alpha's, 5.

"Even if a member can't give blood for some reason, we still consider him--at least he willing to give up some of his time," said Donald LaMar.

A plaque or a cup will be awarded to each fraternity and sorority with the best percentage. It will be presented at the Awards Assembly in May.

Ann Nulsen, a senior said, "I'm not in a sorority, so I'm not giving my blood because of the contest. I've never given before, and I thought it was a nice thing to do, maybe I can help someone else."

Wayne Holder, member of Alpha Phi Omega, said the contest didn't influence him either. He said; "I just wanted to. If I give blood, and sometime I may need some or some member of my family might, there's not so much of a hassle getting any."

Mr. Robert Wells, Director of Financial Aid, came into the canteen after donating blood, and was anxious to leave. "I want my coat, not a coke," he said.

Mr. James Wilson, a local citizen, donated one pint on Tuesday. "I jointed the Gallon Club today. That's one reason I gave, so I could be a member of the club."

Visitation Needs Support

By MARCIA LITTLE

In the second informal meeting with President Wendell M. Patton and David W. Cole, Dean of the College, Monday morning, coed visitation was the primary topic discussed.

Patton stated that he needed to have more support than he presently has before signing the visitation bill.

He plans to speak to the trustees and establish their views on open dorms, to review the SGA student interest survey, and to send a questionnaire to the parents of students before he makes his decision.

Patton sated that if the parents did not repond he would consider this an answer in itself.

Bob Williams, Speaker of Student Legislature, suggested that the Legislature compose a letter presenting the students' views to accompany Patton's questionnaire.

Patton said that right now he would not approve the bill because he feels it is "not necessary, and not in good taste. You can't date in your bedrooms at home, and it wouldn't enhance the reputation or prestige of High Point College."

Patton was willing to suggest at the Board of Trustees meeting on Wednesday, March 11, that the Executive Board be requested to act upon the open visitation bill at their next meeting in April.

If conducted in this manner, the bill could possibly be passed before the semester ends.

Patton mentioned some proposals that would result in changes in the Board of Trustees.

The proposals consist of abolishing the present structure of committees and establishing five new ones, seven trustees on each, with students, alumni, and outside specialists if needed.

If these proposals are passed, the trustees will be forced to become more active in academic and student affairs in which they have not previously been involved.

According to the present consitution of the Board, six months are necessary to change by-laws.

This means that these proposals, if passed, will go into effect next fall.

Each trustee would be interviewed, required to attend the two annual meetings, and be placed on a committee.

They would be requested to keep abreast of changes across the nation concerning their committee and asked to spend a minimum of one day, and preferably one night, on campus.

Teacher evaluation and the validity of the SGA were also discussed at the meeting which was attended by approximately 50 students.

The problems are: (1) to reorganize and reappoint committees from the Student Christian Association, and to coordinate the work of the student union by the SU, making it the 3rd governing body on campus.

(2) Student activities have been scattered throughout the year, including Campaign for Peace, Religion, and Democracy, and in April with the Religious Emphasis Week.

The committee further drew up plans for the coming year, and they are:

Block Parties are to be held at SU or some one of the dormitories or campus to study the possibility of reorganizing the student union.

Visitation Needs Support

By MARCIA LITTLE

In the student visitation session held in the Student Union Lounge Tuesday and Thursday nights, in the 8 college, dormitory representatives were present to discuss the visitation problem.

Points discussed that the committee must have support that dormitories will be willing to abide by the visitation rule.

The plans to operate in the living room and dormitories have been as open house, to receive the SGA approval, and to be subject to the social committee rules to be appointed to administer visitation hours and standards.

Points stated that a fine procedure should be drawn up for those who do not obey the visitation rules. Suggestions were made that the visitation committee should be the disciplinary committee to administer visitation's operation matters.

Points were that right now to specify any approval to the visitation committee, and that the visitation committee should be appointed. The point that is most important is that the visitation committee needs the dormitories to be responsible to any open house.

Points were willing to attempt to have the visitation rules to be in effect by Thursday, March 17, that the Executive Council is to be responsible to see open functions held in their dormitories.

It understood by this committee and SGA would functions for any, social procedures would.

Further suggested points presented by the visitation committee were that letters be written to the Dean of Women, Dean of Men, Dormitory Presidents, Dormitory Representatives, and establishing this visitation committee meeting, which were received, viewed, and approved by the committee.

Ann Nelson, business staff, and Bill Jr. secretary, for Phi and giving, are Mixed Secretary of the contest. I've never given lottery and I thought it was a nice thing to do," Miss Nelson commented.

Frazier Baker member of Alpha Phi Omega, said the campaign chairman helped him collect the money. "It's a good cause, I believe, and somebody has got to do it," he commented. "I'm glad I was asked to help."

Robert Little, Co-captain of Philadelphia A.C. came into the campaign after donating blood, and was assigned to help Miss Nelson. "That's one reason I did it," he said.

Robert Tribble, Jr. band member, another contributor, said, "I think it helps the College Club Fund." Tribble also donated a pint of blood.

Conflict prevails

The Student Union has plans for bigger and better things in the year to come.

Part of the Student Interest Survey was geared to reveal the true wishes for entertainment and suggestions for the imporvement of all around social life on this campus.

The contradictions presented by the numerical results of the survey indicate that students want their cake and . . . .They want big name concerts once or twice (or more, if possible) a year with some type of coffeehouse or dance entertainment on the side practically every weekend.

These students expect a university SU setup on the budget of a small college.

It is interesting to note that while on of the more popular suggestions for social life improvement is to have inexpensive weekend dances or activities every weekend, this was ranked fifth out of five in the question above, which read "Number in order or preference the kinds of entertainment you want."

HELLO, I'M HERE TO TELL YOU ABOUT HIGH POINT COLLEGE SOCIAL LIFE.

Editor's Mail

MISS JO DEININGER, EDITOR
HI-PO
High Point College
Dear Jo:

In spite of the many errors and incorrect statements that I frequently see in the HI-PO, I seldom comment on them. But when a direct quote is given from a person, you should be absolutely certain that it is correct.

In the article in the last issue on the front page, I was quoted as saying to the student body that "your primary concern is to be educated, not to be involved." I never said any such thing and I don't believe that any responsible educator would.

If you or David Steves want a direct quote I will be more than glad to give it to you, but neither one of you have talked to me about last Wednesday's meeting. This is a serious error and I hope it will be corrected.

Incidentally, I might mention that you did Mike Carle a real disservice when you referred to Robert E. Phillips, Mike Carle, and Earle Dalbey as representing the administration of the College. I can only hope that this was not done deliberately, because I am sure you know already that the Student Government Association is accused by some as being part of the administration.

Sincerely yours,
Wendell M. Patton
President

On Monday, March 9, at 10:00 a.m. the students of High Point College met with Wendell M. Patton, president of the college, in order to ask questions concerning various school policies which are subject to change. Again, no definite advancements or changes were made, and I see no probability of changes in the immediate or near future.

The legislative branch of the student government at High Point College has passed a bill allowing boys to visit the girls dormitories during specified hours on the weekends. When asked what action had been taken regarding this bill which was presented for his signature over a week ago, President Patton replied, "It's sitting on my desk." He then stated that no action would be taken until he fully understood what the students wanted.

Following an assembly with 150 students and various members of the administration (including Dr. Patton), the proposed bill was introduced to and passed by the Student Legislature. The students have gone through the "proper channels" in order to express their desires--what further actions are necessary? However, when asked why no action had been taken concerning the bill, President Patton stated that these assemblies and the passing of the bill "is not an accurate estimation of what the students want." I firmly believe that it could not be any more obvious what the students want and that the students have attempted, in every conceivable way to express themselves. Only a closeminded individual or one who is not in favor of any necessary legislature changes could overlook so obvious a request.

President Patton, while acting as a concerned "helper and mediator" of the students, has emphatically stated that he is violently opposed to the "open-visitation" policy. When asked why he felt this way he replied, "It is not necessary, not in good taste, and is nothing but bedroom dating, and many of you are not allowed to do this at home." Referring to this proposed bill as bedroom-dating" is a definite indication that Dr. Patton has formed a negative attitude concerning this policy and will not support the students; rather he will try to enforce his ultra-conservative views and suppress those of the students directly concerned.

The students of High Point College have every right to question the rules of the college and also to expect these rules to change with the changing times. It is understandably disheartning and frustrating for the students to meet with President Patton and to hear "I don't know, I didn't say that, or I cannot elaborate" thirteen times within a thirty minute period, as they did Monday morning. If he really doesn't know, (and I question that statement), then why is he meeting with the students.?

As college students, we are seeking a fuller understanding of the principles upon which our society operates. But here at High Point College the students are confronted with an administration which refuses to allow the legislative process to operate on the principles by which this country was founded. Instead, legislative acts are delayed, questions are completely evaded, and threats are handed to parents as well as students as soon as changes are sought. An openminded atmosphere must come about soon or this institution will never progress. After all, isn't closemindedness a form of ignorance--or fear--or both?

Faculty Given Equal Time

By DAVID STEVES

Last week all students who are both fashion-conscious and practical-minded got a prospectus as to what will be "in" for student arsenals, but I was deluged with questions about what the administration and faculty will be doing to "keep up with the Joneses," so to speak. So this week we delve into the other side of the collegiate arms race.

This coming season, comrades, will be much tougher going than last. The elders of the academic world are going to be counting on advance preparation and training to offset their numerical inferiority, so we're going to be seeing a lot of closely-fought contests.

Individual equipment and training has been stressed. All faculty and administrative personnel, as well as the mercenaries, will be equipped with steel helmets, gas masks, and flash cream against burns. Secretaries have all been required to qualify as expert long-range sharpshooters, and the janitorial staff has been divided into mortar teams that will be operating from rooftop strongholds.

Each department has been allotted a "ready room," and while only department heads and full professors will be permitted to carry automatic weapons, combat-readiness drills have shown the faculty reaction time to have gone down to 3.2 minutes.

To cope with classroom insurgency, the administration will be equipping all professional desks with a sawed-off double-barraled shotgun. One blast from this fearsome weapon has been shown in field tests to maim or kill four out of every five students in the average-sized classroom, giving the professor ample time to get to his battle station without being delayed by students.

The elementary precaution of sandbagging all the windows in administration buildings will take place as soon as campus tempers start to flare, and all bell-towers and chimneys are to be placed under guard to prevent the early capture of such strategic points by students.

Some small NC colleges are creating their own version of The Rat Patrol by armor-plating the campus maintenance vehicles and equipping them with easy to mount .50 caliber machineguns. To prevent the students from achieving this kind of mobility and firepower, the entrances to student parking lots will be sown with electrical mines. (Two can play at this game, though; as ye sow, so shall ye reap).

Special precautions will be taken to prevent the colleges' emergency dictators from assasination by student suicide squads, and some of the more radical institutions are currently considering emplacing fixed-mount flamethrowers in the doorways of major campus buildings, to deter massed assaults.

In addition to the mines and flamethrowers, most administrations are considering the purchase of what has been called the ultimate weapon in campus warfare: small atomic bombs to be built into student residence's foundations as both deterrent and fail-safe device. Many trustee groups feel that this will not only give students victory a phyrric one. . .both the about-to-be-captured university or college and the students responsible will be utterly destroyed.

Once again that's all for another week, comrades. Keep those reactions and suggestions coming in, and next week we'll try to get in some pre-midterm scoring predictions.

Reality Is A Crutch

By PAUL GABRIEL

If wishes were horses, I would ride.

If to everything there is a season I am waiting for sumpeacеter.

If time was really a father, I should like to see what offspring he would produce.

"Reality is a crutch."

For years and eons and longer periods of time man has dwelt in fantasy and dealt in reality.

Be realistic, grown up. . .to what? A world full of anacronistic fairy tales about politics, economics, religions and morals, that all make about as much sense as horses that were once day dreams and a baby reproduced asexually by a senile old man or maybe by spontaneous generation?

There is something amiss in a society that dismisses fantasy as a means of escape.

Would it not seem more viable to create a myth around a hope in something set as a goal rather than allowing a myth to develop in a fatalistic, "What can I do, that's the way it is" attitude.

Be realistic, demand the impossible. . imagine what this world would be without the dream of simple things like freedom and the right to hope for something better.

Yet thre are people, blacks, poor, students and too many starving children who can dream to escape "reality" and never dream to create something better.

Isaac Newton said, "If I have seen farther than others, it is because I have stood on the shoulders of giants.

Men of one age dream of great hopes that are not then "realistic" but. . .

Demand the impossible: Mr. Webster says that impossible is no capable of being accomplished, and that incapable is not having the ability or qualification.

Then what we must do is arm each other with the ability to do the impossible so that when we meet head on with the realistic the only argument will become, "because that is the way things are."

While all the rest have the walth of the human mind and all that it is capable of imagining.

Father Time may someday produce a season of sumpeacеter in which every man will be able to ride, even beggars.

Wouldn't it be nice if the reality cripples could kick the crutch habit?

Involvement Urged

By BOB WILLIAMS

"The Student Legislature of the Student Government Association is the representative body of the High Point College students."

Every returning student must accept his responsibility to himself and to his fellow students to run for office or actively support competent friends for office, to vote, and to stay involved enough to know what is happening on this campus.

If one is interested in academic improvements, penal code revisions, visitations, admissions policies, or the Golden Decade development plans, he should actively identify with High Point College by staying informed and by serving within Student Government or on faculty-student committees.

In order for Legislature to continue its constructive functions and for it to be truly representative, each voting seat within Legislature should be hotely contested.

Petitions for class officer candidates are due March 18. These petitions should be turned into Bill Hatchl or myself, Bob Williams. Speeches for these offices will be held on April 6 at 10 a.m. and elections will be held April 8 and 9.

The individual representatives within the Student Legislature are important people. They serve, along with the Executive Council of the SGA, as the students' principal "channel of communication" with the college authorities.

These representatives funnel the $27,000 student activity fund to deserving student organizations such as Student Union, The Hi-Po, Zenith, Apogee, Student Christian Association, Dormitory Councils and the classes. The money they control pays for Freshman Orientation, the Junior-Senior Prom, the Senior Gift, Freshman-Sophomore dances, refrigerator services and campus social events.

Students must be actively involved if they want any improvements. Student Legislature can serve as our forum for creative suggestions and for obtaining constructive response.

Solons Revamp Bill

In contrast to its last meeting, the HPC Student Legislature gathered in an otherwise-empty chamber this last Monday evening to consider more bills on both the running issues of students' rights and changes in the structure of the SGA itself.

SGA President Michael Carle reported that Dr. Wendell M. Patton, President of the college, had termed last week's intervisitation bill "completely unacceptable," and had passed the decision on the bill calling for an increase in the student activity fee to the Board of Trustees.

He had, however, given his approval to several other pieces of legislation; among them was one establishing seperate dormitory councils for each dormitory and another placing two students on permanent invitation to "appropriate" meetings of the Board of Turstees.

A bill calling for a policy definiation by the faculty admissions committee and a reminder that rejected students had a right to a hearing was introduced by junior class representative David Steves. The bill was passed.

Also passed upon introduction by acclamation was a bill brought up by senior class president Brian Ditzler to aid fellow senior Paul Gabriel.

The bill "strongly encourages the Student Personnel Office to reconsider its decision requiring Mr. Gabriel to move back on campus."

An amendment to the SGA election procedures allowing rising sophomores to run for the office of secretary and vice-president was pushed through by freshman class representative Debbie Johnson.

Miss Johnson also brought up a bill calling for each member of the Board of Trustees to spend "one full day and night on campus at his convenience," which was passed.

In an attempt to get Patton's approval of the intervisitation bill the solons reconstructed and passed another version of it (fewer hours on fewer days) for its approval.

The only monetary appropriation of the evening was one of $150 to the freshmen and sophomore classes for their social. Comment on the bill was summed up by junior class representative Carolyn McCorkle; "After we gave the junior class $500 for the Junior-Seniors, I don't see how we can refuse only $150 to the freshmen and sophomores for this.

A & T To Hold Urban Confab

The Department of Sociology and Social Service of North Carolina A & T University will conduct an Urban Affairs Conference March 18-20, 1970.

Plans have been made to gather a representative number of people from the community, the establishment, and the university; solutions to the major problems confronting our cities will be sought.

The Greensboro Chamber of Commerce, the United Community Services, and the North Carolina A & T Industrial Cluster are co-sponsoring this conference.

Panelists of locally and nationally acquired esteem will discuss such issues as employment, housing, police and community relations, student protest movements and the city, the courts, the role of the university in the urban revolution, and additional problems faced by our urban centers.

Campus News Briefs

Judiciary Sentence Upheld

Tuesday, March 3, David Zenns appeared before the Judiciary Council and was convicted of breaking and entering the office of Mrs. Carolyn Rauch in Memorial Auditorium.

Zenns was defended by Willie Shaw; prosecutor for the Student Government was Chuck Eakes.

The judiciary handed Zenns a three week suspension.

Robert Phillips, Dean of Students, chose to override the judiciary council decision and the following day suspended Zenns for one full semester.

Zenns appealed the decision to the Student Personnel Committee under the direction of Mr. William Cope.

Friday, March 6, the committee handed Zenns their decision: that the decision of the Judiciary Council be upheld for a three week suspension.

Frosh Class Plans

The freshmen class held a meeting on Wednesday, March 4, in the Student Center at 6:00.

The purpose of the meeting was to discuss attempts to increase social life at HPC, and to supplement the expense account of the freshmen class.

Committees were formed to sell sandwiches and to organize a coffeehouse and talent show.

The latter will try to focus and direct individual talents to provide some entertainment on campus.

The Freshmen-Sophomore Dance on the afternoon of Saturday, March 14, was also discussed.

Music for the dance will be provided by a Washington, D.C., hardrock band called the "Carnival".

There will be no admission charge.

Art Showing

Etchings, woodcuts, and lithographs will be on display in the foyer of Memorial Auditorium of Friday, March 13, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Included will be original prints by old masters and newer artists from the fifteenth to twentieth centuries.

These prints will include selections by Baskin, Chagall, Daumier, Picasso, Kollwitz, Rouault, and 985 others.

The public is invited.

New Pool Rules

New regulations for the High Point College pool room have been announced.

There will be no charge for games.

The room will be open on Monday and Wednesday from 2 to 6 p.m.; Tuesday and Thursday from 2:30 to 6 p.m.; and Friday from 2 to 5 p.m.

Trustees Visit

An Open House Tea was held in the student center Wednesday, March 11, in order for the students to get better acquainted with the members of the Board of Trustees.

The tea, open to all students, was sponsored by the Student Government Association.

Students and trustees informally discussed recent proposed policy changes and the need for greater trustee involvement and interest in student affairs.

SU Can Cancel

The Student Union now has the power to cancel any event which conflicts with a SU activity.

This has been done because of the excess of confusion in the past.

All organizations should check with the Student Union Calendar to obtain approval.

ZETA TAU ALPHA

Delta Gamma Chapter of Zeta Tau Alpha will host Shore Day for province 2-N, April 15, at the Top of the Mart in High Point. Zetas from Duke, Western Carolina, Lenoir-Rhyne, Wilmington, and many alumni will be present.

A candlelight was held recently for Peggy Billhimer, who became engaged to Jerry Garmon during the Christmas vacation.

Roseanne Cunningham is pinned to Hank Bateman, a member of the Sigma Pi fraternity at North Carolina State University; and Cathy Rushing became lavallered to Rick Mills, also a Sigma Pi at N.C. State.

Zeta Tau Alpha officers for 1970-71 are: President, Alxis Hinkle; Vice President and Pledge Trainer, Neely Dowall, Secretary, Cathy Rushing; and Treasurer, Carey Sherrill. Other officers are Ritual, Jean Wink and Historian, Tricia Harness.

Three Zetas were elected to top offices of the WRA: President, Cheri Palermo; Treasurer, Bev Mechell; and Publicity Chairman, Karen Hollberg.

Lorrain Scronce and Zeta Field Secretary, Stuart Mungall are initiating a Pahellenic workshop to be held at High Point College on March 15th for the purpose of discussing the Greek system.

ALPHA GAMMA DELTA

Debbie Logan, Jeanne McCauley, Jane McElvany, Pat Morley, and Patti Rask were initiated into Alpha Gamma Delta Fraternity February 24.

After the initiation ceremony, the Alpha Gams had a banquet at the Sheridan Hotel. Speeches were given by Jeanne McCauly, Kathy Zeller, and Penny Williamson Pusoy.

Jane McElvany was selected as the Oustanding Pledge. Jeanne McCauley was given the scholarship Award, and Debbie Logan received the Activities Award.

The Alpha Gams are holding a car wash Saturday, March 14, behind the Winn Dixie at the College Village Shopping Center. The car wash will be held from 9:30 until 2:30. Proceeds will go toward the Alpha Gam's annual "Rose Ball" and banquet held later this spring.

Student Wins Art Mention

Four High Point College students have recently been informed of their acceptance as exibiting artists in an art exhibit and competition sponsored by the Piedmont University Center, said Mr. Raeford Porter, Associate Professor in Art.

The contest, open to all students and faculty of the member institutions of the Piedmont University Center, had approximately 160 entries. Only sixty works were accepted from these on judged basis.

Donald Sexauder, graphic artist, and art professor at East Carolina University, Greenville, N. C., served as juror in the contest that saw nine entires by HPC students.

Carol Myrick, a junior with four entries accepted, won an honorable mention and fifty follars as a prize.

Miss Myrick, whose work was a silk screen entitled "Circles and Doodles," is an art major from Greensboro.

Other students with entries in the exhibit are Jan Hayworth, with three works, Rebecca Benedict, and Linda Cooper, both with one.

All students enrolled in the approximately fifteen member university center were eligible.

The exhibit is to be held at Salem College in Winston-Salem from March 2-16.

From work exhibited, a traveling show will be prepared and offered at no charge to all Piedmont University Center member institutions.

JOHN DASKOVITCH PERFORMS

Appalachian Chaplain Talks At Coffeehouse

Religion in Life has been a tradition at High Point College for 10 years.

On Tuesday night, March 10, a coffeehouse sponsored by the program, was held in the Student Center.

Several HPC students performed, demonstrating their many hidden talents. They were accompanied with a light show.

Mr. Reggie Smith, the campus chaplain at Appalachian State University, who is the activator of Religion in Life week this year, also spoke at the coffeehouse.

Most of what he presented came from his soon to be published book, A CAMPUS PULSE BEATS.

He presented slides made by two students which "tell it like it is."

His talks at the coffeehouse was concerned with problems of pullution, litter, poverty, and human relationships.

In an interview for The Hi-Po, Mr. Smith stated, "It is time that the vocabulary of Christianity was rebound. For example, let's cease talking about 'reconciliation' and begin to talk about 'I am with Him.'"

Mr. Smith lives in a chalet on a side of a mountain and he is a fan of Rod McKuen, and Kahlil Gilbran.

Mr. Smith hopes to work with a newly formed ecumenical resort ministery, which will travel to ski resorts, or he hopes to get his own church.

NEW FOUR PREDICT FUTURE

John Young of Reidsville, N.C. is the new president, Alan Prather of High Point is the vice-president, another High Point boy, Dan La Mar, was elected treasurer, and Carol Clause of Greensburg, Ohio will serve as secretary.

As president, Young has already begun his duties. He has appointed a committee to rewrite the penal code, he is working on dorm visitation through the Board of Trustees, and he is attempting to make the president a voting member of the Board of Trustees.

Among other things, Young would like to see students on the admissions board, later hours for women, the parking lot behind the Student Center paved, an honor code acceptable to students, a Student Union director, and all campus organizations doing worthwhile projects for the college.

Young feels the largest job of the vice - president is Orientation week for incoming freshmen. He plans to make Prather the head of an occupational program, which will attempt to bring in people from various fields, who will talk with department majors an advise them careers they may enter.

"The vice-president will also assist me with my duties as president," stated Young.

"The secretary will do all the writing, typing and filing of the minutes for the Executive Committee and I will probably make her a chairman of some committee later on in the year," said Young.

Young felt the treasurer had enough to do with keeping the books accurate and his other duties.

"I'm not sure how former executive committee decisions have been obtained in the past, but next year the entire Executive Committee will make the decisions instead of just one or two individuals," said Young. It will also be required of the officers to attend as many Legislature meetings as possible," said Young.

Young feels the Student Union is not developed enough to know how to function by itself.

As he said, "If it somehow could be worked out that the SU could get their own money other than from Legislature, than I would favor them controlling themselves. I feel a full or part time SU director is manatory. As long as the SU is getting their money from the SGA, I will have to stand for us having control on their money, as it is only good business to know how our money is being spent."

"I am going to try to accomplish what the students want. I'd like to get the students interested in the campus and its activities, and cultivate some pride in their institution. Unless a student can be proud of his school and his SGA, he is not going to be satisfied," stated Young.

Prather feels the SGA's first duty is to be responsive and representative of the student body. "I would like to eliminate the feeling of freshmen being tolerated as second class citizens, and I would like to see the vice-president take a much more active part in student affairs after Orientation week," said Prather.

He also said, "I would like to see assemblies become much more interesting, something students would look forward to attending. If we have to have a required assembly once a month, why not try to get someone worthwhile, who the students would be interested in listening to."

Prather feels that HPC should become more involved in off-campus affairs.

Don La Mar, as treasurer, would like to see a set policy of procedures of handling monies among the various campus organizations.

La Mar feels the offices of secretary and treasurer have been slighted in the past, and now need to be upgraded in prestige.

He made the comment, "Legislature should go to the students, instead of waiting for the students to come to them."

La Mar would first like to see a revision of the judical system. "There are inequities and vague definitions of terms that need to be cleared up," he said.

Other prominent needs are those of a SU director, academic reforms through Legislature, and various oranizations "tightening their belts" on their budgets, according to La Mar.

Miss Clause feels the secretary needs to become involved and work with the Executive Committee, instead of "sitting by."

Miss Clause said, "I hope to think of a way to have better communications between the students and the Executive Committee, perhaps by newsletters."

Snack Bar Ready To Roll -- Almost

"We're almost ready to go," said High Point College Vice-President Earle G. Dalbey in reference to the college's new temporary snack bar.

The only things holding back the grand opening, according to Dalbey, is the delivery of its refrigerator. A local firm run by an alumnus, Leon Green, has contracted to furnish the new unit's refrigerator at a school discount price. "It's the only firm around here that will do so," Dalbey added parenthetically.

A six-week series of misfortune and mishaps has beset the Dependable Refrigeration Company and held back delivery.

Ranging from the production-halting strike at General Electric's northern plants to the nation-wide flu epidemic, the obstacles have combined to prevent the snack bar's icebox from arriving.

"However," said Dalbey, "we'll probably be open early next week; like on Monday or Tuesday." He added that the staffing and operation of the snack bar have been placed in the hands of junior Marty Froystad, a Student Union operative who has great hopes for the snack bar.

"I'm waiting on Dalbey," says Froystad. "As soon as he comes through with the refrigerator, we roll."

Questioned about hours of operation, Froystad explained that the place will be open from 8 pm through 11 pm Sunday through Thursday nights.

The hours of business were selected so as to provide maximum benefit to the students, according to Dalbey and Froystad. The bookstore and the cafeteria are open during the weekday daylight hours and the snack bar's executives see no end to compete for the business.

"If there proves to be a demand for the snack bar being open during other hours, then we will try to arrange it," said Froystad.

The closure of the establishment on weekends is felt by the two men to be justified by the extrapolated dearth of students on campus during that time each week.

Froystad was asked if the unit would continue to operate under the name of "the temporary snack bar."

"No," he replied, "we'll probably come up with a name for it." Jesting, he added, "something like Odin's Hangout. I'm open to suggestions.

Change is in air

The Student Legislature in its meeting April 2 passed two bills that no one thought very much about in the past. One pertained to persons over 21 living off campus without written parental permission. The other states that rules for admission and readmission be stated both in the handbook and the college catalogue.

For these bills and a few others they should be commended. Legislature is finally getting itself together as a major force for change.

Dear Editor:

I wish to start by commending you and your staff on putting out a campus newspaper. This publication is a definite necessity for communication between our students; All of our students.

Your March 6th and March 13th issues consisted of a total of 10 pages and on these pages not one word of sports news was included. There are some athletic events occuring on our campus. In an effort to conserve your precious space I will list some of the events which have taken place this semester: 43 men's intramural basketball games; and 12 women's intramural volleyball games.

Our varsity golf and tennis teams have not participated in intercollegiate competition, however, they have not received any mention either.

As Editor of a campus publication I am well aware of the difficulty in getting anyone to work. However, anybody can get the scores and at least list them in your paper. Many, many hours of work have been spent by our students in practicing their talents and it is time they received some ink for it.

Sincerely,
David Bishop

Editor's note:

This letter was dated before the Easter Holidays. Also, the Hi-Po has advertised for a sports editor and/or staff, and gotten no response as of this edition. We welcome all interested personnel.

Dear Editor:

The following is submitted out of a concern for the present student body of High Point College and the future of this institution. Its content is a paraphrased report of a conversation that took place between Dr. Patton, Miss Kate Shaffer, and myself. Miss Shaffer is the young lady who attempted to sell and was prohibited from selling The Protean Radish (a radical underground newspaper) on our campus Wednesday, March 11. The meeting was scheduled to determine if Miss Shaffer would be allowed to see The Radish on campus. I bring this conversation to your attention not necessarily out of support for the content of "The Radish, but out of concern that the students of this college might have the right to buy and read such a paper on this campus and also to decide for themselves the worth of its content.

No attempt is being made in the following to quote the conversation verbatim, but only to paraphrase it accurately to the best of my memory.

Dr. Patton was asked to state his decision as to whether or not the paper could be sold on campus by Miss Shaffer. He answered that at the present time my answer is no. However, I must wait for Mr. Dalbey to return to campus for a final decision. (I believe he said that Mr. Dalbey was in Philadelphia.) Whereupon he was asked if Mr. Dalbey was responsible to him. Dr. Patton answered yes. Asked why he decided to prohibit the paper, he said that it was because Miss Shaffer was not a student. Dr. Patton, would you allow a student to sell this paper on campus? His answer to that question was, "no." Next he was asked what was the distinction being made between The High Point Enterprise which is sold on campus by non-students and the paper in question. He responded that from his partial reading of an issue of The Radish, he had concluded that the editorial stance of the paper was communistic and anti-capitalistic. He said that such an editorial stance is in direct contradiction to the Christian philosophy upon which this college is founded. He added that he had not heard nor read an actual statement of the paper's editorial stance, but that based on his conclusion that the paper contradicted the Christian philosophy of the college on economic and political grounds, he did not feel it should be sold on campus.

I then asked Dr. Patton if he was saying that the Christian philosophy of this college demanded of the institution a certain economic and political stance. He replied affirmatively. Finally, I asked if then this position on this matter was that he would not permit the newspaper in question to be sold on campus because it had a communistic and anti-capitalistic editorial stance which was not in correspondence with the basic philosophy of this college. His answer ------- no; it is because Miss Shaffer is not a student. The circular conversation then began its second rotation.

I have left out some of the conversation because it was simply repetitious of the above questions and answers. I will leave interpretation of Dr. Patton's position up to the individual. It seems to me to be highly contradictory if nothing else. Personally, I must conclude that Dr. Patton is opposed to the selling of The Protean Radish on this campus on political and economic grounds, and is banning it from our campus. This seems to me to be a restriction on the students of this college; not to mention Miss Shaffer's rights. I also feel that by taking such a stance Dr. Patton is only provoking the evil that he so sincerely fears. What was it that Mr. Gabriel said in a recent issue about "resist not evil?"

Sincerely,
William Ramsey

Guess What's Cooking

By DAVID STEVES

Easter, of course, is the traditional time when lemming-like hordes of collegians converge on holiday watering-places; notably Fort Lauderdale in sunny Florida.

The rebels foregather with the party people, and a good deal of old - fashioned recipe -swapping takes place--not unlike housewives at a bridge party. Except that these recipes yield explosions and fires, not cakes.

From a cross-section of Lauderdale returnees I have garnered the makings of several devices that are this year's favorites among collegiate demolition fans. However, in the interest of public safety and of the avoidance lawsuit triggered by the relatives of demised students, I have omitted at least one ingredient or step from each device. I will reveal the omissions to any who's interested -- after they sign some some instruments of legal fault waiver.

STEVES

Before beginning, I'd like to emphasize that all these ingredients can be obtained from any hobby shop, hardware store or household kitchen and toolshed.

A longtime favorite first brought to the public eye by the Hungarian chapter of the SDS in 1956 is the Molotov cocktail. Recent developments show that extra care taken with the contents and wick of this device changes it from a simple flaming bottle of gasoline to a fairly sophisticated weapon.

The contents? Use kerosene instead of gasoline in the interest of personal safety (the gasoline-type could go off in your hand, leaving you medium rare and tasting funny.) Combine two parts kerosene with one part household liquid (BLANK) to end up with your very own home-brew napalm.

For the wick, make a thin loose cylinder of bandage gauze and tape it into the mouth of your bottle. By the way, don't ever use coke bottles -- the glass is too think. Stick to the think-walled wine and whiskey bottles readily available on any campus.

Sticking with the incendiaries but going up the scale in magnitude we come to thermite. This and its cousin gelgenite are familiar to all our WWII vets, but were only recently discovered to be within the scope of the kitchen chemists.

To make this you combine sulfur and iron powder, (not filings, powder.) To ignite this takes an intense flash of heat best no applied from close by, so I leave it to your inventiveness. I also omit proportions and mixing methods.

Latest word from the big campuses has it that experiments with alcohol and glycerine as solvents have come up with what may be a fiery form of plastic explosive.

The last item in this new section of the student arsenal is an explosive. Combine regular ammonia with (BLANK) of (BLANK) and centrifuge in a bucket. Then filter it through several layers of paper towel. You'll get a yellow-gray filtrate paste. At this point stop and come back and re-read the following message.

This stuff is humongously destructive and super-dangerous. It dries into a silvery crystalline powder that will explode at a harsh look. A matchbox full will utterly destroy a good-sized panel truck. It's unually non-volatile when wet, but there are stories of a soggy ashtray-full blowing out a dormintory wall.

One final word; if you follow the headlines you've heard that happened to the underground bomb factories. That should be an excellent negative example---- don't mess with this stuff unless you're really desperate.

Dalbey Awaits Further Communication

A hope that some formalization of desired changes would have occured during High Point College's pre-Easter wave of student questioning characterizes the thoughts of Earle G. Dalbey, the college's vice president for business and financial affairs.

"I had hoped to see more contact and understanding between the students and the faculty," he explains.

To keep pace with the recent rapid change in educational methods and structurizings that have swept collegiate America, Dalbey feels that the faculty has to have contacts with the students "outside the classroom situation."

The short-lived wave of student concern that struck the campus before Easter has prompted Dalbey to ask if the students have lumped the faculty with the administration. "Communications," he stated, "should be on a three-way basis, not just between the students and the administration."

He explained that the students have not said whether they consider the faculty one with the administration or are just leaving them out entirely.

Dalbey seemed to feel that the spark of Students for Responsible Action has burned out before the students could establish needed areas of contact with the faculty.

According to Dalbey there was a great opportunity for the students and faculty together to formalize, as he previously explained, the areas and methods that warrant processal change.

"This is the trend," he explains, "and if we don't get started pretty soon, we'll wake up some day five or ten years from now and find ourselves pretty far behind."

"We've got to get it together," he finished, "and modernize a lot of our teaching methods and resolve our problems, dent for business and financial or we'll find ourselves in trou-

Legislature Strives For Change

Ten bills were passed by Student Legislature on Thursday, April 2, and have been passed by John Young, president of SGA.

One bill was concerned with students living off campus while attending college.

The suggested requirements for students to be able to live off campus were presentation of written parental permission for a student under 21 years of age, and any student at least 21 years old should be able to live where he wishes upon request to do so.

Another bill suggested student representation on the Admissions Committee of HPC.

Brian Ditzler presented a bill stating the need for faculty representation at the Board of Trustees, to be provided by the head of the Faculty Committee being a full member of the Board of Trustees.

Other bills included such topics as the gym being opened on weekends, the President of the SGA becoming a full member of the Board of Trustees, the policy of admissions and re-admissions be printed in the Student Handbook and the college catalogue, the Student Handbook be revised by May 10, and education program on the use of drugs to be initiated perhaps during Orientation week, $350 be allocated to Alan Prather and the new SUSGA Co-ordinator to attend the SUSGA Convention in Memphis, Tenn., and that Bob Williams, Mike Carle, Steve Kennedy, and Dave Holton receive plaques to show student appreciation.

Rehearsals For Skin Game Take Shape

Bouncing tunes and happy faces are the order of the night these days in Memorial Auditorium on the High Point College campus as Mrs. Carolyn Rauch, drama instructor, puts her charges through their paces.

Rehearsals for the spring dramatic production are somewhat akin to spring drills for a football team. For the name of the game in this instance is THE SKIN GAME. And it just so happens THE SKIN GAME is all about football--and a boy--several eager young women--which boils down to love.

The two-act musical comedy is an original. Dr. Walt Hudgins, associate professor of religion and philosophy at Greensboro College, has written the script and his cohort, Roy M. Pendergast, senior piano major at Greensboro College, has composed the music.

Both gentlemen will be remembered for their original production of PUMPERNICKEL ICE CREAM which was shown in many areas of the state last year and drew rave reviews.

"The Skin Game" will run five nights--April 16, 17, 18, 24 and 25 and tickets may be purchased at the door.

Playing the part of the "swinging" star quarterback who sings a half-million dollar contract with a New York team and then runs into trouble with the league commissioner when his restaurant attracts undesirables (and who does that remind you of?) will be Jon Wener of Rockville, Md.

The "sweet young thing" he meets while in college, Sueanne, will be played by Teresa Rimmer of Thomasville. Mary H. Burnley of High Point, a student at Indiana University who is home on leave, is playing the role of the "other woman"--Foxy Glove.

Others in the case are Nola June Nunnery of Montpelier, Vt.' Richard Moore of Camp Springs, Md.; Chris McKinney of Forrest City, N.C.; Sally Kemp of Baltimore, Md.; Patti Frost of High Point; John Daskavich of Navesink, N.J.; David Waggoner of High Point, Sam Lemonds of Greensboro; Patrick Gibson of High Point, Edward Grune of Takoma Park, Md.; Ginger Price of Annandale, Va.; Susan Sharrock of Jamestown; Evelyn Kirkland of Bethesda, Md.; Robbie Woodside of Alexandria, Va.; Denise Gregorio of Virginia Beach, Va.; Hartson Poland of Belman, N.J.; Terry Botts of Deland, Fla.; Cliff Metcalf of Arlington, Va. and Mike Reese of Cornesville, Ind.

Decade Boosted

High Point College's Golden Decade Program has received a $25,000 contribution from the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., bringing to $50,000 the amount or Reynolds' contributions to the program since its beginning in 1965.

Reynolds' latest contribution is earmarked for a proposed addition to the campus library.

TRUSTEES RECOGNIZE NEEDS

The Trustees of High Point College recognize that students have just cause for grievance relative to the need for more space for small group semi-private social and recreational purposes.

The need for a student union where such adequate space would be provided is acknowledged and holds top priority as the next building to be placed on the campus.

Meanwhile, it is further acknowledged that such intermediate steps as can be taken to meet this need should be taken without delay.

The request for open student dormitory visitation is one that the Trustees feel they cannot grant.

At its meeting on Wednesday, April 8, 1970, the Board voted not to approve this request.

However, it was voted to set up a Task Force to look into all possible means of alleviating the need for more space where couples could be together under semi-private conditions to talk, study and listen to music, etc.

From the faculty and administration, the representatives are Earle G. Dalbey, Jim Nelson, and Raiford Porter.

The Task Force was charged with finding all possible solutions to the problem with immediate steps that can be taken, and to report to the May meeting of the Board such steps to be taken by the fall of 1970, and long range.

The Task Force met with full attendance on Monday, April 13. This session was a general brainstorming session out of which came an agreement to open the lounge areas in the co-ed dorm immediately under regulations set by the Student Personnel Committee.

The members of the force met the next day and made a survey of all existing facilities on the campus. The following recommendations to be put into effect by the opening of the fall semester 1970 include: sectioning off ten small areas in the basement of the library, to be used for group discussion and study; renovating and furnishing the old home economics area of Womans Hall for a social area for co-ed use; the first floor of Wesley Hall be made into individual lounges for co-ed use; the basement of the infirmary be finished into four small lounge areas and one larger area with kitchen and bath facilities the first floor of McCulloch Hall is to be renovated so as to have six new lounge areas for co-ed use; and a picnic shelter with tables and grills be built near the athletic field in the woods off East College Drive; when the President's house becomes available, that it be furnished as lounge areas for small group co-ed use.

The Student Personnel Committee will set up the rules under these areas will be used.

For long range it is understood a new Student Union Building will be built on the campus as soon as possible, hopefully within two years.

The student members of the Task Force tried to stress the need for at least semi-privacy on the campus. The force felt the locations of the areas to the benefit of the student and his needs.

John Young, as spokesman for the students on the Task Force, stated, "The Trustees, faculty and administrators who are on this force are working for the students, believe it or not, and for immediate solutions to our needs. They are beginning to see our needs and are considering all possibilities to fulfill these needs."

70-71 Officers Denounce Apathy

By MARY GLADNEY

On Wednesday, April 8 and Thursday, April 9, rising sophomores, juniors and seniors voted for their class officers.

On April 9, the class election results were made known with the exception of a few run-off elections still to take place.

The new class officers hope for more student involvement and less apathy. They hope to accomplish this in different ways including uniting classes for certain activites.

In the rising senior class, Corkie McCorkle was elected president. Sandy Turner was elected vice-president, Secretary, Linda Hinkleman; treasurer, Cheri Palermo; Legislature, Jim Luedeke, Benton Dry, Daren Hutchinson; Judiciary, Trudy Matheny.

Miss McCorkle's plans for the coming year include a Senior Bulletin, to be placed in the senior's post office boxes. The bulletin will include GRE, job placements, graduation announcements, and other senior concerns.

Explaining the reason for a senior class bulletin Miss McCorkle said, "Seniors don't have enough time for meetings. The only class meetings we will have will be for the purpose of voting."

Other plans for the senior class include planning a meaningful graduation ceremony; not just a show for parents and faculty.

Miss McCrokle hopes for unity in the senior class by involvement in activities every one is concerned about.

The rising Junior class will be lead by Larry Breeden, President. Elected Vice-President was Mike Smith.

There is still a run-off for Secretary between Bob Stienberg and Jean Wenk. There is also a run-off for the office of Treasurer between Oliver Stinchcomb and Bob Stienberg.

Janet Hampton, Cleve Anthony, and Rocky Mackintosh won seats in Legislature. Nate Cagle was elected Chief Justice of the Judiciary Council.

The biggest concern facing the juniors will be the Junior-Senior Prom. Because of the expenses involved with the prom, Breeden wishes to combine classes for other social events.

Breeden denounced class apathy, "I realize people don't care. Maybe if classes get together they will come up with something that more students will support."

Burch Koerner is the newly elected President of the rising sophomore class. Vice President is Pat Quackenbush; Secretary is Pat Evans; Treasurer is Bev Mechell; Legislature, Debbie Johnson, Debbie Stamper and Jeane McCauley. There is still a run-off for the Judiciary Council.

The sophomore class' biggest plans concern orientation. "Specifically," said Koerner, "we want to get the Freshmen off to a better start than we had."

Koener hopes to have a class meeting with the purpose of voting on whether the new freshmen should go through a Rat Week like this year's freshmen.

The newly elected president also expressed a desire for classes to work together for some kind of entertainment to help lessen student apathy.

Sofas for beds?

The Task Force set up by the Trustees (see story, page 1) has caused a spark of hope around the campus. They seem to recognize what has to be done in order to meet students' needs.

However, it also seems that, with the possible exception of the library and the proposed picnic shelter, we are spending a large amount of money to achieve the same goal as open visitation.

It would appear that we are going to a lot of trouble to replace beds with sofas.

Editor's Mail

To the Editor:

In the last issue of the Hi-Po, I stated that all organizations funded by the SGA would need to "tighten their belts" in the coming year. Naturally, the question has risen as to why this is necessary, and where lies the fault in not having enough money available?

In my opinion the fault lies within the Student Government and the administration jointly with the students and the heads of the various SGA funded organizations.

As for the administration, (and I hope they, and we know its identity by now) tuition, board and room costs were all raised for next year. The Student Activity Fee was given only a one dollar raise per student (equal to about $1,100 without asking (to my knowledge) the advice of any member of a SGA budget committee, or making an effort to find out how much the SGA would need. Since the cost of operating the college is constantly climbing at a rate of at least 6% a year, would it not have been logical for a 6% increase to be given to SGA? The present one dollar raise is .74 per student short of 6% of $29.00 per student.

Not only was a real effort (again to my knowledge) not made by the administration to discover the cost of operating SGA funded organizations, nor members of the SGA made a real effort to inform the administration of our need for money until after the letters and forms were published stating the cost increase. It is primarily the student body's fault that the SGA will be forced to operate on a tight and limited budget. Simply it is mainly our fault--but not entirely.

And now we are forced to ask what can we do to prevent this from happening again. First of all, SGA must request to be consulted before any future increase in the cost of attending HPC. We simply can not afford to miss the boat again! In the next few years, the SGA will need in excess of $4C.00 per student if there is to be any hope of expanding and upgrading the present status of all organizations.

As for what can be done now, I plan to present to the next meeting of legislature, legislation granting the power to the SGA treasurer to invest SGA monies as far as possible in high interest rate bank certificates; and require that starting immediately, the assistant treasurer, business manager, or organization head of every organization must meet with the SGA treasurer at least every month in order to review their budgets. Our expenditures must be carefully observed in the coming year if we, and we must, stay within our budget.

I do not intent to: cause undue alarm, accuse any member (s) of the administration of purposely slighting SGA, or personaliy attack any member of the SGA or the administration. But every member of the administration and student body must become more aware and concerned about the costs of desperately needed expansions, and rather large expansions in some cases, and the cost of improvements in all organizations before it is too late. Time is running out. We need to start some ground work for the 71-72 year now.

To the Editor:

The recent (germinal) student activism and the subsequent dialogue (?) seemed to crystallize a number of fundamental issues. One of them had to do with the necessity of law (given even the difficulty of defining "law") for social cohesion. Of course, there is the ever-present danger that law may become (as seems to be happening today in America) an instrument wieided by the powerful to ward off the threatening cries for justice and openness. And there is another even more terrifying danger, namely, that law, with its ostensible rectitude, may become exhaustively definitive for one's existence.

The fact of the matter is that history produces men who exist outside law that substantive value inheres in their emergence. These anticipations of man's final destiny may or may not have penetrated the closely - guarded secret of conventional morality and law, but they have realized that the only reality which makes life worthwhile is that bitter pain suspended precariously between authenticity and insanity. The achievement of history, he is the only brightness in an otherwise monotonous cycle of little men and little events; he is God! That he is God, only he knows, for his passion and innocence are his alone. Because he is God, he leads the way to the new horizon of a nevercomplete present; and he lends the way because he negates everything absolutely everything.

And it is likewise a fact that this vision of life is fundamental to the Christian faith. This contitutes a humorous bit of irony. For the free man is either killed or ostracized in the name of religion and, tragically, Christianity. The colossal distortion of our time has left its base, its ecstasy.

I say these things in order to attempt to place the recent discussion in perspective. For it would be a great tradegy indeed were one, under the insidious pressure of the onmipotent authorities, to relinquish this possibility of freedom granted to us. Oh, the authoritatian, he is respected and powerful, but his only desert is an understanding smile from one who knows. . . !

Myths Match--Maybe

By Paul Gabriel

My thesis is this, that man formuiates his plans from dreams and aspirations and that these hopes are founded in a larger embodiment of mythical proportions.

I confronted friend Morpheus with the question of myth and he began to explain the coming of his namesake.

"Morpheus," my furry friend giggled over the irony of his name in view of his present position as guardian of the lamp of learning, "was the god of dreams."

"Some of the best human minds ever have been full of dreams. Take for example a human an uncle of mine had for a friend. Crazy as a loon that kept dreaming about kites and electric toasters. Now that is what I call a real frump."

What's a frump?

"That's someone that is lost in himself, sulky, who dreams up something he may never see happen; that's plain foolishness and besides that, is impractical. If he had worried more about building a better jailhouse he would have done us a lot more good; think of all the underprivileged mice that would be provided for."

But the myth of lightening being more than anyone thought it could be helped Ben, even when other folks just told him to go fly a kite.

Then every time we are told to go fly a kite we look for something bigger than ourselves, a myth to indulge our frustrations and hopes.

If the myth is big enough we can wake up in the midst of a great discovery, but a jailhouse no matter how large has only four walls and leaves little room for discovery.

"That is what I like about you humans, always dreaming. Pretty soon your myths will be mismatched with practicality and there won't be even a munitions plant for a decent mouse to live in. The only place left to go will be as church mice, plenty of dreams there."

But what about this place and all the others like it?

"Well, it seems to me that there is some hope here, you know the old axiom? You are young, going through a phase, you have to learn to be realistic."

That's what I call reality training. They won't allow for a jailhouse gap, bigger and better every day."

But they also are working on bigger and better mousetraps.

"Oops."

Midnight Ramblings

Just A Rollin' On

By DAVID STEVES

While wending my weary way home from work I found myself behind a little old withered-up lady whose actions seemed to me to be an apt analogy to those of many of the silent people of this country. She came up to a green light on North Main Street, stopped and looked all four ways, signaled for a right turn, and went straight.

DAVID STEVES

She obviously couldn't make up her mind which way to turn and had to stop and look in all possible directions. She signaled right but wound up going on in her original direction. It looked an awful lot like typical American political thinking to me.

Speaking of political thinking, rumour hath it that George Orwell is taking a survey of the conversation quotient here. Students who live on the upper floors of some of the dorms had better put brain in gear before putting mouth in motion. . .they may be wired for sound without realizing it.

This is all part of a mere syndrome, though. When student paranoids talk about the big campus bust, they don't mean that blond sophomore.

I was also amazed to hear in campus gossip that blacks aren't allowed on campus; there's no prohibition on unannounced Methodist ministers peddling tracts early Sunday mornings, why shou "trespass" at some little old harmless Black Panthers?.

HPC's all-powerful TASK FORCE seems to have come through with some action. They tell me that the living rooms o the Co-Ed Dorm will be open for "intervisitation" maybe beginning like tomorrow or in two weeks o next fall or sometime. Everybod says something different. Thi "intervisitation" is not to be confused with dating in bedrooms; it's really dating in living rooms, an will probably prevent the HPC abortion rate from going any higher.

Things everyone should do thi week: patronize the newly-completed temporary snack bar, go se M.A.S.H., go to a couple of classes, sleep a lot, and stay out o trouble--do everything slowly.

Open Letter To All Students:

We, the members of the Executive Committee, are deeply concerned with the situation that exists in the men's dormitories. A degree of high spiritedness is normal for any dormitory. The shouting of obscenities, obscene behavior, damage to property, and unruly drunkedness can NOT be tolerated!

We have contacted the Dean of Students, expressing our concern over this matter. However, the responsibility for maintaining order in the men's dormitories should rest primarily with the dormitory councils. The men of McCulloch were the leaders in recent student movements asking for more student responsibility and separate dormitory councils. McCulloch and all dormitories must immediately find a way to meet the responsibilities given them. Until new regulations can be completed the dormitory councils are responsible for enforcing the rules that are now in existence.

The opening of the NCSB on Monday night

Snack Bar Welcomed

The arrival of the long awaited refrigerator from the Dependable Refrigeration Company made the grand opening of High Point College's newly completed temporary snack bar a gala affair.

The "better-than-bookstore's" hours are 8 pm through 11 pm Sunday through Thursday nights.

Due to the benevolence of Mr. Earle G. Dalbey, vice president of HPC, in donating several tables and chairs to the Tower Players for their spring production, the newly . . .completed. . .(NCSB for short) has a lack of furniture.

This situation should be remedied sometime within two weeks. . .(sound familiar?)

One disadvantage to the students is the higher prices of some of the refreshments, which can be attributed in part to the relaxing and cozy atmosphere of the NCSB.

It is hoped that with an increase in staff, the NCSB will be opened on weekends to serve those of us who don't have a suitcase.

Budget Takes Form

The SGA budget for the 1970-71 school year to be presented to Legislature for approval in the next two weeks will be for Expenditures: SCA, $1225; Zenith, $9600; The Hi Po, $4000; Apogee, $600; Student Union, $15,136; Senior Class Gift,$600; Junior-Senior Prom, $1200.

Total expenditures to organizations will be $32,361.

Legislature funds will be: Audit Fee, $525; Bookkeeping,$300; Supplies, $445; Annual pages, $120; SPAC, $300; SUSGA, $70; Convention fund $500; Orientation, $800; Class fund, $500; General fund, $830.

Total Legislative expenditures will be $4390.

Total expenditures will be $36,751.

It should be noted here that Mr. Earle G. Dalbey has agreed to match SGA funds to the Apogee, meaning a total of $1200 for the Apogee.

Income for the year will be: Refrigerators, $2400; Interest, $600; Student Activity Fee, $30,000.

Dalbey felt that $5000 could be taken from the operating budget of the college to balance the SGA budget. As the proposed budget now stands only $3751 will be needed from the college. Donald LaMar, Treasurer of SGA stated that this proposed budget has been approved by the college with the amount of $3751 coming from the college. Mr. LaMar also stated that "we may want to ask that the full amount of $5000 be available to SGA should the money be needed."

"In any event," he stated, "we must constantly be evaluating our financial situation and be prepared to do some shifting of funds in the event we encounter some major expense needed to sustain one of our organizations."

Majors Visit Scouts

Thirteen High Point College students were away from campus this past weekend in order to become involved in "on the spot" study of Boy Scout and YMCA work.

They are all majors in the American Humanics Foundation, a field where young men and women prepare for a career working with youth and service organizations.

Nine of the students, along with Mr. L. E. Moody, resident administrator of the program at HPC, spent their time at the training center for Scout executives in Mendham, N. J., and toured the Schiff Scout Reservation.

They also visited the national office of the Boy Scouts and had an interview with the chief Scout executive, Alden Barber.

Making the New Jersey trip were Bobby Bagwell, Greenville, S. C.; Dick Cornelison, High Point; Joe Ellington, Burlington; Jerry Garmon, Matthews; Charles Huffman, Thomasville; Daren Hutchison Asheville; Ron Schoeffler, Amsterdam, N. Y.; Tom Trotter, Columbus, Ga.; and John Young, Kinston.

In Atlanta, four other students attended the Southeast regional first annual meeting of the YMCA. They were Nido Quebein, High Point; Richard Capek, Bethesda, Md.; Calvin Crutchfield, Durham; and Ken Lyon, Lexington.

Union Members Attend Convention

Three students represented High Point College at a convention of college student unions throughout the United States in Houston, Tex. over Easter vacation.

Cathy Curry, Pete Uchno, and Tom Kincaid were sent by the Student Union, to attend a convention of the Association of College Unions-International.

The Association was founded in 1914, it provides opportunity for college unions to join in studying and improving their services, programs, and assists in the development of new college unions.

The convention was divided into program sessions, each session having a lecturer.

Kincaid was most impressed by a lecture given at the opening banquet entitled, "Society, the Seventies, and Higher Education."

The speech was concerned with today's education and what the speaker considered to be wrong with it.

"The most important thing I think he said, was that the students want to make something for themselves, and they have to be allowed to participate fully in planning campus activities," said Kincaid.

Another lecture was "Silent Majority, Continuing Dialogue," about campus disruptions and the Student Union's role in them.

"An interesting point that was made was that the Student Union can't take sides between two groups on campus. But the SU will be accused of favoring one side, anyway," stated Mr. Kincaid.

Cathy Curry attended "Creativity and the College Student," which suggested ways that concepts of creativity could be applied to college unions.

The three representatives learned that there are two types of Student Unions. One works for the students, and the other type works for a profit.

Kincaid stated that "HPC Student Union is committed to the students, and it should therefore be given the liberty to work for the students. We have to have a Student Union Director, or we will fall apart. Each year we don't have a director, we will fall apart a little more."

Uchno felt that HPC definitely has to have a Student Union building, because "as of now, we have nowhere to function."

Kincaid suggested that the first step to obtaining a SU building is to "let the administration know how badly one is needed, by comparing what we have to other colleges. Compare our policies to other colleges, compare our lack of student activity to student activity on other campuses that have Student Union buildings. Then they will realize how much we need a building."

Alpha Gamma Delta

The new officers for Alpha Gamma Delta were recently elected. They will be: Bonnie Schrader, President; Nancy Patterson, First Vice President; Marta Dockery, Second Vice President; Debbie Chappel, Recording Secretary; Nim Stear, Corresponding Secretary; Carolyn Humphries, Treasurer; Jeanne McCauley, Activities Chairman; Jane McElvany, Altruistic Chairman; Patti Rusk, Chaplain; Jane Libby, Guard; Wendy Neff, Editor; Pam Bosworth, Membership Chairman, Sandi Schroder, Panhellenic Delegate; Pam Elliott, Panhellenic Officer; Corkie McCorkle, Rush Chairman; Wendy Duda, Assistant Rush Chairman; Pat Morley, Scribe; Debbie Logan, Social Chairman. The new officers were installed on Tuesday, March 17.

Several of the Alpha Gams have been recently honored by the fraternities. Pattie Rusk was selected as the Delta Sigma Phi Sweetheart. Wendy Neff and Debbie Logan were on Lambda Chi Alpha's Crest Girl Court. Wendy Duda, last year's Sailor's Ball Queen, was serenaded by Delta Sigma Phi.

Wendy Neff and Bonnie Schrader were asked to join Kappa Delta Pi, an honorary fraternity in education.

Zeta Tau Alpha

Delta Gamma Chapter of Zeta Tau Alpha recently initiated freshmen Pat Evans, Lauriel Topatnikov, Bev Mechell, and Mary Patterson. Zeta President Alexis Henkle was initiated into Kappa Delta Pi, the National Educational Honor Society.

The chapter is making plans for the formal, which is to be held April 25th, at the King's Inn in Greensboro. Thanks to Delta Sigma Pi brother Larry Johnson, music will be supplied by the Blue Eyed Soul.

A candle-light was held this week for Cheri Palermo, who became engaged to Cadet Bob Gonor of the U. S. Coast Guard Academy.

Recently installed as Panhellenic secretary was Zeta representative Lauriel Tapatnikov.

Delta Sigma Phi

The Delta Zeta Chapter of the Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity has recently elected the following officers for 1970-71: Michael G. Carle, President; Michael P. Smith, Vice President; Michael L. Robbins, Secretary; Gilbert E. Hyatt III, Treasurer; Thomas I. Barrows, Sergeant at Arms.

Phi Mu

Phi Mu's have had a number of candle-lights so far this semester. Linda Shipe became pinned to Phil Eslinger of the U. S. Naval Academy. Debbie Landrum was pinned to Ron Slingerman, a member of Pi Kappa Alpha here at HPC. Sally Hill was pinned to Ralph MacMillan, a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon at Woffard College in S.C. Marty Brooks became engaged to David Reid, a graduate of HPC. Roommates Pat Lissenden and Lynne Williams surprised eveyone with their double candle-light. Pat became engaged to Charles Blackford of N. J. and Lynne was pinned to Bill Brooks, a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon at Randolph Macon College in Va. Nancy Easterling was recently pinned to a graduate of UNC-CH and a member of Chi Phi.

New officers for 1970-71 include Kathy Denver, president; Besty Snead, vice - president; Ginny Scoggins, recording secretary; Carol Myrick, corresponding secretary; Susan Allred, treasurer; Suzy Arnold, pledge director; and Barbara Earle, rush chairman.

Mary Anderson, Janet Brugger, Peggy Couch, Janet Hampton, Charlene Hedrick, Vicki Lenza, Leslie Leonard, Carol Myrick, Bobbie Peterson, Susan Potter, Barbara Savage, Judy Schneider, Linda Shipe, Blaine Smith, Rose Ellen Wall, Phyllis Weyraugh, and Annetter Woodhams took the annual ride on the Phi Mu goat March 5 and emerged as new sisters in the sorority.

Phi Mu and Delta Sigma Phi honored two Phi Mu's and their chosen ones; Collen Ripley and Tom Barrows, and Mary Anderson and Larry Johnson with a serenade March 12.

In spite of the authoritarian the new world will come, or, as Elrridge Cleaver has put it, the earth will be "leveled in the attempts to gain it." No, the new will come through the man who ruthlessly questions, who restlessly moves out from the dizzy heights to which his pain has soared him. God is loose in the world; and his divinity consists in the fact that he has destroyed all Gods.

STUDENT CENTER REVISED

WEST ELEVATION

SOUTH ELEVATION

At a recent Board meeting, the Trustees of High Point College came to the decision to give the new Student Center Building top priority on the list of needs for HPC students.

The proposal now being considered is only "second preliminary plans," says Mr. Earle G. Dalbey, vice president of HPC, "They are still subject to changes."

The present Student Center will be renovated and additions made to it, extending it back to the tennis courts.

The first floor will include the post office, a project room, a cafeteria, special dining rooms, and storage space.

The second floor plans include a bookstore, snack bar, lounges, lobbies, a music room, the chaplain's office and several meeting rooms.

The top floor consists of a large lounge, a television lounge, a billiard room, a ping-pong room, a card room, and several office spaces to house publications, student organizations, and perhaps some office personnel.

The actual construction costs amount to $1,001,700; the architectural and engineering services are $90,700; the legal and administrative expenses are $2,000; the interest collected during construction $60,000; the government field expense is $600; the project contingency (2%) is $23,100. The total project cost is $1,178,100.

The development schedule allows for nine months to complete the final plans (by January 1, 1971); the review of final plans, one month (February 1, 1971); the bid awarded and notice to proceed, two months (March 1, 1971); completed construction allows for 18 months (August 1, 1972); and occupancy, one month (September 1, 1972).

Dalbey explained that "these figures are broad estimates. I don't believe it's costing us more than we had planned on."

"Most of the money will probably be coming from a federal government loan," explained Dalby.

Covered with ashes and soot

To look at it you'd never believe it, but for a city with a population of over 50,000, High Point has the cleanest air in the United States.

Can you imagine what the rest of the country must look like? There are people in this world who have never been to New York or Los Angeles, but it is doubtful if they could find it in the early morning, even on a clear day.

This past Wednesday was Earth Day around our polluted country. Many people neither though about it nor even knew about it.

Hopefully, to the people who did listen and participate in the siminar on environmental problem here on our campus, the message sank in.

This problem is not someone else's. It is yours and mine, right here in River City.

One thing to think about is our own contribution to dirty air--the furnace smokestack.

Ever notice the black soot on your car that is about impossible to get off short of using a wire brush? It tends to get imbedded in the paint and look quite ugly on a shiny new car.

It also covers daffodils, grass, and trees, turning a beautiful green spring into an ugly black mess.

This can be corrected by a filtration system built into the process. Of course the powers that be will say that this is going to cost money. Of course it will, but not as much as its going to cost to repaint cars, replant flowers and other shrubs around campus.

We seem never to be concerned with any problems unless it is brought home to us in a basket. That basket is out behind the maintainance department and it is up to our campus community to do something about it. NOW!

Dear Editor:

In behalf of the student body I would like to extend thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Webb, and Mrs. Phyllis Osborne for their cooperation in the opening of the snack bar.

Without them, the opening of the snack bar would have been much more trying.

I would also like to thank the student body. The students response has been above average. I hope students will continue to make the best use of "their" NCSB.

My Sincere thanks,
Marty Froystad

Dear Friends:

We appreciate this opportunity to give you our "Furniture City Hospitality Association's" policy concerning High Point College--good will and service to you. We consider High Point College Administration as business people; faculty and students as we would any other associates of a local business. Therefore, please consider the fact that you can substitute High Point College for local business throughout this letter. You might also substitute faculty and students for local people.

Our properties were built primarily to cater to the traveling public for room business. Our restaurants cater to both local and out of town guests. We want to serve and promote local business for our restaurants.

The sleeping rooms are for people that do not have local addresses. Should local people or businesses have out of town associates visiting in High Point, we encourage the out of town visitors' business. We encourage the local people to dine in our restaurants with their associates.

We know that local people have residences here in High Point. Therefore, in most circumstances we do not want local sleeping room business.

Again thank you for giving us an opportunity to explain our policy concerning local business.

Cordially,
Ernest J. O'Banion

"GOT THAT? 'ESPIRIT DE CORPS.' "

Midnight Ramblings

Not Biased: Opinionated

By DAVID STEVES

In a letter to the editor of the Winston - Salem Journal this week, a Mr. Charles R. Davis of Mt. Airy said that he was ". . . a Southerner (and proud of it) who has grown tired of the South being depicted and treated as a defeated, illiterate, inferior and racially prejudiced confederacy unfit to be considered a part of the United States." There are, in this writer's humble opinion, a number of facts that Mr. Davis and the host of people who share his views should consider before they voice any unjustified complaints.

DAVID STEVES

Defeated? Most southerners I have been fortunate enough to meet are ready to re-fight the entire Civil War after two beers, and they can justify slavery after a shot of bourbon. Not just the great unwashed mass of white southerners, either; there are a great many college students, professional men, and ministers who shout "Dixie" whenever they see the Stars and Bars.

Illiterate? I should say so. If you rank the fifty states in order based on how much of each state's money is spent on education, seven out of the last ten are southern states. Look it up if you don't believe it--and North Carolina is one of those seven, too.

Inferior? I'm not sure how sectionalist Mr. Davis decided that the South wasn't. Some southern states are as much as fifty per cent below the national average of money spent on housing, roads, and internal improvements; all of them are below it at least ten percent.

Last of the accusations that Mr. Davis and his fellow-thinkers maintain is that the South is not racially prejudiced. Here I am afraid I have to agree. Anyone who considers the South to be merely racially prejudiced is missing a lot. Southerners dislike and dispise not only "nigras," but also Yankees and other foreigners, catholics, jews and everyone else who doesn't look and sound like they do. Again, not just the mob: There are librarians and PhD's on the campus of High Point College who not only believe that "nigras" are divinely-destined to be inferior, but that the length of a coed's skirts or a boy's hair should be governed by the law.

You see, southerners are adamant about their right to individuality; they wailed loud and long about the "tyrannical" banning of prayer in public schools by the US Supreme Court. They want to be left alone by the American majority and to remain free to oppress their own minorities any way they damn well please.

There are a number of rays of hope, though. Some of them show up here at HPC. Remember what every freshmen class says? "I can't believe how friendly everyone is!" As long as this traditional southern courtesy and friendliness remains, there's hope.

Matter of fact there are a great many of clear - thinking, intelligent southerners who are striving to change their world. They obviously are going to have a rough go of it against Mr. Davis and his cohorts, but I wish them all the luck in world.

The Mark Of A Subtle Man

By PAUL GABRIEL

For eons man has on the whole overlooked the value of nothing.

An old ecclesiastical entreaty informs us that there is nothing new under the sun and that what is best is to turn with seasons' changes.

The Village Fugs extol nothing in a song in which nearly everything that is "something" is really nothing; like skyscrapers, politicians, the days of the week or at least what goes in them and rubber ducks.

Screwtape, an old experienced devil, counsels Wormwood that, "The Christians say that without God nothing is strong, and Nothing is very strong indeed."

Even Screwtape, however, does not have a monopoly on the ability to utilize nothing.

Modern filmmakers capitilize on nothing, with almost soundless soundtracks done by men like Antonioni. In his latest movie, Antonioni ends an orgy of nothing for a plot with a fantastic explosion of material goods. . . social comment (?).

Criticism of something can be very seductive. Nobody ever criticized Nothing and got enamoured by the exercise. There are a great number of people who for the purpose of social comment criticize what they consider nothing in others or what will amount to nought.

People are working so hard to be something that all too often they end up less than nothing, they end up not being themselves.

Biff Rose in a song says that the best thing is to have nothing to be, but that because of fear only a few hear.

Fear of what? NOTHING.

By one definition, nothing is the absense of something; thus giving rise to paranoia if that something is considered essential. "Those kids don't have any responsibility."

Marshall McLuhan has said that many things are useful for their lack of something . . . a doorway or a wheel, with the spokes making use of an empty space--framing it and tieing it together.

How can nothing be tied together? Well if we can get back to Biff Rose for a moment, he sums it up by saying that for those that do hear there is nothing to do, so "I love you."

It is the mark of a subtle man that can tie all the nothings around him together.

Responsibility and somethings are not much in the face of people who can "get it together," not for specifics but for that little no-thing called love.

Patton Gets New House

Mr. Pat Brown, one of the largest wholesale lumber dealers in the US has given High Point College 56 acres of development property on Deep River Road two miles off of the Greensboro-High Point Road.

Included in this gift is a ten room house situated on the property which will be occupied sometime next fall by President Patton and his family.

The Trustees Task Force has plans to convert Patton's present house into coed lounges for small group use.

Brown, a benefactor of the college, holds an honorary degree from High Point and was one of the initiators of the Ford Foundation.

Musical Is Success

By LOIS ROGERS

If you sat around the dorm last weekend and did nothing, you should have thought about the Tower Players' production for a night of entertainment.

THE SKIN GAME, by Walt Hudgins and Roy Pendergast is a play about a famous quarterback whom we all know.

The play opens with the announcement of a "blessed event" who, according to Mama (June Nunnery) is going to be a girl. Her little "girl" turns out to be a football star "flunky" all the way through school, but due to his athletic ability, he is accepted at Cathedral Hill University in North Carolina, where he is met by a group of friendly guys and horny girls. The opening song, "Shake This Li'l Ole Carolina Hand," is a fast-moving welcoming song to both Joe and the audience.

As [illegible] college life grows, he becomes attached to Sueann, a disinterested coed (the only girl on the entire campus who lets him know exactly what she thinks of him); however, Joe is persevering and Sueann finally gives in. Sueann is played by Teresa Rimer.

Joe goes through his four years of college football, shown in the "Four Year's March," then he signs a half-million dollar contract with the New York Set and goes professional. While in New York, Joe and Hoot (John Daskavich) who is Joe's business manager, opens a night club called the "Celebete." However, some of Joe's friends who are at the club are members of a well known syndicate of crime. The friends are Big Maff and Little Maf (Pat Austin and Chris McKinney) and their girlfriend, Foxy Glove, (Mary Burnley).

The football commissioner tells Joe that he will have to close the Celebete because his friends are giving a bad name to professional football. Joe decides that his friends are worth more than professional football so he threatens to quit the team. The play ends on a rather philosophical note with the entire cast singing, "Life's Not An Empty Stadium."

As for the acting, Jon Werner

Wreckers condemned

Saturday night, the Alpha Phi Omega lounge was torn apart and demolished. It is as yet unknown who the culprits are, but the APO's have their suspicions.

All of the furniture was overturned, plaques were torn off the wall, beer cans were strewn about, the Alpha Phi Omega banner was ripped off the wall, a large black trash can which belonged outside had been shoved through the window, its contents covering the floor.

This is the second time the lounge has been wrecked; the first was sometime last fall.

If something like this had happened in Millis Dormitory, one may be certain that some kind of action, judicial or otherwise, would have been taken.

It seems that lately, McCulloch has turned into a free-for-all almost every Saturday night. The destruction of the APO lounge is not the only example of unrestraint. Chairs have been shoved through ceilings, toilet paper has bedecked the exterior of McCulloch, only to blow onto the lawn of the cafeteria, and there are countless numbers of water, shaving cream, and toothpaste fights.

It has often been said that if the men of McCulloch had a decent dorm, they would not treat it in such a manner. Do the men of McCulloch expect the Board of Trustees to give them a new dorm after receive reports of what is currently happening in the living quarters? How is the Board to recognize this type of absurd logic?

Until this type of juvenile action halts, the residents of McCulloch will continue to be residents of McCulloch. The solution for acquiring a new dorm, is not to beat the old one to death, but to show the Trustees that, as adults, the men are responsible enough to accept the obligations that would come with new housing.

As a start, the McCulloch Dormitory Council might take some action. There are presently rules and regulations which are supposed to cover these delinquent actions. Apparently, they are not enforced to the fullest. And why not?

During the few weeks of student interest a few months ago, McCulloch acquired it's own Dorm Council. The supporters of this action, claimed that their own council would be able to better judge the actions and misdeeds occurring in McCulloch. Well, men of McCulloch, let's see some action (and that is not intended to mean more vandalism).

"Here, eat this.
I sure can't."

Editor's Mail

Dear Editor;

The men of Theta-Chi, Epsilon Alpha chapter of High Point College, recognized the need for action. That action was dedicated toward "Earth Day" on April 22, on the HPC campus.

"Earth Day" was originated in order that the people of the United States would be made aware of the need for the preservation of nature in our world. The preservation of beauty, serenity, and a clean and healthy environment in which to live. The word "ecology" was not recognized by today's society until recent years. However, it has taken its place today as a leading factor in the unification of people. We are finally learning to recognize the wasteful destruction of our land, seas, rivers, and skies.

Today's youth can not take claim for bringing this evil before the eyes of the public but they are taking great strides toward the disclosure of such problems. It is in this light that we, men of Theta Chi, played an active part in being a proud member of this movement.

The idea of an "Earth Day" is an excellent start. However, we can not merely consolidate our efforts in one day. What we must advocate on Earth, is life, not merely a day.

You may ask, "But what can I do as an individual?" It is up to you as the individual to spearhead this drive into a unified effort. Allow your conscious to speak loudly and with foresight. Support the world in which you live and love.

Peace,
Theta-Chi Fraternity

Dear Editor;

In response to Mr. Steves' article, we have a few "humble opinions" of our own we would like to express.

First, how can an educated individual assume that because seven out of the ten states spending the least on education are in the South, that the South is illiterate? Does this empirically prove a cause-effect relationship or has our researcher and colleague taken into account concommitant variables (such as grade of teacher, proportionate amount of money required to educate an individual, etc.)

In reference to his charge of the South being inferior, we would like to question his criteria. Is a highly industrialized urban area superior because it has "progressed" to the point that it is contaminated to the brink of disaster? Are high crime rates, greater preponderance of drug abuse, loss of serenity in the monotonous bleakness of fast-paced cities, indices of superiority? Where does quality of living fit in the value scale?

In our unhurried pace perhaps we find the time to enjoy life, seeking friendship, solitude, and quiet reflection. We place a greater premium on these values, for as areas imprison themselves with concrete buildings, massive highway systems, and other man-made constructions, we still have room to breathe.

We do not feel it necessary to elaborate on prejudice for un-

Midnight Ramblings

History repeats itself

By DAVID STEVES

Exactly 200 years, two months, and three days ago, on March 5, 1770, in the city of Boston, there occurred an event known as the Boston Massacre. Five Bostonians were killed in a confrontation between colonials and British troops that has since been labeled by historians as "the lighting of the fuse of the powderkeg of revolution."

The incident took place in this wise: a sentry being harrassed by some locals called for help and was reinforced by a detachment commanded by Captain Thomas Preston. The hated lobsterbacks faced the growing crowd with leveled muskets and fixed bayonets, braced by the Captain's "Steady men," the crowd shouted obscenities and began throwing--of all things--snowballs.

As tempers grew hotter and shorter and the mob pressed close, the young Britishers grew nervous. One shot rang out, followed by a ragged volley. When the smoke cleared, the good Captain stood revealed in front of his men, shouting, "For God's sake, cease fire!" Twelve figures lay in the snow; five were either dead or to die shortly, and seven more were wounded. It is not known how many of the mob were struck by bullets but were able to flee with the uninjured.

Now, let us shift the scene two centuries forward and some 400 miles westward, to Kent State in Ohio. There was a confrontation between radical student protesters and the ever present "Weekend Warriors" --jocularly termed thus, they operate under the official designation of The National Guard.

The students shouted obscenities and threw rocks. (Admittedly harder than snowballs, but still. . .). A single shot rang out, followed by a ragged burst that died out after repeated commands to cease fire. When the smoke cleared, twelve figures lay in the soft spring grass at Kent State College; four were dead and eight were wounded. History had repeated itself.

In 1770, both Captain Preston and six of his men were arrested and charged with murder. Two of the enlisted men were convicted of manslaughter and the others were all acquited. It will be interesting to note what follows the killings at Kent State. Total exoneration of all the guardsmen, I would think.

And why not? They are not trained riot troops like the 101st or the 82nd Airborne Brigades, just a motley bunch of summer campers and weekend drillers. Their officers are just like them, too. Don't blame the poor little guardsmen; blame the idiot who gave them real live bullets!

And after you blame the guardsmen, their officers, the governor of Ohio, and the students themselves (I have heard it said that they got only what they deserved), you must put much blame on the head of Richard Milhous Nixon, the President of the United States of America by the grace of God and the short-sightedness of the American people.

Small words mean big things

By PAUL GABRIEL

Perhaps someday someone will find an old man wandering this world with nightcap and candle looking for a light or a publisher for his Hearty Advice to Bicycling Enthusiasts.

The manual will be one designed to encourage cyclists to listen to the power hum in electric lines on telephone poles, and notice carnivals in the woods.

Nobody enjoys saying goodbye; what is the quality of a leaving that causes retrospect?

Environmental scientists proclaim that man is not meant to move through his environment at more than five miles an hour.

As a man speeds up in his environment he suffers a gradual erosion of perception, all five senses lose clarity and the rush of sensations transmitted to the brain merge.

It is with difficulty that one sees through muddy water, and even greater difficulty in seeing through a "sensory overload."

More and more often youths are encouraged to hurry through, post the standard and complete the race--ah, relief.... adulthood.

And in this process, if they slow down a moment to look around, make comment; "If you can't love this race you are in, leave it."

What a sad squirrel's cage we are on!

Eddy Arnold says of pollution and our duty to the earth, that we must embrace the earth and the waters and the sky and love them.

Can a person be a conscientious objector to the rush of it all; refuse his induction into the consumer army and still love his country?

May he disobey his commandment to love his neighbor as himself and kill or pre-judge someone else because they don't vibrate at his same speed?

NO.

Simple enough, no.

Small words can mean so much more when they have a purpose.

Yes.

Try saying yes to life and brotherhood and a clean earth and you are saying YES to yourself.

And with that yes comes freedom.

Slow down a moment and let your senses catch up with you, let anger and frustration be someone else's speeding bumper sticker.

Yes, small words said slow with purpose mean the world, thank God; like the small word --bye.

HPC "Freshmen" Graduate

Dr. E. Roy Epperson, who came to High Point College just four years ago as professor of chemistry and head of the Department of Physical Science, will see his "freshmen" graduate this month after completing their work which included special research projects.

One of the particularly rewarding "benefits" derived from their long hours of study will be opportunities awaiting his graduates once they have the sheepskin under their arms and head out into the "cold" world.

Six "for instances:"

Anita Vaye Hill of High Point, will complete her term at HPC graduating with a double major--chemistry and mathematics. A departmental Honors Student, Miss Vaye plans to attend the University of New Mexico on a National Science Foundation traineeship. Other offers of advanced study came from the University of Kansas, Kansas State University, and Duke University and Pennsylvania State University.

Bowman Gray Bowman of High Point, is a chemistry major who plans to attend North Carolina State University at Raleigh. He also received an offer of a fellowship or assistantship from the University of Arizona.

Gerald Robbins of Milford, Del. also majored in chemistry and has received offers to continue graduate study at the University of New Mexico, the University of Utah and N.C. State University. He has not yet decided as to what he might do following commencement.

Dale Ensor, Westminister, Md., chemistry major, plans to attend the University of North Carolina at Greensboro on a teaching assistantship.

Roger Wittenberg, Annandale, N.J, another chemistry major, plans to work here in local industry.

Arthur Spaugh of High Point, is another chemistry major who has made plans to work in industry.

Hi-Po Names Co-Editors

For the first time in its 43-year history, the Hi-Po's editorial chair will be shared by two people: sophomore coed Marcia Little and senior David Steves.

Confirmed as Hi-Po business manager by the HPC publication board at the same time was sophomore Ken Schaus.

Miss Little is an English major from Arlington, Va., who plans extensive recruiting among the fall's freshmen to fill The Hi-Po's graduation-depleted ranks. "More staff members means wider and more comprehensive campus coverage," she explains.

Steves, a day student history major, places his emphasis on training. "We are going to have a dearth of collegiate journalism experience this fall that could really hurt," he stated, "and its going to take lots of work on the part of our few returnees to overcome the handicap."

A mathematics major from Garden City, N.Y., business manager Schaus hopes to keep the newspaper more financially self-supporting than in previous years.

Sensitivity Trainees Draw From Experience

Laboratory training does not necessarily mean biology or chemistry anymore; HPC's newest laboratory situation is called sensitivity training.

Sensitivity training is defined by its practicers as "an attempt to create within the members of a small group a sensitivity to their feelings and to make them aware of similiar feelings in the other people around them."

It is also an attempt to make the participants aware of their humanity and to discover what it means to be human in the Christian sense of the word.

The basic goal of sensitivity training is to help the people in the group share their insight and feelings with the people they encounter in everyday living.

One sensitivity group has been conducted under the guidance and direction of Reverend Rolland W. Mullinix at HPC this semester.

Acting as group leader, Mullinix, set up experiences or situations in interpersonal relations. The group responded physically or verbally to these situations; then they discussed their reactions, and the reasons for their particular reactions.

The group does not follow a text; rather the basic format comes from past experiences in groups such as ours at HPC, leadership manuals, and laboratory training situations.

The sensitivity training group has been considered a success by Mullinix and several of the group's members.

Sam Lemonds said, "I have benefitted by becoming aware of the other people around me in everyday life."

If there is enough student interest next year, additional groups will be formed for the fall semester.

Any students who are interested in becoming involved in themselves and others should contact Mullinix in the Chaplain's office in Roberts Hall.

First semester of this year the enrollment was 111 and dropped to 90 by second semester. With this increasing drop it was decided that the night school program be halted.

Mr. Holt stated one of the biggest reasons student enrollment has decreased is money.

At HPC it costs $25 a semester hour for night school, while at Davidson Community College, a state supported school, it costs only $7 a semester hour.

Another big reason accounting for the decrease in students is the changes in the draft law. In 1965 a student enrolled in 12 hours of night school, passing or fail-

Legislature met Tuesday evening, May 5, mainly to review the bills last passed.

John Young, president of the SGA, read the letters he had received from Pres. Patton concerning the bills.

The bills included immediate action be take to put a filter on the smokestack that the campus police review the rules and regulations of HPC, and an attempt be made to halt vandalism; and that unless the bookstore policies are changed, a boycott be encouraged by the SGA.

Also, that the Admissions Committee adopt said guidelines in recruiting, accepting, and providing financial aid to all students no matter their race, creed, or color; that the application for admissions state specifically that "all qualified applicants will receive consideration without regard to race, religion, color, national origin, political affiliation, or any other non-merit factor; and that all student workers on campus be paid every two weeks; and that the SGA request a full explanation of the Board of Trustees' actions concerning open visitation.

Patton stated that he has already begun to work on a filter for the smokestack, by hiring an engineer.

That there is room for improvement concerning the issue of the campus police was implied by Patton.

Patton has referred the bills concerned with admissions to the Admissions Committee.

Patton said that if every student worker, irregardless of how many hours worked, were to be paid every two weeks, there would be too much clerical work to do.

Patton will present the bill concerned with an explanation from the trustees about visitation at the next Board meeting.

Next week is the last meeting of Legislature for this year. The revised Judiciary Constitution and Penal Code will be presented.

Art Majors Rate Exhibit

Two High Point College senior art majors have combined their talents and are currently displaying an exhibit in the foyer of Memorial Auditorium.

Carolyn D. Nevitt of Port Washington, Long Island, N.Y., and Karen Czarny of Westfield, N. J., both plan to teach art following graduation.

Miss Nevitt explains her conception of art as, "Art is a creative endeavor that utilizes the artist's originality and imagination."

"I majored in art at HPC to learn the basic elements of design and appreciate the works of others. It is a fascinating field that demands understanding and awareness. I am interested in the use of color and line as a means of expression," stated Miss Nevitt.

Miss Nevitt says she enjoys, "painting abstractly and realistically, depending on the mood I wish to depict. Many artists form a unique style and work strictly within that medium. I feel that the subject is the major concern and I utilize the technique or medium which best expresses the purpose."

Miss Czarny's philosophy of her personal art is that art is "the expression of one's self. It is one person's interpretation of life, one person's reaction to it. Therefore, it is through my art that I express my life.

"And since life is varied and many phased, so is my art similarly varied and equally subject to phases. Consequently, in spite of the abstract quality which permeates my work, to the creator it is realistic and representative of the world in which we live."

Coed Cops Zenith Editorship

The editor and business managers for next year's Zenith have been selected.

Beth Holcomb, uprising senior, will be the editor of the Zenith for 1970-71.

Miss Holcomb is from Virginia Beach, Va., and is majoring in psychology.

"Next year there will be more emphasis on the campus, and individual pictures will be played down," said Miss Holcomb.

The theme for the Zenith will emphasize student roles on campus and copy.

Miss Holcomb stated, "We really need underclassmen, especially rising sophomores to work on the staff. Our major photographer is leaving, and we need some photographers."

The new business manager of the Zenith is Oliver Stinchcomg, a Delta Sig business major from Maryland. He is a newcomer to the Zenith staff as business manager.

Doctorate Degrees

Ministers Honored

High Point College will bestow honorary degrees on two North Carolina Methodist ministers during commencement exercises May 24 when the class of 1970 graduates.

To be honored with Doctor of Divinity degrees will be the Reverend Harley Morrison Williams, pastor of West Market Street United Methodist Church in Greensboro, and the Reverend Nicholas Warnum Grant of Raleigh, Director of the Program Council of the North Carolina Conference of The United Methodist Church.

Reverend Williams, who began his ministerial career in 1944 as an associate minister at the church which he now heads, is a graduate of High Point College having received his degree here in 1942. Following that, he received his Bachelor of Divinity degree from Duke Divinity School where he was elected president of the student body.

Among conference boards and committees he has served are the Board of Conference Claimants; vice chairman of the Board of Education; district chairman of the Board of Missions; Commission on World Service and Finance; and the Board of managers of Duke Pastor's School where he has served as secretary and treasurer.

Among civic and community services he has been a Rotarian since 1960; president of the Union County, Monroe City Thomasville Ministerial Associations.

He has served as chairman the Mayor's Better Citizens Committee in Monroe and Dean of the Union County dership Training School. He organizer and first chairman the Monroe City Community ter.

Beatty And Rogers Speak To Seniors

Seniors of High Point College were honored by the presentations of Dr. Max P. Rogers, chief surgeon with the Southern Railway System, at Senior Investiture Wednesday, May 6; and Jim Beatty, internationally known track star and representative to the N. C. General Assembly from Charlotte, at the annual Alumni-Senior Dinner, also on May 6.

It is the college's custom to invite an outstanding alumnus to present the main address at the annual investiture when parents and friends of seniors clothe them with gowns and mortars, symbolic traditions of graduation.

Dr. Rogers is a 1938 graduate of HPC where he received his AB degree before beginning study for his MD degree at Duke University.

He now makes his home in Washington, D. C. where he is now a member of the International Medical Society of Washington, the American College of Surgeons, the American Medical Association, the Southeastern Surgical Congress, and the Southern Medical Association.

The annual dinner was sponsored by the HPC Alumni Association in Harrison Hall. The dinner was in honor of the class of 1970 and the new officers for the Association were presented.

Beatty, vice president of Harmon Products in Castonia, is a graduate of UNC-CH where he received his degree in English in 1957. While there, he captained the track and cross-country teams and was president of his junior class.

In 1960, Beatty received many state and national awards for his track accomplishments as a member of the U. S. Olympic Team.

The same year he was named one of America's ten outstanding young men of the year by the U.S. Jaycees, he also broke seven American track records and two world records.

In 1963, Beatty was named charter member of the NC Sports Hall of Fame. In addition he works as a guest commentator for ABC-TV's "Wide World of Sports."

As a member of the Legislature of the NC House of Representatives, his main areas of interest are education, mental health, highways, and industrial development.

Beatty is also a member of the Legislative Commission which is studying the use of harmful and illegal drugs in North Carolina.

Authoress Patton Visits

Distinguished authoress Mrs. Frances Gray Patton, will be the guest of honor at a literary tea sponsored by the Dialogue Group of the YWCA May 14.

Later, at 4 pm, the authoress of "Good Morning, Miss Dove," will attend an informal meeting at the home of Dr. C. E. Mounts to meet the creative writers of High Point College.

Mrs. Patton is a teacher of creative writing at UNC-Charlotte and writer of the Chapel Hill article in "Holiday" magazine.

Literary genius seems to run in the family, as Mrs. Patton's husband (not HPC President) has been chairman of the English Department at Duke University since 1930.

If anyone, Frances Gray Patton can inspire the prospective novelists, poets, and journalists of HPC.

NCSB Well Received

Mr. Earle G. Dalbey reports the student response to the NCSB (see last issue) has been very good.

"We just about broke even, I think. We haven't figured up the books yet. We still have a few bugs to work out," said Dalbey.

If anyone is interested in working in the NCSB they should contact Marty Froystad in the co-ed dorm.

Apogee Gets

The Apogee has recently obtained a $250 grant from the North Carolina Arts Council.

The specific intent of the literarty grant is to "encourage creative writing by making payments to authors for their works and by sponsoring various types of competitions for original literary works and awarding cash prizes."

The grant money may not be used to purchase any equipment or be applied to any operating deficit of the Apogee.

The prize is to be used only for cash payments or prizes to writers for original manuscripts.

U. S. Census Taken

The purpose of the forms is to find out information about college students living away from home.

From the list of dormitory students, every fifth student was sent a long triangle form, and every twentieth student was sent a long circle form; the rest of the student body had short forms, which Mr. Young and Miss McCorkle filled out.

The forms were all due May 1; 75 students have not yet turned in their forms.

Journalists Admit

The Delta Beta Chapter of Alpha Phi Gamma national honorary journalism fraternity initiated five new members Monday evening.

To The Students

A Letter From The Editors

As co-editors for next year's Hi-Po, we would like to take this opportunity to make a few comments to "the good of the assembly."

As staff members for 1969-70, we would like to acknowledge the many hours of hard work Miss Jo Deininger has contributed to The Hi-Po. Since she has been editor-in chief, The Hi-Po has met all of its obligations.

We would like to thank Mr. Lane Kerr, the Hi-Po adviser; Mrs. Peggy Ingram, who has assisted the photography department immensely, and the various students who have worked on The Hi-Po throughout the year.

Do you think that because that is the last issue for 1969-70, The Hi-Po will lie dormant over the summer. Plans are already underway for next year's editions.

Any student interested in working for The Hi-Po next year, we ask you to be alert to announcements concerning meetings.

Next year, with an expanded staff, we hope to be able to expound coverage.

The Hi-Po would like to wish you a pleasant summer, and awaits to greet you next September.

Marcia Little and David Steves,
Co-editors for 1970-1971

ing, was draft exempt, which is no longer applicable due to changes in Selective Service.

The change in entrance requirements may also have had an effect on enrollment. The evening school entrance requirements were changed to the same as for a day student.

Mr. Holt had this to say about the closing of night school, "After careful consideration we feel that we could no longer operate with the very few students we had. But we are confident that the Summer and Day school programs fulfill the need, so night school really isn't necessary.

Mr. Holt suggested that the possibility of late afternoon classes could replace evening school, but this idea is still under consideration.

The Hi-Po denounces the action taken by the National Guard on the Kent State campus on May 3, 1970. We also urge that a drive be set up to organize surrounding campuses to write to President Nixon condemning the National Guard's action and demand that no more such actions will be continued or condoned.

Greek News

Alpha Gamma Delta

Several of the Alpha Gams have been elected to offices recently.

Corkie McCorkle was elected as Senior Class President and Jeanne McCauley was elected as one of the sophomore legislature representatives.

In the election for dormitory council officers Jeanne McCauley was elected as corresponding secretary, Patti Rask as treasurer, Linda Laws as one of the judiciary representatives, and Janie Libby as the legislative representative.

Corkie McCorkle was selected to represent Alpha Gam in Who's Who in Greek Fraternities and Sororities.

Zeta Tau Alpha

Recently Delta Gamma Chapter of Zeta Tau Alpha was honored at the annual State Day held in High Point at the Top of the Mart. Our Chapter was presented the Collegiate-Alumnae Relations Award for Province 2-N. There were approximately 180 Zetas present from Western Carolina, High Point, UNC-W, Duke and Lenior Rhyne.

Active Zetas captured many class offices in recent campus elections. Of the rising sophmore class, Bev Mechell is the newly elected treasurer and Pat Evans the secretary. Of the rising junior class, Jean Wenk is the new secretary. Of the rising senior class, Cheri Palermo and Linda Hinkleman are treasurer and secretary respectively.

Zetas also were victorious in Dorm Council elections, with Lauriel Lopatnikov the new Vice-President of North and Yadkin Dorms. Cheri Palermo is Judiciary Representative from Dorm Council, and Rosanne Cunningham, the new secretary.

The 100th Link Ball was held last week at the King's Inn in Greensboro. This marks Delta Gamma Chapter as the 100th Link of 114 active chapters with approximately 67,000 initiated members. The highlight of the evening was the presentation of awards by President Alexis Hinkle. They were as follows: Outstanding Pledge, Pat Evans; Outstanding Sister, Neely Dowall; Outstanding Senior, Lorraine Scrance; Pledge Scholarship, Mary Patterson; Sister Scholarship, Cheri Palermo; Zeta Pride, Lyn Stephenson; Honorary Sweethearts, Dan Tweed and Dr. C. E. Mounts; and Zeta Sweethearts, Jerry Garmon and Jerry Ammons.

Spring Has Hit HPC

By SONNY MELROSE

Spring means different things to different people. To many sensitive noses it means hay fever. To Dr. Eugene Mounts, the HPC baseball team, their girls, and to a group of faithful "beverage" consuming fans, it means baseball. Baseball is a great game and this year the gods have blessed us with a team.

To the normal fan, a great team is a team that wins. With a little bit of precious knowledge, a normal fan, like me, knows that to win the team has to hit well, pitch well, and field well. Well! Friends, those dashing do-gooders of the diamond are doing all these things.

They have good and powerful hitting with Gebicke, Slingerman, Mitcham, and Perlozzo. Jack Curling is leading the pitching staff, and the junior college transfer has a outstanding record. The infield is fairly tight. The loose one knows who he is. I really believe we have the best ball retrievers in the Carolinas Conference.

Speaking of the CC tournament, it's this week and it should be a toughy. It takes place in Greensboro and it'll be worth anything they charge. Stiff competition is expected, but if the team pulls together, they should win. I know this sounds trite, but sometimes trite is true.

Some of us don't have the skill to play baseball. When spring comes we start to walk fast. We talk fast and we do everything fast. This fast body movement surprises many southerners and this is probably why most of the members of the HPC track team are from the north.

These fast Yanks are doing an admirable job as recent triumphs over Catawba and Wake Forest have shown.

The victory over Wake was only a prelude to the third place medal the 440 relay team picked up at the state track meet in Durham. In so doing, the team (Carlvin Steed, Mike Lewis, Tommy Davis, and Dennis Bowley) defeated Wake Forest, UNC, NC State, and Duke. NC Central and JC Smith were the only teams that defeated the fleet feet of HPC. It has been rumored that there were "Beat High Point" signs in the Duke locker room.

Eric Noren, George Jones, and Lloyd Davis, had personal bests last Saturday at Duke, Noren ran a dapper 1:56.8 half mile and he missed the finals of that event by one tenth of a second. Jones picked up a third place medal with a jump of 6'4" in the high jump. Davis ran a strong 4:26 mile and the former teamate of Bobby Wheeler (a na-

Whittle Whips Up On Witt

Last week's Student Union Pool Tournament brought basketball star Danny Witt forward as the 1970 spring semester champion, but left Rick Whittle with the laurels as the year's champion after a finals match that saw Wittle take Witt 50-22.

"The better player won," said SU Games Director Robert Volz after the game. Volz classes both of the two as good all-around cuemen, but the younger Wittle is apparently the one with the edge.

"Heck," said Volz, "Rick is about two inches away from being a hustler; he's that good."

Volz also explained that the onlookers felt that Witt was unable to stand the pressure. "He blew up in the heat," said one.

Witt led in the final match 22-20 at one point, but was unable to score further and lost by a wide margin of 28 points.

Spring Has Hit HPC

By SONNY BULAVOC

Spring means different things to different people. To many sportsfans it means a routine big league TV Baseball schedule. To others it means golf, golf, golf — lovers of fishin' and beverages" enjoyments that, to anyone interested, Bass Fishing is a great sport and they love the outdoors. Spring means tennis to many. Spring has turned into a young man's or lassie's fancy to thoughts of playing tennis, golf, baseball, etc. You see, we have had no title for the sports we left out. Well, now, we have a title for them. Spring means Intramural Sports.

The Intramural Sports program is being run by Coach Bill Hodges, Coach Carl Ross, Coach Ed Speer, Coach Jim Wilson, and the golfers' coach, coach Bill Hodges. Intramural Sports is a program for the students by the students. The faculty members serve only as coaches and have no voice in the decisions of these sports. The faculty members are not even allowed to participate in these sports.

Speaking of the CC intramural, it's two weeks and counting till it begins. It takes place in Greensboro, N.C. at the Greensboro Golf Course. If the competition is expected, but if the boys play to perfect they should win. I hope they intends from the sophomore class at Low

Whittle Whips Up On Witt

Last Sunday Student Union Pool Tournament brought basketball star Bangs Vile forward as the 8th spring semester champion, but not without a struggle. Vile, who is a member of the Phi Kappa Tau fraternity, defeated Wade Witt, 150-87, Sept. and Dick Cantrell 150-100 Sept. Witt, who is a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity, was the second best player in the tournament. Witt finished 2nd in the tournament.
